THURSDAY, June 5, - - - 1913

An exchange suggests that the slogan "Swat the fly" should have a companion in "Shut up the Curs."

The suggestion is a good and timely one and the amended slogan ought to be shouted from every street corner and from every house-top by every man and woman and child. Every spellbinder, and every Fourth of July orator should proclaim it in mellifluous tones of persuasive sweetness, and thunder it in the orotund voice of command until it reverberates and re-echoes from hill to hill and from the mountains to the ends of the earth. Let it be set to music, so that every choir and glee club, every orchestra, and every brass band may make the welkin ring with the jubilant strains of "Swat the Fly," and "Shut up the Curs."

This must be a campaign of education. The American people must be made to understand the serious importance of the situation, and that now, even NOW, is the psychological moment, the time for effective action.
We have quietly tolerated the fly and the dog, already far too long. The question is, shall we persist longer in this ruinous course? Or as wise men, shall we rise in the majesty of our American manhood, and stamp out forever these foes to our liberties and health, and disturbers of our peace?

Dogs are all right in their place, but their place is pretty scarce in the town. They are interesting companions for some people, and decidedly annoying to others. Some dogs are good for one thing and some another, but the large majority of town dogs are good for nothing. When your dog is prowling around your neighbor's house at night, or running through his garden making a wallow of it, by day or scratching up his flower beds, that neighbor is inclined to say things derogatory to the character of the dog that would make you feel bad.

If you must have a dog, though living in town, shut him up, and if he makes night hideous with his untrained musical voice, confine him so that no one but you can hear him, and when it gets so that you can hear it no longer clip his tail off neatly close up behind his ears and thus become a public benefactor.

447,261 tin cans, more or less by a actual count, of all sizes, sorts and conditions, ornament the back yards and waste places; cast off stoves, paper boxes, bottles and numerous other articles of similar beauty and utility (?) patiently await the arrival of the scavenger, while the festive fly, mounted upon her throne of glory—a manure heap—beside the cess pool, watching the incubation of myriads of eggs already deposited, and the hungry mosquito chanting his merry roundelay at evening time, and the jolly little wiggle tails growing fat and "sassy" are forcible reminders that summer is near, and that something ought to be done

The law passed at the last session of the Oregon legislature, creating a state highway commission went into effect last Monday, June 3. It provides for a state engineer at a salary of $3,000 a year, and the highway commission is composed of the governor, secretary of state and state treasurer. H. L. Bowlby of Portland, former highway engineer of the state of Washington, has been appointed to the position, and is said to be an expert road builder, having a thoro knowledge of the practical work. An annual tax of one-fourth of a mill will raise about $200,000 yearly to be expended by the counties, and they to receive advice from the engineer whenever it is that necessary.

Another law that went into effect last Monday makes it a misdemeanor to sell adulterated ice cream, and that commodity is declared to be a product of pure, wholesome, sweet cream and sugar, with or without flavoring, with the addition of not to exceed one per cent by weight of milk fat, and the acidity shall not exceed 3-10 of one per cent; and sweet cream in this connection is defined to be the pure, wholesome product of cow's milk.

This is Only a Clipping.

A newspaper that believes in "toot-le one's horn," says:

"Editors are born boosters. The other day an editor was solicited to join a lodge and was handed a petition printed by a supply house. He got a don from a merchant in a government stamped envelope and written on a gargling oil statement; he made a purchase at a store and got a duplicate bill printed in Chicago, and wrote a check on a bank printed in Denver.
Ye Gods, how can an editor be expected to join lodges and pay bills for such treatment as that and at the time tell the people to trade at home?
Ever think of it? Editors have to be born boosters, prepared to live on dried herring and stand for anything."

About a year ago I was kind enough to loan my leather suit case to some friend. I would be pleased to have same returned at this time, or shall appropriate information leading to its recovery.
