Famous Lawyer's Will Contains Flaws

FEW YORK.-Francis Lynde of Grover Cleveland and intimate friend and personal counsel of the late J. Pierpont Morgan. was one of the best-known corporation Jawyers in America when he died in 3920, but the will disposing of his $3,-B46,838 estate had flaws which made it contrary to the statutes of New York state. Mr. Stetson willed more than half of his estate to Williams college, Williamstown, Mass, whereas the laws of this state provide that a testator may not leave more than half of his estate to charity or institutions.

That certain sections of the will were contrary to the law became known when the executors applied to the surrogate for a judicial settlement of the estate. The executors reported that all but $7.500 of the property had send government $190,000 in inheritbeen settled. Through a special set. since taxes. thement among the beirs. Lighting Fixtures to Make a Bedroom Cozy It does not conduce to the comfor of the family if there is only one good duce in the living room where one may read under a strong light. For each number of the household there should be at least one place to read or worl during the evening. If the heads of amilies would give more consideration to this sort of thing, there would not be so much difficulty in keeping our roung people satisfied to stay at home. People as well as cats are strongly appealed to by comfort. Yet so many parents seem to think that boys and girls should be satisfied with "any old condition" simply because it is within the "sacred precincis" of home,

In our planning for real comfort do not overlook those who are hired to help with work. In most kitchens there are two sockets, one in the cellng, and one over the sink. To be sure, a kitchen is a place for work rather than for recreation, but even the busiest cook must have some time when she can read the newspaper or a book. The mere fact that the cook's comfort is provided for will insure better-cooked meals than if she is disregarded in this respect. In the placing of sockets suppose we begin with the negative side of the matter first. For there are some places in houses where builders persistently place lights that can, in general be made no use of, One of these places is over a radiator, During the cold evenings when the radiator is in service no one can sit near enough to it to make use of the light for reading. In the average ouse, celling lights are not nearly so effective nor so practical as those on the walls. There is one exception to this and that is in the dining room. Here, if both cannot be had one socket in the celling over the table is preferable. In the living room never place a light in the center of the wall over the mantel piece. In the bath-room, if only one light is used it should not be placed in the ceiling. If a hall-way is very narrow wall lights should not be used.

Footgear for Women's Day and Evening Wear

There are suede shoes for morning that are flat heeled and sensible looking. These are excellent with the onepiece morning frock. Then there are the gray and brown suede shoes for afternoon which, with stockings to match, look most interesting when combined with the thinner afternoon frocks. And then there are the brocaded and metal cloth slippers for evening wear which conform so nicely with the simple lines and markings of the onepiece dresses for the later hours of the Remember always that they should be kept in simple design-not too many straps and cuttings and trimmings and buckles and inserts. The plainer they are the better and the more perfectly they will carry out the iden established by the marking and design of the one-piece dress that you happen to be wearing. There is no place in this scheme of things to indulge in funcineases of any sort. Everything should be as plain and unadorned as the design of the dress would indi-

Evolution of the Cupboard. Pollow the slow stages of development, if you will, of the simple board braced against the wall to the modern kitchen cabinet. Examine these latter if you are building your own home and you will perhaps find them better suited to the purpose and not costing more than built-in cupboards. If a built-in cupboard is to be equipped with the same conveniences as has the cabinet then the latter is much less emenable. There are a number of different kinds of these cabinets

Darning Ball, An old tennis ball with outer covering gone is an excellent darning ball. It is much better than a regular darming ball, as it holds the stocking in

Walls and Furniture Both Plain and Artful

"If the wall paper of a room is of brilliant design, then the draperies preferably should be of a plain color and of a color that will echo with some color in the wall paper design," says William Dallas Campbell, national expert on interior decorating and arrangement.

"If there is a bit of yellow in the design that strikes your fancy, pick a similar shade for the draperies. If the draperies be of an outstanding design. pick wall paper of a shade that will echo with a color in the drapery,

"Color, color, color and more color, is one essential element of a dining room, color and light. The colors used, however, must not jar, must not awaken one too rudely to face a new day, but must cheer, must be artistic, comforting.

"The breakfast room should have one large window, at least, to let in the morning light, to fill the room with the spirit of freshness and good cheer."

How Braid Trimmings Should Be Handled

Before cutting braid which is likely to fray, twist cotton tightly around it and cut just below the part so tled. It is advisable to run a thread once or twice across the end of cut braid to prevent it unraveling and spreading of the scaspa. Heat registering 103 deput of shape when the cut edge is grees in the shade at Cecil. Monday, being turned under, When binding cost edges with braid tack on both sides before sewing it down with nent stitches, and then from over with a damp cloth. When applying braid to a round or looped design, sew down the outer edge first; afterward the fullness on the inner edge can be arranged to fall neatly in place.
