WORK OR CRACK ROCK

Portland has declared war on the L. W. W. agitators.

450 have been arrested and consigned to rock pile to work out 90-day sentences on vagrancy charges. Rock pile sentences followed their refusal to move out of Portland where they have been non-resident participants in water front strikes.

Now the call has gone out from Wobbly headquarters for all "1922 loose" members of the L.W.W. to go to Portland.

A friendly warning to the Wobbly is to stay away from Portland for the mayor, the police department and the governor of Oregon have made it clear that the special brand of agitation peddled by the L.W.W. is not wanted in Portland or Oregon.

If you don't want to go to work at peaceful occupations and cease trouble making, keep out of Oregon, in the warning sent out, or you will land on the rock pile.

GILLIAM & BISBEE'S COLUMN

Come and get the county agent's machine for the dry treatment of your seed wheat with copper carbonate. The work is done correctly and economically. Get your order in early as it takes some time to make one.

We have sold all kinds of grain drills but have decided that the Kentucky Double Run feed is the best suited for this territory. Come in and look them over for yourself.

The Revolving Rod Weeders are the ones that get the weeds.

If you are going to use the dry treatment for your seed wheat you cannot afford to pass up the Calkins machine.

FARMERS MUST HAVE RELIEF AT ONCE IS PLEA

The farmers will not harvest a heavy crop this fall. They didn't last fall, nor the fall before. It has been some years since this section has produced a big crop. When the prices were the highest the crop was the shortest. The farmer has been hooping a hard row, says the Harrisburg, Oregon, Bulletin.

There has been talk of relief, but where it is coming from is not clear. Up to this time the farmer has not had any substantial encouragement. He may have borrowed money from the government. Heretofore he borrowed from the insurance companies. The difference in the interest rates has not offset the increase in taxes by even a perceptible degree.

But there is encouragement for the farmer. The real, practical farmer can chuckle to himself, but the chuckle will have a rattle to it that sooner or later will be heard inside the mahogany furnished offices of every city concern. With the squeeze that the farmer is experiencing he knows that when he cannot longer meet his bills the typewriters will cease to click in the city and the wheels of industry will rest and rust.

The farmer feels that he is a producer. He works at it from daylight till dark. He keeps about him stock and implements all calculated and designed to produce. His employees are not eight-hour men; they bend their backs to hard toil longer hours than any class of tradesmen and are often subject to extra duty in the dead of night with no thought of extra pay. It is in the rural atmosphere to be producers. They grow up that way in the rural home where every member of the family automatically becomes a producer from the day the little mud learns to work the churn dasher and the barefoot lad drives the big team out in front of the barn.

The old man has a right to chuckle when he contemplates what the world would do without him. That he does not actually undertake to place designs of this nature into effect is entirely to his credit. The spirit of revenge is not his. While he realizes that the men who sit around in easy chairs, oozing away to the influences of electrically driven fans, are able to exist because of the long hours and the hard work which is done on the farm, he realizes also that there is rarely a word of praise on the lips of the city-bred for the works of the producer. The farmer sees the luxury and idleness of the city. Where the farmer has around him an equipment to produce the essentials of life, the city man is surrounded with equipment to amuse, to entertain and to satisfy his demand for shorter hours and less work.

When hard times come to the rural districts it is then that the manipulators who have always existed off the farmers' effort become the busiest. They scheme to lower the markets, the great ambition being to control a commodity of some kind. They would turn heaven and earth upside down if they could accomplish their ends. If the farmer attempts to organize for his self protection the city manipulators press a button or two and the works are gummed.

The farmer will not be content always with these conditions. He must have relief. When after years he sees no prospect ahead but to meet his taxes and the interest on his loans, when he becomes convinced that the non-producers are the ones who enjoy life the most and fare the best, then he will apply the test. He may be satisfied today with the chuckle. Tomorrow he may grow grim.

MOTOR LICENSE POINTERS

Application blanks for 1923 licenses have been mailed by the Secretary of State to all motor vehicle owners in Oregon, so as to permit them to apply for and receive such licenses before January 1, 1923. Motor vehicle owners will avoid much trouble, annoyance and unnecessary delay by promptly applying for their 1923 licenses upon receipt of the application blanks. Deferring applying for licenses until about the first of the year only congests the work of the Secretary of State's office and may result in the arrest of the car owners by traffic officers for failure to have the 1923 license on their cars after January 1st next. License plates for 1923 will have a dark blue background and white figures and letters.

Up to October 27, 1922, there have been registered and licensed in Oregon 536 motor vehicle dealers, 11,894 chauffeurs, 211,496 motor vehicle operators, 31162 motorcycles and 131,834 passenger and commercial cars, from which the total license fees, aggregate $3,207,073.98. The fees, less administrative expenses, are distributed one-fourth to the counties from which the registrations are received and three-fourths to the state highway fund for use in road construction and improvement throughout the state generally. The distribution of the registrations up to September 15, 1922 shows that in Morrow county there were registered 5 motor vehicle dealers, 42 chauffeurs, 125 motor vehicle operators, 7 motorcycles, 802 passenger cars, 1 busses and stages, 13 commercial cars of less than one-ton capacity, 73 trucks of from one to five tons capacity or a total of 889 licensed passenger and commercial motor vehicles.

SAFE-GUARDING PUBLIC REVENUES

In the agitation for tax reduction, regulating the spending of public funds is of paramount importance.

Much agitation has developed for an amendment of our state laws which will require advertising for bids on all public work or supplies, in all counties, instead of merely counties of 50,000 inhabitants or over as the law reads at present, which makes it applicable to Multnomah county only in the state of Oregon.

Any large private corporation takes bids before making its purchases. Why should not county courts which spend hundreds of thousands of dollars annually be required to advertise openly through regularly circulated newspapers when asking contracts on construction work or for supplies?

While the intentions of our county officials in doing the work by the county without asking for bids, are undoubtedly the highest, it is not reasonable to suppose that such officials with no previous training in the expenditure of the hundreds of thousands of dollars required in public work are qualified to be the sole judges when it comes to determining prices of goods, etc.

Certainly no harm could come from the competition which would result in advertising for bids while much harm and loss can come to taxpayers from the present system which permits the buying of supplies and doing of work in every county except Multnomah without the competition of public bidding.

An amendment to the present state law so that it would apply to all counties in addition to Multnomah would not be a tax-raiser, it would be a tax-saver to every county in the state.

To live to be a hundred and have nothing to show for it but old age isn't worth the effort.
