GRAND ARMY VETERANS GROWING FEW IN NUMBER

Rawlins Post, No. 31, G. A. R., will observe Memorial Sunday and Decoration Day again this year in memory of their comrades who have gone across the Great Divide to pitch their last camp on the mystic shore beyond the Dark River.

Rawlins Post has upon its roster the names of about 80 veterans who played their part in the stirring drama of war back in the '60s but time has made heavy inroads on their ranks until today the names of but nine of the "Boys Who Wore the Blue" remain on the roll. These are B. F. Devore and Henry Warren, of Hardman; Harris, of Parkers Mill; Newton Whetstone, Andrew Hood, sr., and J. C. Ball, Heppner; C. A. Low, of Ione; Oscar Burch, of Lyle, Washington, and Moyer, of Lexington. Mr. Moyer is now an inmate of the national home in California, but he usually returns to Heppner for Decoration Day and to visit with his relatives, comrades and friends. "END OF THE TRAIL" RANCH

They named it "End of the Trail" because when they bought it and moved there they decided that it was to be their permanent home and that moving day was in the discard for them. We are speaking of Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Minor's fine ranch home three miles below Ione.

Mr. and Mrs. Minor bought the ranch, which comprises 1400 acres of creek bottom, wheat and range land, some three years ago when it was not making taxes and interest and in that short time and through the period of depression, they have already put the place on a self-supporting basis besides making many improvements.

The place is ideal for a ranch home and is capable of producing almost everything required for a comfortable living. All kinds of fruit grows in abundance in the orchard and the garden is a living in itself.

Mr. Minor is a born stockman and farmer and he takes real pleasure in making two blades of grass grow where only one grew before. Since buying the place he has built two miles of ditch through a sand blow where many old timers declared it could not be done and has the water running and the young alfalfa growing on several acres of former sand dunes.

Mr. Minor specializes in sheep and early mutton lambs and he knows the game so well that he is making a success of the business. He is also branching out into wheat farming on the upland portion of his ranch and within a few years the Minors will have one of the show places of the county. A valuable asset on their ranch is the fine grove of cottonwood or balm trees right back of the house on the bank of Willow creek. The grove is a real beauty spot and aside from that it has furnished all the fuel needed on the ranch for years and every year the trees gain over the wood chopper.

UMATILLA WOOL SOLD

Pendleton. — Umatilla county's wool clip for 1923 of close to 1,300,000 pounds is reported sold. Deals involving the Fred W. Falconer and associate interests and the Smythe brothers were made this week. The price ranges between 40 and 44 cents, between five and seven cents better than that of last year. With the quality of the wool better than last season, buyers have been eager to get the clips.

A check on the sales shows that 40 per cent of the clip went to Portland firms and 60 per cent to Boston. Only a few scattered clips of small amount are left in the entire county. Some of the clips have been delivered but in some camps shearing is only now well under way. The clip in this county is slightly less than that of last year, according to Mac Hoke, secretary of the Oregon Wool Growers' association. Nearly $500,000 is involved in the county clip.

PA ASKITT "HELPS" TOMMY

Doubtful, However, if He Added Much to the Youngster's Store of Useful Knowledge.

"Pa, there's an airplane," he announced. "Yes, Thomas," said Pa Askitt, absently. "Don't touch it!"

When he picked up the novel from beneath the geography book where he had hidden it, ma chanced to look up.

"What are you reading, Thomas?" she asked quickly.

"My geog—I mean er—this." There was nothing to do but show it.

"Give it to me!" said ma, sternly. Pa looked up.

"So, that's what you read instead of doing your lessons, heh?" he said frowningly. "Boy, get on your lesson this instant, or I'll give you a taste of the strap!"

"You can help him, William," suggested ma.

"I can't—I got—"

"O, yes, you can, too. Just help him with his lessons. Somebody must do it, and I'm too busy," said ma, with finality.

"O, darn it, come along then and be mighty quick about it!" said pa crossly. "Now, what the deuce do you spell bank with a big B for?"

"Well, don't you always say that a bank is no good unless it has a large capital?" reminded Tommy.

Pa said nothing but ma sneered.

"Say, pa, what are three articles containing starch?"

"Why, er, a collar and two cuffs," answered pa.

Tommy looked doubtful about writing it down and took the safest course. He didn't.

"Why have words roots, pa?"

"Words have roots because how else could they grow?" and pa smiled the smile of the wiselheimer.—Detroit Free Press.
