EXPERT HIRED TO HANDLE EXHIBITS

Fair Board Has Secured a Man For This Work. Will Be On the Job For a Full Month.

At a meeting of the Directors of the Morrow County Fair Friday, it was decided to secure the services of a man who is an expert along this line, to have charge of the gathering together of the fair exhibits, and the proper arranging of them for the fair. A Mr. Vanely, of Portland, has been secured for this work and will be on duty from and after the 27th of this month. He is said to be a splendid hand at this character of work, and will be kept right on the job until the fair closes. This insures everything being properly arranged and the fair staged in the most attractive manner. In fact the Fair Board are leaving nothing undone that will make the fair a complete success, and if you are not yet interested in getting an exhibit ready, begin your preparations at once. Hearty cooperation on the part of every citizen of the county will be the means of bringing about a successful and profitable fair.

A STORY.

By Dad.

Don't forget that this is a story. It's all about Doc getting married. It may be difficult for you to realize the fact that he is married, but it is a fact, nevertheless. Just why Doc got married I don't know and I don't know that he knows. Fact is I don't believe he thought much about it until the sapient Solons of the late Oregon legislature decreed that all male men who may become candidates for matrimony must henceforth procure a physician's certificate stating that such candidate is mentally and physically qualified to assume the grave and responsible position as the head of a prospective family. This utterance of that august body he seemed to regard as a challenge, a kind of banter, and it roused his Irish. It poked him.

The only way he could see to assert his manhood and resent the foul insinuation hurled at him by the legislature was to enter the lists of the bachelors. This was his deft.

Then, too, the rapid flight of years, and the steady advance of old age may have had something to do with it, for he has already reached an elevation from which the 30's can be seen. He saw plainly that if he ever expected to emulate the example of his older brother, and maintain the reputation of the family as a liberal supporter of the public schools that he had no time to fool away.

And then, didn't he have a perfect right to get married if he wanted to? Wasn't he a free born American citizen of lawful age? Was he not worthy and well qualified? Suppose he was the youngest of the family, should that forever bar him from working in double harness? Not if he knew himself. Didn't Earl Gilliam get married under such conditions, and had Earl any rights that he did not possess? Then why should he not get married? The case was clear, he would. That was settled.

He communicated the results of his cogitations to his best girl; took her as it were into his most secret counsels. Together they canvassed the proposition from every point and angle. They looked the cold facts square in the face. They deliberately discussed the obstacles that were to be encountered on the journey of life to impede their progress and embitter their days. They tried to survey the entire horizon, and they did their best.

They discovered that they were of one mind and heart, and decided that since their two hearts beat as one henceforth they would "pad the road together." Another point settled.

It only remained to dispose of the legal impediments.

The physician's certificate was procured.

Armed with this precious document there was no difficulty in extorting from the accommodating county clerk that most formidable but necessary piece of paper known in legal phrase as a marriage license and which confers upon certain parties the privilege of addressing a few well chosen remarks to the principals in the transaction and in the name of the commonwealth to pronounce them husband and wife. All right so far.

Doc could see that the rest of the road was not difficult for was not pater familias qualified by law to push this "glory ticket" and send him on his way rejoicing? Sure. Then to the pater he goes to present his request and solicit his aid.

It was August the third, and his smile was so child-like and bland that he made you think of Ah Sin the heathen Chinese.

Dad was agreeable and so another point was settled.

And now Doc is married and Vi—but who is Vi? Why Vi is the best girl. And she is married too. She rejoices in the possession of a new cognoman. She's Mrs. Doc.

And they lived happy ever after.

O. W. R. & N. CO. INTERESTED IN FAIR

Will Offer Suitable Prize For Dry Land Exhibit.

In conversation this week with Mr. J. B. Huddleston, agent of the O. W. R. & N. Co. at Heppner, we learn that the railroad company are interested in the coming Morrow county fair and will put up a suitable and valuable premium for the best exhibit produced through the use of dry farming methods. This will be well worth trying for, and we hope to be able to announce right away what the premium will be, and just the class of exhibit it will be offered on.

It is certainly encouraging to the directors of the fair to have the company show this interest, and it should be a stimulant to our citizens to work harder than ever in making the fair a grand success.

Just what concessions will be made in the way of reduced rates on the railroad has not yet been announced but we are led to believe that the O. W. R. & N. Co. will do what they can for us along this line, and that suitable rates will be made for the fair season. Of this we will be able to make definite announcement a little later.

Fair Board Not Responsible.

Individuals may have their own ideas as to advertising and may use their space in the local paper as they see fit. For this the Fair Board is in no way responsible, and should not be retaliated against because of something that is said through this medium by some one taking an active part in the promotion of the fair. Give us your hearty co-operation and do not try to "get even" with others by withholding your support from the Fair. The Board is in no way responsible for these matters.

W. W. SMEAD, Secretary.

RICHARDSON IS NEW POSTMASTER

Question of Who Is Going To Serve Heppner Is at Last Settled.

News received from Senator Geo. E. Chamberlain Wednesday announced the confirmation by the senate of the appointment of W. A. Richardson as postmaster at Heppner. To Mr. Richardson this was welcome news and he is busy receiving the congratulations of his friends over his success.

The Heppner postmastership has been tied up, as it were, for many months owing to the difficulty, we presume, of deciding between the various applicants, and in the meantime Postmaster Smead has gone along serenely drawing the salary and looking after the duties of the office and bidding the time of his retirement.

This paper congratulates Mr. Richardson. He is an old resident of Heppner, a man well qualified for the place and we can assure our readers that he will be a courteous and efficient public servant.

We presume that Mr. Richardson will assume his duties as soon as he can properly qualify.

We understand that Mr. Flint will move his family to Lexington and reside in the Howard Lane property. Mr. Flint expects a new automobile in Lexington and will then open up the livery stable and run an auto for the traveling public. We certainly wish Mr. Flint success in his new undertaking.

School opens September 7th. A lot of painting on the inside and repairing has been done to the building with the addition of a new laboratory. The helmy has also been fixed. Swanson, of Bedford, Iowa; intermediate grades, Miss Ramona Bissell, of Yreka, Calif.; Miss Rita Olmsted has been reengaged for the primary department.

Mrs. John Piper had an experience which no one would like to repeat. She went to the mountains with her two sons and when they arrived she started to ramble around while the boys unharnessed, became lost and was not found until about 9 o'clock that Friday night. They arrived there about 11 o'clock in the morning so she had quite a day being lost. During the afternoon a heavy shower came up, so that when found Mrs. Piper was drenched, as well as cut and scratched by the briars. At this writing Mrs. Piper is resting easier.
