A GLIMPSE INTO THE FUTURE

In the February number of the American Magazine is an interesting article by H. G. Wells telling what he believes will be the great development of the coming century. In a note prefacing the article the editor of the American describes Mr. Wells as "not an idle visionary but a man of vision—which is a quite different thing." The editor bases his opinion on the fact that in his writings Mr. Wells has foreseen and foretold the invention of several of the mechanical wonders of recent years. "Without vision the people perish." Our most wonderful inventions of recent years had their beginnings in vision arising out of physical and mechanical discoveries. To the writer it seems strange that Mr. Wells should give as his conviction the belief that in the physical field there will come no new things for quite a long while; that our new discoveries are but the "blossoms of another spring whose harvest may be hundreds of years away. The turbine engine was described nineteen centuries before it became of any utility, also the primary properties of frictional electricity.

Mr. Wells then proceeds to forecast our future: As he sees it the greatest promise in the science of the present time centers about what is called psycho-analysis. All the world is passing through a phase of exceptional disintegration and reconstruction—a state of affairs that will not last. An application of the science of mental relationship will change and modify things directly and profoundly and this change is the most immediately probable thing before our race today.

In 1880 the "common fool," as Mr. Wells designates the man without vision, was quite certain that we should never for the, to him, simple but all sufficient reason that no one had ever done so and today the same type of individual is incredulous about social, political and educational development. It is possible, however, for those who have faith and vision to foretell a new release of human life to a secure and world-wide peace, to a sufficient and happy production, ample to satisfy all normal human needs, to a common life of activity and kindness, to lively interests, enterprise and hope.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

The Freshmen class has suddenly waked up and is becoming more active. A dress-up day was celebrated in fitting style by them last Friday. The girls appeared in the clumping shoes, little mustaches and other apparel of the opposite sex, while long braids or bobbed hair, high-heeled shoes, rouge and powder were much in evidence among the boys. The class attended the picture show in a body that night and rendered a handsome chorus which charmed the ears of an appreciative audience. Class sales have been very frequent recently, as times are hard and class taxes are few and far between.

"My gosh!" "He was wounded! Oh where was it?" Well it wasn't in France. It wasn't at Chateau Thierry. To be perfectly frank, it was at target practice. Well, Clarence couldn't help that, for he didn't know until afterward that he had been standing in the way of the target shots. Oh, "Clarence" is a marvel!

The Arion Literary society will put God; next Friday afternoon. Anyone wishing to attend will be welcome.

The operetta "Sylvia" will be presented by the High School some time on a program before the Student in March.

A canvass of the town will be made in March to determine the number of "Heblachs" to be printed. This year's "Heblach" will be a departure from previous issues in several ways, but there is no departure from good quality or great interest despite the reduced cost.

HEPPNER-LEXINGTON GAME

Another game for the Heppner team, against an old rival too! Heppner beat Lexington by a score of 12 to 8 on Lexington's home floor last Saturday night. The score stood 4 to 2 in Lexington's favor in the first half. It looked bad for Heppner, but in the second half, Brick Hall starred himself by his floor work and basket shooting, so that when the whistle blew for the end of the third quarter, the score was 8 to 7 in favor of Heppner. In the last quarter, Lexington succeeded in making one point while Heppner made four.

The players making the points were: for Heppner, Doherty 4, Aiken 2; Hall 6; for Lexington, Shears 2, Nichols 2, Morey 2, Carmichael 1, Wright 1.

The Lexington boys again showed their good sportsmanship. Of course they didn't like the idea of being beaten by Heppner but outside of a few, very little or nothing was said. Both teams played a clean game and fought hard to win, but Heppner managed to come out on top. Landreth of Pendleton refereed.

The line-ups were:
Lexington—Shears, r. f.; Nichols, l. f.; Morey, c.; McMillan, r. g.; Carmichael, l. g.
Heppner—Devine, r. f.; Doherty, l. f.; Aiken, c.; Moore, r. g.; Hall, l. g.

Substitutes: Heppner—Lee for Devine, Cason for Hall; Lexington—Cox for Nichols, Nichols for Morey, Wright for Carmichael, Nolan for Wright.

FARM BUREAU RESOLUTIONS

At the county convention of the Morrow County Farm Bureau held at Lexington last Saturday the following resolutions were adopted:

We, the undersigned committee on resolutions, beg to submit the following:

Be It Resolved, by the farmers of Morrow County, Oregon, in convention assembled, being three hundred farmers, in attendance, representing 900,000 bushels of wheat.

First, That we favor the McNary-Haugen Bill, believing that it will afford early relief to the wheat grower, early and effective relief being necessary to save the wheat farmer from bankruptcy.

Second, That we can see in the further extension of credits no relief to the wheat grower, the majority of whom are now laboring under as great a burden of interest payments as he can well afford to attempt to carry, his need being some remedy which will enable him to obtain such price for his product as will give him a reasonable profit, this in turn enabling him to reduce his indebtedness and relieving him of the necessity of asking for extension of credit.

Third, Since a protective tariff has been made the means of securing to other lines of industry a profit which was really remunerative, we favor such a tariff upon wheat as will save to the American farmer the home market, otherwise he should not be required to pay in what he purchases a tariff upon the things which he must have in his line of work, the farmers' position being simply that we ask for what the immortal Roosevelt styled "a square deal" so far as tariff legislation is concerned.

Fourth, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the President of the United States, to each of our representatives and senators in congress, and to each of the local papers of the county.

Be it further Resolved, That we heartily commend the work being done by the Experiment Station at Moro in solving the problems of the farmer, and we hereby express our appreciation of the assistance rendered by Director D. E. Stephens of the Moro Experiment Station and Prof. E. R. Jackman, of the Extension Service of the O. A. C., in making this meeting a success; and also extend to the other speakers our hearty thanks for their able and instructive addresses.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN

THEY CALLED HIM "HONEST ABE"

Are you honest with yourself and your children if you fail to teach them the principles of Cheerfulness, Economy and Thrift?

The First National Bank

Member of Federal Reserve

Once again we Americans honor the great Lincoln whose trials and tribulations in the days when this nation's fate hung in the balance were of such momentous proportions as would have "broken" many another man. Yet, Lincoln's constant Cheerfulness and his utmost Confidence in the future carried his aims to a successful conclusion.

Let's all try to emulate his virtues. Let us move about in our daily tasks with a Cheerfulness that bespeaks our confidence in the future and in the end—we can not help but succeed.
