finds it hard to tear himself away. He is still here. Mr. Huddleston thinks the committee should have presented him with a flowery shirt and a big hat for the show and a partner for the nighty dances. He is still single but is in the matrimonial market with both feet.

C. A. Minor, who has been spending several weeks at the Minor & Krebs ranch at Cecil, was a visitor at the Rodeo last week and enjoyed the show immensely. Mr. Minor has been in poor health for a year or so but is now improving rapidly and his friends hope to see him soon restored to his usual health. Time was when "Art" Minor was second to nobody in these parts as a rider of all sorts of horses and the broncho busting last week made him fairly itch to again get in the saddle and plant his spurs where they would get the best results in action.

COPPER CARBONATE BEST

According to reports received from various sections of the Northwest where copper carbonate was used this past year this treatment has been more successful in controlling smut than bluestone or formaldehyde. Even in the bad smut section of the Palouse country in Washington there was approximately 4 per cent less smut where copper carbonate was used than where bluestone was used. Some of the tests put out the past year has indicated that where the grain is visibly smutty an increase in the amount of copper carbonate used gives better results. While it is not advised, in this section, to plant badly smutted grain, H. P. Barsa, plant pathologist of the Oregon Agricultural college, recommends that where wheat to be treated with copper carbonate is visibly smutted it should be treated with three ounces per bushel instead of two. The advantage may not be very great but there is a definite probability of better smut control especially in the fall planting. If your seed is free of ball smut and had very little smut in it this year two ounces of a good grade of copper carbonate per bushel is enough. It is essential that a good grade of copper carbonate be used and that it be coated thoroughly over each kernel. Practically all of the cases where copper carbonate did not give good results the past year were due to a poor grade of material or to improper mixing.—R. W. Moore.

WHEAT 'SURPLUS' NEWSPAPER TALK SAYS BIG OFFICIAL

The Department of Agriculture of the State of Washington, in its official News Letter, states that the combined wheat crop of Canada and the United States is 87,000,000 bushels less than last year, and that the bottom of the fake about a tremendous surplus should have 'fallen out' by this time. It says the millers are quietly taking all the hard wheat offered at substantial premiums over Board of Trade quotations, leaving nothing but soft wheat for the elevators. The publication states that when the exporters come into the market to get the wheat that Europe must have "they will have to pay for it." The "great surplus of wheat" was a newspaper-created surplus in the interests of the grain buyers and at the expense of the American farmers. When the wheat growers control their wheat and run their own business, newspaper propaganda will not be able to put such fakes over on a nation.
