

GOOD NEWS FOR EVERYBODY.

Here's some good news for everybody in and around Heppner that want to have some sort of pleasant and harmless diversion during the long winter season. As Miller and Loden Mikesell, two of our live wire young citizens, have leased the pavilion and plan on giving a dance every week during the winter. Mr. Miller has been giving dances occasionally for some time and has established a reputation for giving only first-class affairs. As will be seen by their advertising matter their first dance will be given December 19th and they also plan to give Christmas and New Year dances.

MOHAIR GROWERS PROFITTED BY CO-OPERATION

The Pacific Co-operative Wool Growers has just closed the spring pool of mohair and according to a report recently given out by R. A. Ward, general manager of the concern, the members of the pool received an average of 10 cents a pound more for their product than the growers on the outside. Members of the pool are well pleased with the results shown in the past two years and it is expected the membership will increase rapidly.

HEPPNER LIBRARY IS PRAISeworthy CONCERN

While looking for a news story the other day a Herald reporter dropped into the Heppner Library for a chat with the librarian, Mrs. L. G. Herren, acting on the hunch that there might be something of interest hidden away there.

The library is handled by Mrs. Herren, having been placed there a year or so ago in order to make the books more accessible to the public both as regards location and open hours. Formerly the library was located up stairs in the Humphreys building and was open only for an hour or so one afternoon each week. The change met instant approval from the public and the patronage has increased rapidly.

While the library is not a pretentious institution it is filling an important place in the community, according to Mrs. Herren. It is well to remember that the library was completely wiped out by the fire a few years ago and the books now on hand have been collected since that time.

The library now contains about one thousand volumes, including fiction, history, boys' and girls' reference. The reference works include about 50 volumes, of which two sets of encyclopedias and the latest edition of Webster's dictionary are important parts.

Children's books, for boys and girls of from six to twelve years, are represented by only about 20 volumes, and Mrs. Herren says no other department is in greater need of more books.

Patrons of the library are by no means confined to residents of Heppner but include many families scattered throughout the entire territory adjacent to the town. About 25 books are taken out and returned every day and on the occasion of the reporter's visit there were, by actual count of the card files, more than 350 books in the hands of patrons.

"The library is surely meeting a great need in the community," Mrs. Herren told the reporter, "even in its present incomplete condition, and what we most need is more books. So many people come in," the librarian continued, "and ask for new books, declaring they have read and in some cases re-read, every book on the shelves."

The lack of money with which to buy new books is the problem, however, as it is just now in every line of human endeavor.

A plan that has been suggested by some of the ladies who make up the library association is that if funds can only be secured to buy a few new books—say about 25 or 50—that these new books could be placed on a special shelf and a small fee, 5 or 10 cents, charged for their use until the original cost of the books is returned and then these books would be placed on the free shelves and the money invested in new books to be similarly rented until the cost is returned. The idea is the "revolving fund" plan and should work well in such a case. It is understood the city authorities are considering giving some financial help to the library for the coming year and it is to be hoped their plans will be carried out. The idea has also been advanced that, inasmuch as a large number of the patrons are outside the town that the county authorities might well invest a small amount in helping get the revolving fund started.

Donations of books—or money with which to buy books—are always in order and will be gladly received, the librarian told the reporter as he left the store and he can think of no better thought to leave with the reader in ending this story.
