

Pana Proud of Its Big Rose Gardens

PANA, ILL.—Illinois' greatest rose garden is located here. No other city, perhaps, in all the world produces as many. During the busy seasons 40,000 to 80,000 are shipped every day. More than twenty acres of greenhouses, sheltering several million plants and with an annual production of 10,000,000 to 15,000,000 roses comprise this great industry of floriculture.

Rose experts are at a loss to know whether it is the soil, air or water that is responsible for the excellence of the roses that are produced here. The greenhouses are the largest in the world. Some of them contain 100,000 plants. Over $1,000,000 is invested.

There are perhaps twenty-five or more miles of steam pipes in some of the larger groups of houses. It is imperative that a uniform temperature of 61 to 71 degrees be maintained to secure the best results. The larger structures are 90 feet in width with a length of 400 feet. There are four companies engaged in the rose production and each has certain specialties.

Repeated hybridization has created many of the most beautiful specimens of roses. It is claimed that the average plant here will yield 80 perfect buds, while elsewhere the usual yield is but 20. A large number of the best-selling roses are thornless. The average life of a rose plant is three years. They are then destroyed and replaced with new. The roses that are grown for commercial purposes bloom winter and summer. Many of these originated from grafted stock in the marsh lands of the British Isles. The roses are gathered while in bud each morning and afternoon and shipments are usually made at night so as to reach their destination the following morning. The roses that are particularly tender are gathered while the bud is tight, so as to insure safe shipment.

Carbonic ice machines furnish refrigeration for many of the cut flowers where it is necessary to "harden" them at a temperature of 45 degrees for 12 hours to prolong the time before wilting.

So insatiable is the demand for roses that before the year is over the annual production may aggregate 25,000,000 roses with 30 acres of green-red from asserting any claim in or to said premises, or any part thereof, adverse to the plaintiff herein, and for such other and further relief as may be equitable and just.
