CHAUTAQUA

This is the season of the year when Chautauqua is the thoughts of wide awake thinking men and women in practically every community in the Northwest. Just as we carefully choose teachers for our schools, pastors of our churches, or the college or university we wish our children to attend, just as carefully should the question of Chautauqua service be considered.

The new non-profit basis under which Ellison-White is now operating and the ruling of the treasury Department that no war tax be collected from committees receiving Ellison-White service are facts which no community can afford to overlook. Ellison-White Chautauquas have grown from one small circuit of 42 towns in 1913 to approximately eleven hundred assemblies in 1921, operating in 13 states, 4 Canadian provinces, Australia, and New Zealand. This expansion gives them a buying power greater than any Chautauqua Bureau in the country today and is the only Bureau in the West having access to the Affiliated list of talent.

This exceptional growth has been brought about through consistent, conscientious and constructive "Service."—Advertisement.

The Romance of the Indian Blanket

A WOVEN chronicle of Indian lore—of myths suggested by the setting sun, the rippling waves, the geese flying southward. There's interest for everyone in these impressions preserved by the Indian squaw in her weaving—now carried on by the Oregon City Woolen Mills where her crude handloom ceased.

These Indian Blankets are so true in design that most of the Indian tribes of the West wear them.

Jacobs' Oregon City Indian Blankets serve a score of needs—for motoring—for traveling—for home use—especially to those people who enjoy out-of-door pleasures. Their brilliant, barbaric beauty and the symbolism of their designs add much to their interest. They are dyed in the wool—their colors are permanent.

Come in and let us show you the newest designs in "Oregon City" Indian Blankets.
