

Jacquette Is Knitted in Odd Loose Stitch

In tangerine and nickel gray, with solid gray collar, cuffs and bottom, this knitted jacquette will appeal to many young women.

More Elastic Being Used in Wearables

More and more of women's clothes are being "made on elastic," and this simple arrangement is a decided improvement over old-fashioned, complicated fastenings.

A little care and thought expended in the purchase of this very necessary little article in the first place would eliminate half of the future trouble.

The difference in the way elastics are made divides them into two types, the woven and the braided.

Wide elastics, and that used for arm bands, garters and hose supporters, are usually woven. To make this woven elastic, the warp threads of yarn, and of rubber are set up on the loom together, the rubber being stretched to equal the length of the warp threads.

In buying braided elastic, you can get either the flat or the tubular. The rubber threads run lengthwise in the flat elastic, and have the cotton covering running diagonally over and under the elastic threads.

In the round elastic the braid is tubular, with a strand of rubber running through the center; you can also buy a combination of the flat and the round called "oval elastic."

When it comes to comparing the woven and braided elastic there is one difference that should be pointed out. Woven elastic can only stretch as far as the length of the warp threads, while braided elastic stretches much farther. So you can readily see that the strain and wear on braided elastic would naturally be much greater.

Experience has proved that heat, light and grease cause rubber to deteriorate very rapidly, and a note made of that fact may be a very material factor in prolonging the life of your elastic.

Utility Coat Likely to Be Fall Favorite

Plaid fabric coats featuring, for the most part, straight lines with fur collars and cuffs, form a large group in the fall models. Another group consists of models developed in another type of utility coatings suggestive of, in the misses' sizes, a school-type of garment, and in the women's, a practical coat for all-weather.

Camel's hair cloth, plaid fabrics and in a special group plaid-back cloth form the array of mediums used for these coats, which for the most part are marked by convertible collars of generous size, with large patch pockets, such as are indispensable in the topcoat. Others are developed on straight, semi-wrap lines.

For collars, finish and of these models, boxes appearing often in the assortments.

Poke-Banner Type. A vegetable flavoured fruit of pale green color is one of the best of late young girls are wearing today. It is of the poke-banner type, but much smaller and fits very closely to the head. Usually the trimming is of flowers and fruit combined.

Evening Capes in Gay Colors. Changeable taffeta is an ideal material for evening capes.

Dozen Shows at Pacific International

An exposition is a collection of shows, more or less related by nature. The Pacific International Live Stock Exposition, held at Portland, Or., Nov. 3-10, has drawn under its ample wings a dozen of them, and there is interest for everybody in some of them.

It has a beef cattle show of great size.

Its dairy cattle show is second to none anywhere in numbers and quality.

The sheep and goat show is regarded by experts as on a par with any like show in America.

The hog show has always been excellent, and this year will be bigger than ever.

The draft horse show is representative, with five breeds of heavy horses and jacks.

The Western Winter poultry and rabbit show attracts thousands of interested spectators.

The Western dairy products show is the least spectacular and one of the most important.

The boys' and girls' clubs make a show that is the outcome of work destined to make this country a better place to live in. Don't miss seeing the work they have done.

The Land Products show, with its fruits and vegetables, grains and grasses, county and other exhibits, is one of the splendid features of the Exposition.

The latest show to come to the Pacific International is the fine Northwest Grain and Hay show, hitherto held in Pendleton. This is going to be a 1923 feature.

The Industrial Exhibits department affords a show that for beauty and value would be hard to surpass. This great department is filled with fair-like booths, showing costly furs and other raiment, beautiful furniture, every convenience a housewife needs, machinery of every sort to save labor and increase profits. Everything has its demonstration for the public. The sense of sight and the sense of smell are both appealed to, for the flour and other food products companies are doing their best to show the merits of their goods.

The Night Horse show is one of the four great horse shows in the United States. It is brilliant, exciting and delightful. Horses are coming from the Eastern states this year to show their paces in the arena and struggle for the big prizes offered.

One kind of a show isn't at the Pacific International, and never will be—the gambling concessions and other questionable amusements that rob children and sometimes grown people and leave nothing but a bad taste. The Exposition does not need that kind of shows.

der for cash in hand, all the right, title and interest of the above named defendant, in and to said lands or any part thereof, to satisfy the said execution, judgment, interest, costs and accruing costs.
