

PROMINENT PORTLAND EDUCATOR IS HONORED

JOSEPH A. HILL

At a recent meeting of representatives of several non-sectarian and Protestant private schools held in Portland, Joseph A. Hill, president of Hill Military Academy, was elected executive secretary of a permanent organization formed on that occasion. Mr. Hill, in addressing the delegates, said: "Our private schools are endangered by the measure known as the 'compulsory educational bill,' which will come before the voters this November. We have given our best thought and effort and years of untiring devotion to the cause of education and now all our work would be swept away in the flood that is directed at the private schools. Oregon already has a compulsory educational law. Why should this new measure be necessary? Private schools such as the Hill Military academy and others on the list of those to be affected use practically the same books and courses of study as do public schools. But we have smaller classes and can give more individual attention to the pupils. To do away with our schools would be to increase the taxpayers' burdens materially for it would take millions of dollars to build extra public schools, equip them and provide them with teachers. In addition it would destroy the means of living of hundreds of our teachers and employes. We teach Americanism most loyally and our patriotic exercises daily inspire our pupils with pride in their country and a respect for authority."

What Tom Marshall Says

"I have an old-fashioned notion that in a government where freedom of religion is guaranteed to the citizen, as the father of a child, I have a right to train it along the lines of my own religious belief."

"I doubt that any officer, however gifted and high-minded he may be, can have a tenderer regard for my child than I myself possess, that he can more sincerely desire his health, happiness and success."—Former Vice President Thomas R. Marshall in the Chicago Daily News, January 14, 1922.
