R. W. Turner, president of the Morrow County Farm Bureau, was in from the ranch, Saturday attending a meeting of the executive committee of the bureau. Mr. Turner says it was frozen almost too hard to plow Saturday morning at his place but he still has an abiding faith that Gentle Spring will yet oust old man Winter and that everything will be lovely soon.

County Agent Calkins, Chas. Dillabaugh, president of the Boardman Farm Bureau and Hugh Grim, president of the Irrigon bureau, will visit the Yakima valley this week to interview farmers in that section on the best methods to follow in diversified farming on irrigated tracts. Following their return open meetings will be held at Irrigon and Boardman at which these subjects will be discussed.

Mr. Ballard, of the extension department of O. A. C., was a visitor here Saturday and attended the Farm Bureau meeting. Mr. Ballard has general supervision over all county agents in eastern Oregon and he reported the bureau in good condition in 11 counties that have agents east of the mountains. No particular effort is being made to sign up new members for the Farm Bureau on account of the scarcity of money just now but Mr. Ballard says that wherever he goes he finds sentiment stronger than ever before for the organization.

Sherman Wakefield who raises a warehouse full of wheat every year, more or less, was in town Saturday on business. Sherm dropped into the Herald office while here and expounded some theories upon the evils of a gas buggy on a farm. After Sherm ran out of breath we asked him if they weren't a pretty handy contrivance to come to town in for hurry-up errands? "There's the whole story," shouted Sherm excitedly, "they're all right for everything else, as far as I can see, but when you come to towns on errands they bring you so darn fast that you forget half the things you started after."

JACKSON COUNTY KNOWS

Officials of Jackson county gave similar officers of other counties throughout the state, something to think about when they recently voted $7800 as the county's share in the expense of maintaining a county agricultural agent, an assistant agent and a home demonstration agent. This was even more than the county farm bureau had asked for this purpose.

Perhaps there is a reason why Jackson county is so enthusiastic over this kind of extension work. Under farm bureau and county agent leadership the farmers of that county have developed an exchange that has done much to solve their problems both of buying and selling. This is but one of the successful activities of like nature growing out of the same spirit of cooperation between the various elements within the county.—Fossil Journal.

FARM BUREAU FAVORS COUNTY AGENT

Farmers in Morrow county are strongly in favor of continuing the work of the county agents and experiment stations as was shown at the Bureau meeting last Saturday. R. W. Turner, president of the Bureau spoke at some length on the benefits he has derived from the work of the station at Moro and also told of the heavy expense he has frequently met with in trying to carry out similar experiments on his own farm. In the one matter of the certification of seed wheat Mr. Turner maintained that the cost of the county agent to this county has been paid for several times over.

PASTOR'S RESIGNATION ACCEPTED

The resignation of Rev. Moore, pastor of the Federated church, which was tendered on Sunday, March 12th, was accepted at a meeting of members of the congregation following the morning service last Sunday. The resignation is to take effect on or before July 1st, 1922. Mr. Moore has not made any announcement as to his future plans nor has the congregation decided as to his successor.

MEN STUDENTS AS NURSE MAIDS

EUGENE, March 26.—The men students of the University of Oregon are earning their way by doing a multitude of tasks, many of them unusual, according to a statement of working students just issued by the campus Y. M. C. A., which is the clearing house for student employment.

Two men students have jobs taking care of babies while parents are out. This ranks as a desirable position, for simultaneous opportunity is afforded for study if the baby is not too chronically given to vocal protest. Besides, if education is a training for life, there is unquestionably an educational value to the experience. Then there is the immediate reward at so much per hour.

Other jobs performed by working men students in order to secure money with which to continue their studies, include cooking, tending fires, washing dishes and serving as waiters in restaurants, janitors, stenographers, bookkeepers and tutors. One man runs a pop corn stand downtown. Another is a hotel clerk. Several are employed as clerks in the Eugene stores. It is estimated that students earn an aggregate of $29,000 a year doing odd jobs of this sort while pursuing their studies.

In addition to the odd jobs, regular part time work during the school year and summer employment enable two-thirds of the students of the University, both men and women, to be wholly or partly self-supporting.

