STEAM ROLLERS.

With Mrs. Pankhurst out of jail again; with Roosevelt acquitted of the charge of drunkenness; with the passage of the seventeenth amendment to the constitution; the hopeless prospect of a scrap with Japan; with Jack Johnson in the pen, the Columbia river flood receding, and a reasonably good prospect for the coming harvest, what is the poor pencil pusher to do for something to write about? No excitement. Even baseball cannot arouse any special interest in the average citizen. Everything seems tame and commonplace. For the last week only one subject has succeeded in creating a ripple upon the placid surface of the quiescent desuetude that seems to have taken possession of the entire mass of humanity, and that is the Steam Roller. Of course, this refers to the real thing, and not to a figure of speech applied to certain methods sometimes employed to get rid of a troublesome opponent.

It is charged that some parties are decidedly in favor of steam rollers. And that they are so determined upon indulging the luxury derived from the possession, operation and attainments of the steam roller as to have decided to resort to steam roller methods in order to obtain one. Now, we don't know whether this charge is well founded or not. We are loath to accept it in its entirety, altho there is doubtless some ground for the accusation. However, we take no sides to the controversy at the present, but merely state the facts, and would gladly do what we can to bring about a peaceable solution of the difficulty, that there be no broken bones or blood shed.

If both parties to the controversy will get together, not for a scrap, but for a friendly discussion of the proposition upon its merits, we opine they will find that they all want the same things when they come to fully understand each other.

TOOT YOUR HORN.

The coming county fair will call for music adapted to the occasion. Time was when a fife and drum corps filled every requirement in such cases, but that time is past. The public ear has been attuned to more melodious strains, and nothing short of a brass band with drum accompaniments will satisfy the cultured taste of the adult citizen, or fill Young America with the proper amount of enthusiasm of approved quality. In the dim and distant past—even before the flood—Heppner boasted a Symphony band that was the pride of the city and a joy to all visitors. The great catastrophe of June 14, 1903, wiped it out of existence, and tho some feeble attempts have been made since then to assemble a cornet band that would identify itself with the city as one of its permanent institutions, such attempts have been abortive from the lack of competent leadership, and the moral and financial backing of the substantial business and professional people of the town.

There is the nucleus of a good band already here. It would be necessary to buy a few more instruments perhaps, to bring it up to the proper standard of respectability, but if the good people of Heppner can focus their minds upon the proposition long enough to appreciate its benefits to the town, this difficulty could be easily overcome. It seems to us that the time is ripe for a movement of this kind and we hope to see some of our musical folk take it up.

With the organization of the Morrow County Fair, the organization of a county pioneers' association ought to be considered. The time is coming when every fact relating to early settlement and history of the county will be of great value. Unless some special effort is made to collect and preserve them, many incidents connected with the first settlement and subsequent development of the country will be forever lost. The coming together of the people at the county fair will be an opportune time for the pioneers' meeting. We shall hope to see this matter taken up by a goodly number of those directly interested in the movement who, realizing its importance, will carry it forward to completion.

A fellow remarked the other day that it was nothing remarkable that "Don," the talking dog of Germany, could speak, since his vocabulary consisted of German words. However that may be, the writer has seen a dog right here in Centerville that stands on his hind legs and howls in English whenever anything for the good of the town is proposed. —Centerville Times. You are mighty well off, Frank, if you have but one of him in your town. Here in Heppner we have half a dozen and would gladly pay postage upon the whole caboodle in order to get rid of them, should any one want them.

It is stated that if one grain of corn could be added to each ear there would be a revenue thus derived to pay for all the agricultural colleges now in operation and if no seed were planted without being tested, our crops would be increased to an amount sufficient to pay the national debt every year. —Long Creek Ranger.

Clean It Up.

All persons residing within the corporate limits of the City of Heppner who keep cows or horses, are notified to clean away all manure from their stables once every four days during the summer months. This will prevent the breeding of flies and be conducive to better health and sanitary conditions. The city marshal is instructed to see that this regulation is carried out.
