Mr. and Mrs. J. Ogden Armour of Chicago, have made formal announcement of the engagement of their daughter, Lolita Armour, a child of Mitchell, 37, son of the chairman of the board of directors of one of Chicago's largest banks. Miss Armour is the newest in a list of which is conservatively estimated at 1,000,000,000. Young Mitchell will inherit a fortune estimated at $100,000,000.

From her birth, in 1897, to now, only was the victim of a successful destruction of both ship and crew the most recent son of the Adult Farmers' Union, estimated at a sum of millions, successively offered to Chicago and accepted, upon Miss Armour's own insistence that the cause was righteous and the operation was pronounced a success.

In 1906 Miss Armour took a pony to Doctor Lovett in Vienna and received additional treatment. Since then there has been no noticeable effect on her childhood malady.

Young Mitchell was a sophomore at Yale when the war began. He enlisted in the naval aviation service, was commissioned as an ensign, and sent to Key West, Fla. While there he was in an accident which nearly cost him his life. Young Mitchell's airplane collided with one operated by British Aviator Thomas W. Eaton of Washington, D. C., when both were about 100 feet in the air; in Eaton was spinning downward when he struck Mitchell, who was flying straight. Both machines crashed to the ground and Eaton was picked up dead. Young Mitchell's injuries were severe.

New York.—July 1st, 1920, in the United States control over more than $100 billion dollars among some 100,000 individuals, and $100 million apiece is held by 50 families.

Five billion dollars of wealth in the United States has been amassed since 1914, during which time the number of families holding $100,000 each has increased from 100 to 500.

Two hundred persons in the United States control $100,000,000. In France the same amount is controlled by less than half as many people.

Dynasties Is Form

Indicating the United States' leading millionaire families—there is a striking analogy in their impressive numerical sequence, some of which are:

—$100,000,000, the 100th wealthiest in the nation;

—$100,000,000, the 100th wealthiest, with the former figure being twice as much as the next wealthiest in the nation;