EASTERN OREGON FARM NOTES

Spring grain planted 1 to 1 1/2 inches deep will usually give better and more vigorous stands than seed buried 3 to 4 inches deep. Deeper planting is only necessary on coarse seed beds or those with a deep dry surface layer.

Improve Sunflower Silage

Where some corn can be grown and siled with sunflowers the quality of the sunflower silage is greatly improved. Irrigated districts that are too frosty for corn will try late oats like shal-land eclipse for the same purpose.

Feeding School Coming

A feeders school will be held at the Union branch experiment station early in April. When stockmen from all parts of eastern Oregon will be given an opportunity to study the results of feeding experiments that have been under way for the last six years. Cattle wintered over on various rations may be seen at that time when the results will be explained in detail.

The steers kept on light wintering rations are shown some significant results in relation to winter and summer gains. The trials with fattening rations have been no less important. Cattlemen interested in either phase of the feeding problem are invited to attend as in no other way can the full benefit of the feeding trials be received. A special feature of the school will be judging demonstrations with both feeder and market cattle.

UNIVERSITY SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA THURSDAY EVENING

The program of the concert to be given by the University Symphony Orchestra in the Star Theatre at 8:15 Thursday evening can be described with only one word—variety. Numbers by the full orchestra, solo and violin solos, string quartets, the jazz of the University Troubadours, and variety in each of these make up the program. After the concert, a jitney dance will be given in the American Legion hall, the music for which will be furnished by the University Troubadours.

Arthur Campbell, son of Judge and Mrs. W. T. Campbell, of this city, is a member of the orchestra, playing the bass clarinet which will add to the local interest in the entertainment.

A CASE OF LIFE OR DEATH

There are some mighty big badger holes down Sand Hollow way and many young lambs are lost through falling into the cavernous depths of these excavations, according to a story told by a Heppner man who drove out by the Hynd Bros ranch a few days ago.

While driving along the road the Heppner man says he noticed Jack Knox near the road with one foot braced against a rock, tugging fort dead life on the end of an inch rope.

"What you doin', Jack?" inquired the Heppner man, his curiosity aroused. "Havin' a tug of war all to yourself?"

"Mind your own business," replied Jack shortly. "This is a case of life or death and I must not be bothered."

His curiosity still further excited, the Heppner man got out of his car to investigate and found that Jack had taken a snub around a gate post and that he had all he could do to keep the rope from getting the best of him. Following the rope a short distance into the sage brush the Heppner man found that it entered a badger hole and upon peering into the depths he discovered Will Hynd dangling from the end of the rope.

trying to rescue a wee, bit baby lamb that had fallen into the hole.

How the Heppner man joined forces with Jack and helped make the rescue may be told in another story.

"Simply a Wreck."

Marshall, although at the half-way post between five and six years, still spends a part of each afternoon in sleeping. On infrequent occasions, when something out of the ordinary warrants, he is permitted to pass by the afternoon naps provided he consents to being put to bed early in the evening. Recently he enjoyed one of these afternoon holidays of wakefulness. Near the dinner hour he broke one of the rules of conduct and was promptly taken to task by his father. Thereupon, in all seriousness, Marshall explained his case with this:

"You know, daddy, I'm simply a wreck when I don't take my afternoon nap."

PATRONIZE HOME INDUSTRY

Some of us Oregon people get up at the alarm of a Connecticut clock, button our Chicago suspenders to our Philadelphia Pants wash our face with Cin cinatti soap in a Pennsylvania basin, sit down to a Grand Rapids table; eat Nebraska bacon with Chinese eggs; spread our toast with Australian butter, or eat rolls made of Wisconsin flour and Kansas lard. Walk out of a house plastered with a Scotch mortgage; ride down town on a Detroit jitney, do business with borrowed money from the East; advertise with printed matter from San Francisco; traverse streets bonded read a verse from a Boston bible; say a prayer composed in Jerusalem; crawl under a New Jersey blanket and be kept awake by the yawling of a Heppner cat, the only home product of the entire layout.
