WASHINGTON SIGNS 75 PER CENT OF ALFALFA

(Continued from page one) and fruit growers of the South have pulled their industries up from loss to profit by united action. In this era of combinations and price fixing, the industry that throws its products on the market and takes the buyers' price, stands a slim chance to succeed.

The Agricultural News, Washington's state grange publication, prints a story that should sear itself into the mind of every farmer who reads it. A wheat-raising community in Canada was paying 16 cents for binder twine, when the farmers formed a co-operative company and built a twine factory and sold the same twine at 8 1-2 cents, the actual cost being 8 cents. The big machinery corporation, which had for years sold the farmers' twine, at once cut their price from 16 cents to 8 cents, one-half cent lower than the farmers' co-operative price, and this price prevailed until the farmers' factory was struck by lightning and burned, then the corporation put its price back to 16 cents. Fully insured, the farmers rebuilt their plant and again put their twine on the market at 8 1-2 cents, when the private corporation once more reduced its price from 16 to 8 cents, hoping to induce the farmers to desert their own organization by the lower price. This story illustrates the whole co-operative movement more than columns of argument could.

The potato inspection and grading law is being generally observed by growers and shippers and the sentiment over the state is very favorable to the new act. There is of course the usual opposition on the part of some to this law, as there is to any law that would guarantee a standard product. Farmers may obtain sack stencils, post paid, 25 cents each, by applying to George R. Hislop, experiment station, O. A. C., Corvallis, Oregon.

Slowly the farmers of Oregon are realizing that they must combine as other industries do. When consumers and retailers will realize that they must also combine with the producers, then will the great middle-profits and expenses be lowered to the benefit of the three classes.
