SHERIFF'S SALE OF REAL PROPERTY

In the Circuit Court of the State of Oregon, for Morrow County.

Bertha E. Glenn, Trustee, now Bertha E. Glenn-Heroux, Trustee, Plaintiff, vs. Allie E. Fleck, C. K. Meade, J. E. Howley, J. B. Bonham, Nora E. Bonham, James T. Brady, Roxanna Brady, and H. Glenn, Defendants.

BY VIRTUE OF AN EXECUTION, decree and order of sale duly issued out of and under the seal of the Circuit Court of the state of Oregon, for the County of Morrow, to me directed and dated the 13th day of June 1921, upon a decree for the foreclosure of certain mortgages, and judgment rendered and entered in said Court on the 13th day of June, 1921, in the above entitled cause, in favor of the Plaintiff and against the defendant, Allie E. Fleck, as judgment debtor, in the sum of SIX HUNDRED TWENTY FIVE DOLLARS, with interest thereon from the 18th day of December, 1915, at the rate of 10 per cent per annum and the further sum of $185.51 advanced for taxes with interest at 10 per cent per annum from April 26, 1920, and the further sum of $110.00 as attorney's fees, and the further sum of $54.30 costs, and upon judgment rendered and entered by the same court on the same date in favor of the above named H. Glenn, defendant and cross complainant, against the above named defendants, J. B. Bonham and Nora E. Bonham, as judgment debtors in the sum of $200.00 with interest thereon from the 15th day of April, 1918, at the rate of 10 per cent per annum, and the further sum of $50.00 attorneys fees and the further sum of $7.00 costs, and the costs of and upon this writ, and commanding me to make sale of the real property embraced in such decree of foreclosure and hereinafter described, I will, on the 25th day of July, 1921, at the hour of 11:00 o'clock in the forenoon of said day, and at the front door of the county court house in Heppner, Morrow County, Oregon, sell at public auction to the highest bidder for cash in hand all the right title and interest which the defendants, Allie E. Fleck, and J. B. Bonham and Nora E. Bonham, respectively or either of them had on the 18th day of December, 1907, and on the 15th day of April, 1915, respectively, the dates of the mortgages foreclosed herein, or which such defendants or any of the Defendants herein have since acquired, or now have in and to the following described real property, situate and being in Morrow County, Oregon, to wit:

West half of Section 25, and the north half of the northeast quarter of Section 28, in Township 2 North, Range 26 E. W. M., containing 400 acres.

And in the NW 1/4, section 26, T. 2 N. R. 26 E. W. M., consisting of 160 acres, portion of the above described land covered by the second mortgage of H. Glenn, or so much of such property as will satisfy said judgement and decree with costs and accruing costs.

Said property will be sold subject to continuation and redemption as by law provided.

GEO. McDUFFEE Sheriff, Morrow County, Oregon. Dated at Heppner, Oregon, this 15th day of May, 1921. S-12

Projected Aerial Newspaper. The last word in journalism is the Aerial Mail, a daily newspaper, which is edited, printed and published from an airplane in flight. The Daily Mail, which is sponsoring it, says it will contain the latest British and continental news, political, financial and general, received both at the moment the airplane "takes off" and while it is flying, the news being sent by wireless. A special printing plant has been installed and newspapers will be distributed by means of parachutes dropping the editions into the towns the airplane flies over.

SWEETEST NAME

By MARY WINIFRED FORD.

(Copyright, 1921, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"Good morning, Mrs. Abbot," called the postman cheerily, as he placed a dainty pink and white envelope in the wrinkled old hands.

Before he had time to be out of sight she called to him excitedly to come back, and she waved the pink and white envelope as though this alone would tell him to hurry—how important was the letter he handed her this morning.

"Oh! Mr. Jackson, read it—Oh, my! Oh, my!" was all she could say, but Mr. Jackson knew her old heart was glad over something and the thought that he was the one to deliver any good news to this "dear old lady" thrilled him through and through.

"A precious little baby girl has come to gladden our hearts," was what he read.

"Just think, Mrs. Abbot, at last your wish has come true—you are really and truly a grandma to someone now," and as he saw her brush a tear away, he left hurriedly, for in his own eyes there had gathered a mist.

Mrs. Abbot had buried her children years ago and her sorrow had made her old, and hard work her hands coarse and wrinkled; but in her eyes shone the soul of a wonderful woman and mother. Every morning at 6 found her working around a little restaurant near her home, and 6 o'clock at night she could be seen leaving the restaurant, tired, but a smile was there playing around the sweet mouth. She adopted the baby girl of her girlhood friend and playmate, Mae Adams, who died shortly after her husband's death 20 years previous.

The child was named Mae after her mother, but she had known only one mother, Mrs. Abbot, who toiled hard to bring the child up as she felt Mae Adams would have done had she lived. When in high school the girl protested and declared she must leave and help her "Mummy" out, but that dear old soul also protested, saying that her own mother would have desired nothing more than to see her little girl properly educated.

With a pension she was receiving since her husband's death, and the money received for her daily work in the restaurant, she was able to buy the things a young girl's heart would desire, so that Mae was rich with the things she craved—pretty frothed dresses, shoes, etc., and a wonderful motherly love from Mrs. Abbot.

