TAILLEUR OF WHITE FLANNEL

An interesting tailleur of white flannel is stitched in navy and worn with a small quatercorne of straw, swathed with blue chiffon.

THE WELL-CHOSEN JEWELRY

Decorations of the Sort Should Be Becoming to Wearer and in Harmony With Costume.

Whether one wears pearls culled from the briny deep and sold at fabulous sums, or the far more modest product of synthetic art, the intrinsic value of the jewels is as nought compared with the fact as to whether or not they are becoming to the wearer, and in harmony with her characteristics of costume, style and surroundings.

There is an indefinite line said quod about the use of jewelry, which if not handled delicately and subtly, easily slides from use into abuse. Since pearls are less abundant in their finer than diamonds, they can be worn with the greater safety and good taste on many occasions, as their soft sheen never offends like the brilliant sparkle of the many faced gems, such as diamonds, rubies and emeralds.

This year's novelties in jewelry lead ample scope to the imagination and fanciful tastes of the lovers of jewelry, as semiprecious jewels, known as costume jewelry, are to be had in infinite variety. This consists of stones of minor value, also many compositions artistically set and vividly colored. There are strings of even and variegated designs of vivid jade, amber, coral or jet, usually worn with earrings to match. These fanciful sets are a boon to many women, since they offer so many individual styles. If the individual falls in the proper selection of the fitting thing, surely it is not the lack of that choice that guides her erratic taste, but perchance ignorance of the laws of taste, good or bad, in the line of jewelry.

Just as truly as certain gowns are distinctly good taste on certain occasions, just as truly are there jewels, be they ever so handsome, that are decidedly out of keeping at certain times and places.

FASHION NOTES

It is not unlikely that the soft felt hat, untrimmed except for a single large flower, that Paris introduced for early spring wear, will be utilized all summer, for these soft felts are most comfortable for sport wear.

The campus coat made of camel's hair is a slip-on V-neck sweater that is new and fast meeting with favor. These smart sweaters come in all the popular colors, are plain knit and in waistline length that makes them particularly desirable for wear under the sport suit.

The knitted scarf daily gains in favor, for it is the logical neckpiece to wear with the sport or general utility spring suit. Scarfs of striped knitted silk give a delightful color note to the practical suit, as do scarfs of brushed wool designed in two-color block effect.

Pin-check gingham is a favored material for little girls' summer play-time frocks. Many of these practical little frocks are made exceedingly smart by a good-taste placement of embroidery done in black; others are made very dainty, yet more or less tailored in effect by collar and cuffs, belt and pocket flaps of white pique.

Many novelty effects in veils are being used, and the long-made veil seems to be enjoying more favor than the square-shaped veil. Chantilly lace veils are being accepted to a greater degree than earlier in the season, and the veil with chenille and silk border done in contrasting color is exceedingly popular with smart women. Veils as part of the hat trimming were an early spring fashion introduced by French milliners. Now separate veils are being worn in similar manner on ready-to-wear hats, draped to suit the wearer's plan of individual requirements. Considerably more color than usual is seen in veils and veiling generally, which makes for a pleasing change.

HELPFUL HINTS.

Mildewed gloves may be hung in a wooden box in which is placed a saucer containing ammonia; cover tightly and the fumes in the course of a day will drive away the mildew.

When a tablecloth used for the first time is soiled by a stain or spot, stretch the cloth over embroidery hoops and remove the spot. When dry, press and the cloth is fresh again.

Oranges, cut in small bits with the rind left on, are especially nice to give to a fever patient who needs something often to cool the mouth.

If cracked ice is to be used in the sickroom, it will keep longer if a piece of cheesecloth is tied over the bowl and the ice kept in it. Cover the bowl with another and place a paper bag over both. This will save many steps to renew the ice.

For the bed-ridden who get so tired lying in one position, the following help will be greatly appreciated: Tie stout new cotton cloth strips on each side of the headboard or bed-frame, leaving a large knot in the end of each strip to hold. By grasping these supports one may raise up or change position easily. The knots may be slipped under the pillow when not in use.

For tired feet, a mixture of baking soda and talcum, sprinkled into the shoes, will give great relief. For corns and callouses, keep them covered with adhesive tape, renewing as often as the bathing of the feet removes the plasters. This keeps the hard places soft.

In applying adhesive plaster to a wound, use short strips with tapes fastened to the strips, which may be lifted, the dressing changed and re-tied without disturbing the adhesive at all.

A simple method to clean silver blackened from use is to place the silver in an aluminum dish with a teaspoonful each of baking soda and salt. Do not boil too long, for silver which is finely coated may be entirely removed. One may use a piece of aluminum in a granite dish as the solution will roughen a good dish.

SALVAGERS DID GOOD WORK

Recovering Disabled Ships During the World War Was Matter of Highest Heroism.

Landlubbers link salvaging ships and cargoes to easy deais in treasure trove, but the skippers of the salvaging ships would tell them that salvage is sweaty and poorly paid exertion. They do not regard themselves as adventurers of romance. They are divers of seagoing ambulances. They are marine surgeons, who operate on sick or disabled craft, says the Spokane Spokesman Review.

Salvaging before the war was a matter-of-fact trade, but during the war it became a business fraught with extraordinary dangers. The maritime belligerents had to save every damaged or sunken ship that they could, and the salvager was almost as indispensable to winning the war as was the man-o-war.

At the Dardanelles five vessels were sunk near shore, and yet all were salvaged expeditiously by the Liverpool firms.

In June of 1917 the salvagers recovered four good-sized steamers in ten days that had been sunk in the English channel. They salvaged Beattie's flagship and the Britannia and the Asturias; the submarine K-13 after its crew had been submerged two and a half days; the wrecks of Ostend and Zeebrugge.

The salvaging boats had at one and the same time to act as machine shop, power house, pumping station and tug. They worked in a single spot, where they were target for every German submarine anywhere around. They showed a heroism beyond praise.

No Use For Ailing Wife.

The New York Medical Journal says: "Dr. Lichtwardt, a medical missionary, tells that many of the Persian sick women are obliged to steal away, during their husband's absence, to see a doctor.

"Honorable Sir," says the introductory note, 'please see me at once that I may return home before my husband, else he will beat me severely.' "We should not think neurotics abound for the husband often says to the doctor:

"Well, let her die, for even if she gets well I'll divorce her and get a new wife. I don't want a weak one in my house."
