Men who claim to know something about astronomy are not agreed as to whether this Christmas moon is a dry or a wet one.

The hen keeps on advertising her product, and look where the price has gone. Now if Mr. Burbank will come forward and graft some sort of a phonograph attachment to a wheat stalk the farmers will have something to be thankful for.

It isn't necessary to read it in the newspapers. Anyone who travels on the railroad these days can tell they are running with about half force.

Now that there are prospects of Henry Ford buying a bunch of battleships and expects to use the steel in the construction of his product, it is said that junk dealers have refused to pay anything for tin cans.

A lot of people said Fatty Arbuckle would never "come back" but he's more than half way back right now and so long as his women admirers stick, Fatty won't have much of anything to worry about but his income tax.

"A complete funeral for $75," says a headline in a Portland paper. That makes one less thing for some people to worry about.

Some people seem to think that the "limitation of arms" will cost more than a fair sized war, and even if it does it will be cheap.

Only about 2 per cent of the bootleg liquor that is being sold is fit to drink, says a statistician. Then comes another and says that more than that per cent is used—and it's what you use that makes you go quick.

Some girls are determined to show their beauty—regardless of where it is.

Pull the spurs off a fighting cock and what is he good for? Some people are wondering where all the naval soldiers will work when there's none of their kind of work to be done.

What Women Think

By Mary, the Girl Reporter

At teacher give us a long lecture on the necessity of saving his Mundy and it had its effect. The boy who sits right ahead of me in skule has already started to save. I looked at his neck, he's savin soap.

Paw awlmost got put in jale on Toosdy. He had ben helpin a bootlegger save a jug of hoam made likker what had broke and he didnt dare to kum home to suppir. He went into the restaurant and orderd pie allamoad. When the waiter brot it out he looked at it an sed he didnt want the vanishin cream on it. When they pulled paw out from under the waiter he looked so pitiful that the policeman sed he gest he woodent put him in jale as there wasent any operatin room.

Ant lucy who was reedin the paper Mundy nite sed she sean where the krismus spirit was abroad orly this season an paw he ses he noes it is too because he sean to jugs of it