Then along came her handsome young knight, and they were married; and "Mummy Abbott" was alone, as Jack Edmund insisted that his wife should leave her home in the country and go to New York with him to live. They pleaded with Mrs. Abbot to accompany them, but she refused to part with the old home and the things she loved—the trees, the birds that had become a part of her wonderful life. Now came the wonderful news! And "Mummy" must come at once to see the little girl. But, alas! this poor little mother was now alone in years and the trip would prove too much for her, so she sent a letter of congratulation and love to them both, instead.

"Jack, here is a letter from Mummy, and she feels the trip would be too much for her. Oh, I am so disappointed! I just wanted to see Mummy cuddle baby to her and to see the joy in her eyes, for, Jack, she always wanted to be a grandma way back, and now, when her wishes are fulfilled, she cannot come," and a tear trickled down the pretty cheek. Jack brushed it away lovingly, saying that just as soon as baby and she were strong enough they would visit dear old Mummy.

"But, Jack, what are we going to name this precious baby? I want a real pretty name for her."

"Why, your own name, dear, would please me best of all."

"No! no! that isn't pretty—Claire. I always did like, and then there is Dorothy and Geraldine."

But neither of them knew that back home in the country, sitting near the window watching her birds, was a dear old lady telling each little bird what she wanted most of all, and at the thought of it her blue eyes sparkled and her heart beat faster.

Some time later when the baby was strong enough, they went out to the little country home, still puzzled what they should call baby. Grandma was consulted, but she just looked at them both, and as she hugged baby close to her there was the same longing in her eyes that the little birds saw one day, yet she said nothing.

While looking through her mother's writing desk one day Mae found a slip of paper, and on it was written ever so many times, "Anastasia Mae Edmund." Then it dawned on Mae that Mummy's hand had written that name and was hoping they would name their first baby after Mummy and her own mother.

"It's a bit old-fashioned, Jack, but she has been the most wonderful mother to me, and now that it is my two mothers' names, I shall love the name and baby, too," said Mae Edmund hurried to tell Mummy about it.

A smile and a "few tears, and a hug for little Anastasia Mae was grandma's means of telling them how happy she was.

The KITCHEN CABINET

Most of the critical things in life, which become the starting points of human destiny, are little things.—P. Smith.

SEASONABLE GOOD THINGS.

Serve green onions often as well as asparagus, but vary the methods of serving. It takes 20 stalks of 8-inch asparagus to meet the allowance of one calorie portion. As most of the flavor vegetables lack fuel value, though rich in mineral salts, they are best served with a full allowance of some food which provides fuel.

Purée of Onions.—Peel, slice and parboil six-medium-sized onions; drain and put into a soup kettle with one-fourth of a cupful of butter; stir and cook until a light yellow; add one-third of a cupful of flour, a teaspoonful of salt and stir until well blended; add one quart of veal broth and stir until boiling; add a second quart of broth and let simmer until the onions are tender; strain through a fine sieve, pressing all the onion through that is possible. Reheat and add salt, pepper, and serve with bread buttered and browned in the oven. When serving sprinkle a teaspoonful of finely-minced parsley over the soup.

Spanish Steaks.—Have two pounds of round steak cut two inches thick from the top of the round. Leave the fat on the meat and pan broil in a hot frying pan until well browned on both sides. Add three-fourths of a cupful of boiling water and bake in a moderate oven 45 minutes. Spread over the meat a layer of sliced onions, sprinkling them lightly with salt and pepper. Cover and let cook an hour. Lay the solid part of a can of tomatoes over the onions and return to the oven for 15 minutes. Sprinkle with two tablespoonfuls of grated cheese and return to the oven long enough to melt the cheese. The steak should be very tender with a thick sauce. The cooking must be done in a moderate oven.

Luncheon Rarebit.—Melt one-half pound of cheese over hot water. In a separate dish turn a can of tomato soup. Rent and season well with paprika. Turn the melted cheese into the hot soup and beat. Turn the rarebit dressing over toasted rounds of heated bread and serve with crisp celery and hot coffee.

Drummer Devised Shrewd Scheme for Failing End to Series of Petty Extortions.

"Like cures like," said Speaker Gillett, apropos of certain extortions. "Abuse may cure abuse, too."

"I once knew a drummer for a chemist firm. This drummer would visit Pottsville four or five times a year. He would arrive late in the evening at the Pottsville hotel and depart after lunch the next day. He didn't stop a full day, you see; he got no dinner; nevertheless he was always charged a full day's board.

"The extortion got on his nerves at last; so one afternoon when his bill was brought him, he took out his pad and drew up an account against the landlady for a carboy of sulphuric acid.

"Take this to Mrs. Tompkins," he said to the waiter, and ask her if she would mind settling up at once."

"In a few minutes Mrs. Tompkins herself appeared.

"Why," she said to the drummer, "I never brought any sulphuric acid from you in my life. This bill is a mistake."

"Neither have I ever eaten any of your dinners, ma'am," said the drummer, "but you charge me for them every time I come to Pottsville."

"After that the Pottsville hotel never charged the drummer for things he hadn't had."

"Father of the Pen."

Few among the masses in the East know how to read or write, so the professional letter-writer occasionally accumulates much wealth.
