Mrs. Sam E. Van Vactor entertained in honor of Mrs. Gilbert W. Phelps of Pendleton last Wednesday. Mrs. Phelps was a former resident of Heppner, and the affair was largely in the nature of a gathering of her old time friends and neighbors. Mrs. L. G. Herren in charge of the Heppner Public Library, reports that in response to the appeal for donations of books, published in the Herald last week, 58 books had been received up to last Saturday evening. The library board expresses their appreciation for the gifts and will be glad to receive further donations in order that books may always be available for the constantly increasing patronage of the library.

A party of nimrods consisting of Dr. A. D. McMurdo, Jim Thomson, Mayor E. G. Noble and former ice man Joe Snyder, drove over to "the narrows," where Harney and Malheur lakes join, in Harney county last week and bagged 50 fine fat ducks and a dozen geese, then drove home again. The trip was made in Doc's Franklin in eight hours which isn't bad going for that mileage. The mayor let it be officially known that under the laws of Oregon and the United States it was lawful to kill ducks and geese at that particular time and place. Jim Thomson led the onslaught on the enemy. Doc held proper post mortem over the remains and Joe put the bodies on ice for the return trip. This writer can testify that Doc's ducks were fat and tender. Ben Patterson and E. E. Clark also went over to the narrows last week and Ben reports that they brought back 80 ducks but we don't know—we don't know.

The Oregonian hotel reporter tells the following rather good story on J. W. Morrow, of the Union Pacific Tax Department, who everybody in Heppner calls "Billy," perhaps because he was raised here. Last summer Mr. Morrow went to visit Mr. and Mrs. Ed Rourke, former Portland friends who are now conducting a store at Crescent, about half way between Bend and Klamath Falls. By way of entertaining their visitor the Rourks planned a horseback hunting trip to last several days. Morrow, who is known to his Heppner friends as a game sport, was unaccustomed to the saddle, but spent two days on a horse without complaint. Finally one morning Mrs. Rourke, whose woman's intuition probably sensed that their guest was suffering in silence, declared that she believed that she would put a pillow in Morrow's saddle. "Thank the Lord for that suggestion," declared Billy, "I never would have said anything about it, but I sure will appreciate a pillow."

FREE GARDEN SEEDS? WRITE SENATOR STANFIELD

Senator Robert N. Stanfield writes the Herald that he has been allotted a quantity of garden and flower seeds for free distribution and requests that the information be given publicity. Inasmuch as the government has spent good money for these seeds, the senator does not want to see them wasted as might be the case if they were sent out indiscriminately. He therefore requests that all persons wanting seeds for use will advise him at once and he will be glad to supply them.

Requests for seed should be received by December 1st and they will be mailed soon after January 1st.
