John McEntire of Coel was a visitor in Heppner yesterday. Why pay more for gasoline when you can get it at the Byers Chop Mill for 30 cents a gallon? The dry weather is having its effect on the water supply in many places. At Coel, according to Conductor Bender, the railroad water tank is empty and many domestic wells in that neighborhood are dry. Ladies don't cook Friday and Saturday. Buy chicken, cakes and pies at the Catholic ladies food sale at the old Minor grocery store. W. T. Matlock returned from Chicago Sunday evening where he shipped his 1922 crop of lambs. He found a good market in the Windy City, receiving from $13.50 to $13.75 for his stock. Dale Watkins, former Heppner boy now residing at Irrigon, is now recovering from a severe attack of typhoid fever. S. E. Notson is at the coast this week where he will spend some time for the benefit of his health. We learn from the Boardman Mirror that Sam H. Boardman and family, real pioneers of the Boardman country, are contemplating leaving that place but the Mirror does not say where they are going. Boardman will lose one of her best citizens and most consistent boosters when S. H. moves away.

VESSELS BUILT IN SECTIONS

Ships Intended for Operation on Lakes Far Inland Are Now Transported Piece-meal.

A well-known shipbuilding firm in the north of England is at the present time building a vessel which will be carried to Africa in portions. It will be reassembled at its ultimate destination. Every year ships are built in Great Britain for use on lakes and inland waters in all parts of the world. Usually these are built and bolted together in the shipyard before being taken to pieces and sent to distant parts in separate packages. A large invasion steamer built some years ago for use on Lake Nyassa, in Africa, was erected in England as if for launching. But no rivets were used; bolts and nuts held the steel framework together. The sides, port and starboard, were painted in different colors, and every bar, plate, and piece of steelwork bore a different number and letter. Thus the builders in Africa could tell at a glance whether a plate belonged to one side or the other; the exact position it was intended to occupy was denoted by the reference number and letter. In order to facilitate transport, this steamer was divided into over three thousand packages, each of which weighed from half a hundredweight to five hundredweights.

The greatest difficulty encountered in sending these ships abroad is with the boilers and masts. The boilers weigh many tons, and the masts are difficult to handle on account of their length.

Chair Once Used by Primate Bramhall Restored to Place in Cathedral at Armagh.

An ancient chair which was dedicated recently at Armagh (Ireland) cathedral by the primate was a great find, being the oak chair belonging to Primate Bramhall, who came into office shortly after Cromwell's time. For many years efforts have been made to trace the chair, but it was only a few weeks ago that it was discovered to be in the hands of a well-known London expert. The chair was submitted to a famous antiquarian who at once identified it with the result that it has returned to its original home—the cathedral. At the top of the chair is carved a large eye—the all-seeing eye; beneath it a crown after a mitre, and under that the arms of the See of Armagh. Under this is the true cross, and below it again 1061—the date on which Archbishop Bramhall was enthroned. On the last panel are the capital letters, "M.R.H.," standing for Armagh.

To Honor Noted Frenchman.

The French Academy of Sciences has been officially informed that Switzerland is preparing to commemorate the centenary of the great French mechanician and watchmaker, Abraham Louis Breguet. Born in Neuchatel in 1747, member of the Institut and Bureau of Longitudes, he died in Paris in 1823. The astronomical and nautical instruments invented by Breguet were noted for the perfection of their workmanship. His improvements in watches included the use of rubies in pivot holes. He fled to London during the Reign of Terror, but returned after the ninth Thermidor. On the occasion of this centenary the Swiss council of state will hold next year an international competition for chronometers in the observatory of Neuchatel.

Gone Beyond Repair.

I was returning on the electric train late one day from a long hike with my geology class. We were tired, and in getting our seats I pushed with my foot the back of the seat in front so that we could face each other.

I heard a crash, and with dismay saw I had knocked to the floor a bag which was on the seat. The owner promptly appeared on the scene with what seemed to me undue anxiety. I apologized for my act, adding that no harm seemed to have been done to his bag.

His perturbation was explained when he announced in a loud voice, "Young man, there are eggs in that bag!"—Exchange.

King Admires Shakespeare.

The king of Siam is one of the outspoken admirers of Shakespeare. This was learned through the recent anniversary celebrations at Stratford, when a letter was received by the chairman of the trustees of Shakespeare's birthplace, written by the king's secretary, who says that the king is translating Shakespeare's works into Siamese. The secretary sent on behalf of the king a check for $500 as a personal contribution to the Shakespeare Birthplace Trust and $250 for the memorial theater fund. He says that his majesty is an ardent admirer of the British national poet and is doing his utmost to induce the Siamese to study him.

Harmony of Colors.

It is a well-known fact that a pleasing harmony of colors attracts the eye much as musical harmony pleases the ear. In order to test the harmony of color combinations, a machine has been devised, described and illustrated in the Popular Mechanics Magazine, with which a colored disk is revolved rapidly so as to cause the colors to merge, and this visual mixing of the colors gives the same result to the eye as would the actual mixing of the colored inks themselves.
