

STOCKMEN TO FORM SALES ASSOCIATION

CATTLE TO BE SOLD THROUGH CENTRAL ORGANIZATION

Beef to Be Given Market in Quantities Needed So That Prices Will Not Break

Union, Oregon.—Readjustment of freight rates for the northwest shippers of livestock and an immediate forming of the Oregon & Idaho stockmen into an organization which will control and distribute over a week's period, from a centralized point, the shipments to Seattle and Portland stockyards, will be undertaken by the Oregon Association of Cattle and Horsemen, as the result of official action taken at the close of their 10th annual convention here today. These two measures, it is believed, will stabilize the cattle market and prevent disastrous price fluctuations to the end that the great stock industry of the state and the northwest may be benefited during the present period of depression.

Never in the history of the organization has there been a convention during which the condition of the livestock industry has been more serious than this year. Noticeable in the attendance of the meeting was the bottomless cattle market, which has left a trail of bankruptcy and mortgaged stock farms in its wake throughout the great eastern Oregon and Idaho cattle sections.

With the admonition to "hang on," these men set about the business of wrestling with their problems to bring about better market conditions and have evolved from the many suggestions the orderly market plan, which, it is expected, will be of vast benefit to their industry.

"Hearty co-operation has been lacking even among the beef men," said Governor Pierce, speaking at the gathering. "Taxes have increased beyond our ability to pay, and yet frozen beef is imported to this country daily. It is my firm belief that the cattle herds, which are one-third of what they were a few years ago, must be cut another one-third before relief will be realized."

The governor advocated a co-operative plan of marketing which, he said, would prevent the injustice of the man selling a 40-cent cut from a 4-cent cow. "We like our dumb and driven animals, have stood by and must now meet the burden," he said.

The orderly marketing plan will provide for the equal distribution of cattle on the Seattle and Portland markets over the week and shipments will be directly from the various districts by the central office of the organization. The decision to demand an adjustment of freight rates came after a lengthy analysis of the rate situation, made by Arthur M. Geary, attorney for the Northwest Shippers' league of Portland, who spoke at this morning's session.

The conference idea was endorsed strongly by O. M. Plummer of Portland, who advocated that the stock men, packers, financial men and railroad representatives meet and discuss the best method of arriving at the regulation of shipments and market demand.

Bruce Dennis, state senator, spoke at the close of the session and urged support of a campaign which will further the eating of meat throughout the nation as a relief measure to the stock industry.

More than 300 stockmen gathered about the campfires in the municipal park here at 5 o'clock this morning to participate in the annual cowboy breakfast, at which real "dough gods," together with choice ham and eggs, was the menu. Participating were the veterans of the industry and among them Colonel William Hanley, picturesque stockman of Burns, and Charles Becker of Westfall, last survivor of the old pony express riders and a staunch friend of the late "Buffalo Bill."

William Pollman of Baker was elected president of the association for the tenth consecutive term at the meeting, and the following officers were re-elected from last year: F. A. Phillips, first vice-president; William Doby, treasurer; S. O. Correll, secretary. Members of the organization will be the guests of the Union Stock Show.

Dryies in readgear Include Floral Trim

Each week now in Paris brings its full quota of new spring bonnets.

Generally speaking, preference for floral trim is given to flat, many-petaled silk flowers suitable for applique, although novelties in kid, in wool velours, in metal and in stiff lacquered silks are in the market.

In ribbons, everything from the narrowest shoe string type to ribbon in eight or twelve-inch widths is in vogue in plain weaves, in fancy weaves, in changeable effects, and embroidered, printed or scalloped.

Trimmings for the most part meander along at their own sweet will at the front, and the back, at the sides, under the brim, at the top of the brim, at the base or at the top of the crown, according to the shape of the hat and the caprice of the milliner.

Brimms for the most part are very irregular in line this season, and are cut, slashed, notched, rolled or drooped sometimes wide at front and short at the back, and sometimes the reverse; namely, wide at the back and short across the front and sides. The basic principle of construction is, however, for a line short at the back and wide at the front.

Crowns still show a surprising determination to rise to untold—in any case to unbecoming—heights; but hand in hand with these new high-crowned shapes are shapes with soft, supple, squatty sectional crowns just deep enough to take care of the top of the head.

In colors, bright emerald green, soft shades of dull blue Persian greens and bright gentian blue make their bow as the latest novelty shades, while black, shell and blond, alone and in combination, still represent the popular demand. Black hats with a multi-colored trim and hats in a two-tone combination—a light and a dark shade of the same color—are both conspicuous.

There is still a pronounced feeling for metal used for brim facings or for metal used on straw or fabric hats.—Paris Letter to the Dry Goods Economist.

MUMMIES HAVE TOLD MUCH

Scientific Research Proves That Ancient Egyptians Suffered From Many "Modern" Diseases.

While we do not know just what were the seven plagues of Egypt, we do know that a good many of the diseases of today were present among the Egyptians of Tut-Ankh-Amen's time and earlier. Hardening of the arteries, for example, we have come to blame more or less on the drive and worry of modern life, yet the arteries of mummies buried 3,500 years ago show the plaques and deposits of lime salts typical of arteriosclerosis in all its stages.

We owe much of our knowledge of disease among the early Egyptians to the late Sir Marc Ruffer, president of the sanitary and quarantine council of Egypt during the last years of his life. By means of special solutions for softening and preserving the dried tissues of the mummies, he was able to prepare thin sections of the various organs and study them under the microscope. Owing to the common method of preparing the mummies, which consisted of the removal of most of the internal organs through an opening cut in the left flank, and repacking them after cleaning with sand or rags or, rarely, myrrh and incense, diseases of the organs themselves have not been easy to identify. The organs were replaced bit or miss, as a rule, regardless of where they belonged. Thus in one mummy Ruffer found the kidneys tucked away where the heart belonged, while that organ had crowded out the liver. Such diseases as affect the bones are easily studied, however.

GLOBE-TIMES SMILES AT HEPPNER WOOL STORY

(Condon Globe-Times) A news dispatch from Heppner, in the Daily Oregonian, last Saturday, says 2,400,000 pounds of wool was sold at Heppner last Friday for $1,056,000.

The article says the sale consisted of 24,925 fleeces, which makes the average weight of the fleeces around 100 pounds which is rather heavy—even for Heppner fleeces.

The writer of the dispatch, the telegraph operator, the linotype operator, or the "re-write" man on the Oregonian added just a cipher too many—which gives Morrow county sheep the record for heavy fleeces.

Famous Ballad Singer Coming to Chautauqua

Sam Lewis, Dramatic Tenor, Believes Americans Want Their Music in Language They Understand.

Sam Lewis, the prominent Welsh Tenor, and one of the most popular ballad singers in America, has little patience with the concert singer who tries to "foist foreign languages on Americans." Mr. Lewis says: "I believe the time is not far off when American audiences are going to demand more singing in a language they can understand. Personally I never sing even one group in a foreign tongue unless it is specifically requested." Mr. Lewis has made rapid strides in the music world of late years. He is appearing again this season at the head of his own company. Assisting artists are Marie Colliton, pianist and accompanist; Allen Arment, violinist; and Neil Adams, tenor.
