Studebaker's

"That's the sixth Studebaker we've passed—the only kind to invest in"

"The only kind—because, as I always say, when a man puts money in a thing he wants to know that he's going to get the worth of it out again."

"That's plain business as I look at it."
"That's why I say the price doesn't tell you anything at all. There's only one thing that talks—except the wagon itself. That's the name of the maker."

"When you buy a Studebaker you're buying a vehicle that has behind it and in it sixty years of experience—sixty years of success—and sixty years of reputation for the square deal. That's why a Studebaker always looks good to me."

"My father used to say that Studebaker honor was as sure as a United States bank note. He was talking after having used Studebaker vehicles since he was a lad, and he told me his father before him said, 'Be safe—get a Studebaker.'"

"Vehicle builders can't hold that sort of reputation now-a-days without delivering the goods. A Studebaker wagon has the best in it. That's why a man gets the most out of it—why it's always an economy."

"Dealers may say to you something else is 'just as good.' But when you buy a Studebaker, you're making a safe investment every time."

GREATEST OF COM- MONWEALTH DAYS.

Prominent Speakers Take Part in the Exercises at the State University.

(ARTHUR CRAWFORD)

"The greatest of Commonwealth days" were those that were just held at the University of Oregon, the 16th and 17th. Prominent speakers from various parts of the United States were present and took part in the exercises. "Through the annual commonwealth conferences the state University of Oregon is rising to its true stature as the normal developmental agency, outlining measures for an ever higher organization of the business, civic and social life and interests of the people of Oregon."

The discussions at these sessions of the different state problems are integral parts of and supplements to the institution's regular curriculum work and they demonstrate to the students as well as to the people of the state, the true relation of the university education to the industrial and social progress in Oregon.

FIRST SESSION

The first speaker of the Conference was Herbert R. Sands of the New York Bureau of Municipal Research.
He spoke on the subject, "Ways and Means of Securing Better Efficiency in Public Affairs." Mr. Sands said that the city should buy wholesale. Portland could save $100,000 a year. This would be accomplished by the salaries being standardized and all purchasing centralized. "The municipal reports should be made intelligible to every citizen."

Edward E. Gray, Mayor of Astoria proposed a bureau of municipal research for the University of Oregon in connection with the department of economics and sociology.

SECOND SESSION

Porter J. Neff, former City Attorney of Medford, spoke on the municipal market and described its success in his home town of Medford. A general discussion followed Mr. Neff's paper, on the subject of Co-operative Marketing in Agriculture, Horticulture and Dairying. Other speakers of this session were: Z. W. Commerford, who spoke on "Co-operative Distribution; J. Geore Johnson, master Lane County Pomona Grange, who spoke on Rural Co-operative Credit Associations and a paper by O. M.
Plummer, Secretary of American Eugenics Society.

THIRD SESSION

A. H. Harris editor of the Portland Labor Press was one of the speakers of the Friday evening session. He read a paper on "State Planning." This was followed by a paper on "City Planning," by Ellis F. Lawrence, a Portland architect.

FOURTH SESSION

Saturday morning discussion by William G. Foster president of Reed College, and Eugene Brookings, president of Citizens Educational League took place on, "Readjustment of the Curriculum and Organization of the American Educational System to meet the Industrial, Civic and Social needs of the 20th century."

Other speakers of the morning were Professor Ellwood P. Cubberly, of Stanford University and director of Portland School of Survey and J. E.
Newman, of United States Department of Education.

FIFTH SESSION

Three simultaneous meetings were held Saturday afternoon. The Willamette Valley division of the State Editorial Association met to discuss the cost of producing a newspaper in Oregon. At the same time, the Woman's meeting took place. Some of the speakers at this meeting were:

Mrs. H. C. Wortman, Miss Mary F.
Isorn, Mrs. Henrietta Calvin, Mrs.
Minnie R. Trumbell, and Mrs. J. B.
Comstock. The subjects discussed were: "What the Women are doing for the State," "What the University can do for the Women of the State," "What the Women of the State can do for the University."

The feature of the Oregon Editors Conference was the speech of D. O.
Sanderson, editor of the Freewater Times. Mr. Sanderson's speech consisted of a personal relation of his newspaper life. He was formerly a minister, but as he said, "I saw a greater opportunity in the press." He took over the Freewater Times for its debts, five years ago, which amounted to $285. At that time the paper had a little over 150 subscribers.
Today his paper has over 1100 subscribers and he is worth upwards of $20,000 which he has made entirely from the earnings of his county weekly paper. He pays the best of wages. Mr. Sanderson attributes his success in the newspaper business to his close personal acquaintance with every citizen in the Freewater district.

After the meeting the editors were taken on a sightseeing trip over Eugene as guests of the Eugene Commercial Club, and later attended a banquet at the Hotel Osburn.

How Do You Account For It.

The dispatches tell us of one Elith Fry of Marshfield, Ore. while walking in his sleep at the hotel at Goldbeach, slipped from the third story window and fell forty feet striking the ground before awakening. He was not injured in the least by the fall. How do you account for such a miraculous escape.

Now is the time to leave your orders with the Morrow Warehouse handled unless guaranteed free from lodder and weevil. tf.
