Better See Me At Once About These Fine Bargains

ROY V. WHITEIS

Give Us a Fair Rate of Return

is a good slogan for any industry. But it is a very timely one right now for the electrical industry. Everyone wants good electrical service and every one will get good electrical service, but they must be shown that unless a central station or lighting company is allowed to earn on a full and proper value and not on a depreciated value that central station or lighting company cannot continue to serve in a proper and efficient manner. Let every man who has a stake in the industry take this fact to heart and convince his neighbors and friends... Put your shoulder to the wheel and then get every one to do likewise.

Jubilee Singers in Old-Time Concert

Virginians Close Chautauqua.

Two programs of old plantation songs, camp meeting shouts and "negro spirituals" will be given by the Virginians, well known Jubilee singers on the last day of the coming Chautauqua. The Virginians are a company of highly trained, cultured and refined colored singers who have made friends all over the country with their jubilee programs. It is not their aim to give high brow music, but rather to present the beautiful old melodies of the Old South before the Civil War, the shouts of joy from the old fashioned camp meetings where the darkeys "got religion" and the spontaneous hilarity that characterized their simple social gatherings.

SEARCH FOR MUSICAL THIEF

Peculiar and Clever Crook Is Just Now Engaging the Attention of London Police.

Detectives are searching for an accomplished thief who plays the piano and sings for his victim before going away with the valuables.

Although known to the police, he has been "operating" in St. John's Wood, London, for more than a month and his two latest coups have been carried out within a few minutes' walk of each other.

He returned a fortnight ago to a house in St. George's terrace, Primrose Hill, where he had taken apartments, while the other boarders were at dinner. Inquiries resulted in the discovery that the lodger had gone with jewelry including four gold rings set with diamonds, worth $2,000.

A woman in King Henry's road, London, is the latest victim. On Monday the man rang up and in a short time arrived in a taxicab. He stated that he would fetch his luggage later.

Insisting in paying in advance he made out a check for a week's board and made himself agreeable by his musical accomplishments, but a prolonged absence in the bathroom excited suspicion, and it was found that a trunk had been forced and $1,000 worth of jewelry stolen. A finely-cased gold watch, valued at $500, was among the articles stolen, and the check was dishonored.—From the Continental Edition of the London Mail.

QUIT TELLING FUNNY STORIES

Why Congressman Kelly Sacrificed Humor on the Altar of Serious Statemanship.

Patrick Kelly, a representative in congress from Michigan, says that he used to tell many stories in going about in his political campaigns. The audiences always liked them and went away pleased. Telling them looked like good politics.

Years later Kelly would meet a man and he would say: "I have met you before. I remember very well a certain story you told."

Then he would repeat the anecdote. Kelly would ask him what else he remembered that had been said, and he would be unable to remember a thing. The congressman began to wonder if the telling of stories prevented more serious matters from finding lodgment in the hearer's mind.

He became fearful. He was not sure, but he decided to lay off the funny story. So was the possibility of a multitude of good laughs sacrificed at the altar of serious statemanship.—New York Sun.

Chief Suffragette.

A friend who had known Thomas Riley Marshall for a great many years saw him after the cares of office had been removed from his shoulders, just as he was about to board a Washington street car. He stopped and asked him:

"Tell me, Mr. Marshall, what can be done to make the office of vice president a great office?"

"I'll tell you in one minute, and I won't even have to miss this car," said Mr. Marshall. "There isn't anything you can do. The vice president will always be chambermaid to the king."

Something Just as Good.

"Have you 'Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea'?"
"No, ma'am," said the facetious clerk, "but I own forty acres under water that was sold to me as good farming land."

Too Industrious.

"Who is the mysterious stranger?"
"Some kind of investigator."
"Working for the government?"
"I doubt it. He keeps pretty busy."

One Way to Attract Customers.

In a small New England town I met a druggist who makes a specialty of selling postage stamps. He says that to retail 2-cent stamps for 2 cents each is the most profitable line in his store. These sales would be extremely unprofitable, if he handled stamps grossly or grudgingly, saying by his manner: "Whatta you mean by bothering me to sell you postage stamps?"

But he has signs in his window telling that he has plenty of stamps, and makes a special effort to be more pleasant and accommodating and gracious about a stamp sale than at any other time. He has attracted thousands of permanent customers in that way. "A new customer is worth many dollars a year," he observes, "whether the thing that first brought him in is postage stamps, cigars or whatnot. So having enticed him in, why should I do anything to make him sorry he came?"—Fred Kelly in The Nation's Business.

WHAT TO EAT.

When planning the meals for the week, the following may prove suggestive:

Timbales of Chicken.—Take one-half cupful of cream, whites of four eggs, one-half table-spoonful of truffles, finely chopped, two cupfuls of cooked white meat of chicken, with salt and pepper to taste. Chop the meat very fine, and pound it to a smooth paste. Add the cream gradually. When well mixed, season and add the truffles. Then add, one at a time, the unbeaten whites of two of the eggs, mixing the first with the paste until it has disappeared before adding the second. Beat the remaining whites to a stiff froth and stir them carefully into the mixture. Fill greased timbale molds half full of the mixture, place in a pan of water—the water should come up as high as the mixture in the timbales and bake thirty minutes in a moderate oven. Serve with mushroom sauce.

Cabbage Imperial.—Trim and fold back three or four of the outside leaves of a firm head of cabbage. With a sharp knife remove the center, leaving only a thick wall. Take one cupful of cold meat well seasoned, one cupful of sliced carrots, one cupful of sliced carrots and enough of the cabbage to fill the head. Add salt and pepper to taste and a few table-spoonfuls of butter. Press the mixture well into the cavity. Tie in a piece of cheese cloth and steam or cook in a small amount of water until the cabbage is tender. Cut in pie-shaped pieces and serve on a platter.

Reliable Marshmallow Frosting.—This has appeared before, but is so good that it bears repetition. Put the unbeaten white of an egg, seven-eighths of a cup of sugar, three table-spoonfuls of water in the upper part of the double boiler. Have the water underneath rapidly boiling, set the sugar mixture over the water and with a Dover egg beater, beat to heat; after seven minutes add twelve marshmallows, remove from the heat and beat with a spoon until the mixture is smooth and cool enough to hold its shape. Use to frost little cakes and cookies.
