Tom Boylen Jr., of Butter creek, took tenth place at the Northwest Grain show at Portland on hard Red Winter wheat in a class of 150 entries. Due no doubt to the fact that the grain show was taken over by the International Stock show at Portland at almost the last moment, a large number of the Morrow county exhibits were sidetracked somewhere and failed to be placed on display. County Agent Morse, who attended the show reports that he tried to locate the Morrow county exhibits but was not able to do so but he says no such thing will happen next year.

Paul and Nat Webb, former well known stockmen of this county, now residents of Walla Walla, were here for a few days during the week attending business affairs and visiting with old friends. Nat, who left the bachelor ranks recently when he was married to Mrs. Ella Vale, also a former resident of this county, was kept busy receiving the congratulations of friends and passing out a fine line of cigars.

Henry Swartz entertained the Heppner football team at a chicken dinner at Hotel Heppner last evening. These chicken feeds for the team are getting too frequent and there is danger that the boys will get too fat to do good work.

C. R. Langdon, salesman for the Latourell Auto Co., returned from Boardman Sunday evening where he sold a touring car to C. H. McDaniell. He has several other sales ready to close as soon as the hay crop begins to move. Mr. Langdon says the haygrowers in that section are in pretty good shape this fall having had a good crop and are getting fair prices.

County Agent Morse went down to the sand country yesterday to look into the rabbit situation there. Stockmen report to him that rabbits are again swarming on the range and an intensive campaign of poisoning is being planned for the coming winter. Conditions were such the last two winters that poisoning was not much of a success and the pests multiplied rapidly.

She specializes in violin and band instruments and comes here with the recommendations as a proficient instructor.

Charlie Bartholomew was in from his Butter creek ranch Thursday and his mother, Mrs. Mary Bartholomew, accompanied him home. From there Mrs. Bartholomew expected to go to Portland and Estacada where she will visit a daughter for some time. She expects to be away most of the winter. E. C. Armspoker, operator at the depot, and his mother have taken her rooms for the winter.

W. G. Flett, perhaps the oldest pioneer of Gilliam county, died at his Rock creek home November 12th. He was 81 years old and had lived in eastern Oregon since 1861. He rode the range, operated pack trains and otherwise took an active part in the winning of the west. He was a man of high intelligence and was highly respected by all who knew him.

W. H. Padberg spent a couple of days in town the last of the week on business. Mr. Padberg has just finished seeding 3999 acres of wheat for his next season's crop and his neighbors say that his summer fallow was in exceptionally fine condition for seeding and that he should get a bumper crop.

Harley Anderson, who operates the big Anderson ranch on Eight-mile, was in town Saturday when he called at the Herald office. Mr. Anderson says seeding is being somewhat delayed in his section because of too much moisture. More sunshine is what is needed just now.

Ray Tracy, a former Condon boy, now drilling oil wells in Wyoming, has had a story accepted by the Youth's Companion and recently published in that paper. Mr. Tracy has been an occasional contributor to the Pacific Monthly and his stories of western life are worth reading.

Miss Nell Holsinger, of San Francisco, field representative of the Pacific division American Red Cross, arrived in Heppner Friday and is spending a few days here in the interest of the annual drive for funds for that organization.
