THOUGHT THEY WERE NOT WANTED

Referring to the letter from "A Farmer's Wife," and the editorial commenting on the same subject which was printed in our last week's issue, the Herald has been informed that at least some of the business men of Heppner seem to be under the impression that these meetings of farmers are intended exclusively for farmers and that the people of the towns are not wanted.

The only interest the Herald has in the matter is to aid in promoting the most friendly and helpful relations between the farmers and stockmen and the people of the towns. Our interests are mutual and our business and social relations should be of the best. What is needed is a real spirit of co-operation among all of the people of Morrow county for only by and through such a spirit can any community attain its best development.

If the business men and townspeople are welcome and their presence desired at the farmers' gatherings—and the Herald is convinced that they are—the leaders of the Farm Bureau and other representative farmers should lose no time in making it known and extending a standing invitation to their town neighbors to join with them in trying to solve the many problems which must be solved before Morrow county can get back to the place where she belongs.

FRIENDSHIP GROVE NEW IDEA

May Be Carried Out as Easily in Small City as This Man Does on Farm.

A farmer living only a few miles from here has a lot of pleasure and gives many of his friends an enjoyable afternoon or evening by planting a tree for a member of the party. He believes in recognizing the friend before he dies. The wife of this farmer enters into the spirit of tree planting and enjoys having the friends gather at their home and plant a tree for a friend. The occasion not only furnishes the opportunity for good friends to get together and have a good time, but also stimulates tree planting in the community.

The friendship grove makes it easy to honor one's friends. Dwellers on small city lots may say that this cannot be done. There is no reason why it is necessary to use trees. A peony plant named for a friend may not be as stately as a tree, but the glowing flower of the peony will always remind you of the high qualities of the friend. In America friendship groves and gardens will give much happiness and add value to property.—Chicago Evening Post.

CLING TO NATURAL BEAUTY

Too Many Cities Allow Picturesque Spots to Disappear as the Place Grows in Size.

Minneapolis is one city where natural scenery is interspersed through its residence sections. Fortunately, those lakes were too large and deep to drain and "lay out in town lots." Kansas City also found on her town-site such ravines. The real estate world gave them up, and they were turned into parkways. Penn Valley park being mostly a depression is now one of the most picturesque features to be found in any city in America.

Chicago has had nothing to utilize for beauty except her lakes, and she is making the most of that, "taking over" practically the whole shore line and amplifying it so that there will be a lake shore park from the river almost to the southern city limits.

St. Louis has preserved in Forest park her finest hill, and the Mississippi river still has many possibilities as a scenic northern limit—near the water works.

Every city has to study its topography and develop its natural beauties and to keep them from disappearing.

District Attorney for Morrow County, Oregon, and Attorney for Plaintiff.

Address: Heppner, Oregon.

Concentrate on Home.

An American editor says: "All effort, all reasonable expenditure, all devotion and loyalty should be concentrated on making the home worthy of every good instinct, every ambition, every justifiable form of family pride."

So to Speak.

An author, paying his first visit to married acquaintance, asked the name of a sprightly little girl whose winning ways had attracted his attention.

"We call her Ella," said the child's mother.

"That is a good name," remarked the author. "It has been made classic by Charles Lamb."

"Well, to tell the truth," explained the lady, "her name is Cornelia, but it's easier to call her Ella."

"I see," the caller rejoined. "It is the painless extraction of a corn!"

Who Wants This Trade?

We have for exchange a fire-proof building in the heart of the business section of one of the best towns in eastern Oregon, now bringing in a rental of $8,000.00 a year and under a ten-year lease.
