During the Fair to be held Sept. 25-26-27 Heppner is going to be taxed to the utmost to take care of those visiting the city at that time. Heppner has a reputation for its hospitality and must sustain that reputation. All who have rooms, either single or double that they can rent for the Fair week will please call and list same with the Secretary. Don't put this off as we must now how many people can be thus taken care of at once so that other arrangements can be made if necessary to accommodate our guests.
W. W. Smead, Secty.

Mrs. Phill Doherty died at her home at Wells Springs Sunday, and was buried at Heppner Tuesday forenoon, Rev. P. J. O'Rourke, pastor of the local Catholic church conducting the funeral. Mrs. Doherty had been sick for a long time and her death was not unexpected. She leaves a husband and several small children. The funeral was very largely attended by relatives and friends of the family.

Guy Boyer has been carrying himself around in a sling for several days past as a result of being rolled on by horse he was riding. In attempting to rope another animal while riding pretty lively his horse fell and Guy got out of the mixup with a dislocated shoulder and a cracked rib or two. He is pretty sore over the experience.

Class Reunion.

The past week was a season of reunion for the 1911 graduating class of the Heppner High School. A series of entertainments was the order, the first being given by Miss Leta Humphreys at her home Wednesday evening Aug. 20, followed by Miss Josephine Richardson Thursday evening, Miss Ruth O. Brown Friday evening and Miss Elizabeth Slocum Saturday afternoon at their respective homes. Those present at each of these entertainments were the following members of the Class: Miss Opal Briggs, Miss Leta Humphreys, Miss Elizabeth Slocum, Miss Ruth Brown, Mrs. Frank P. Gowan, once Miss Hazel Hale and Miss Josephine Richardson. Messrs Ray Rogers and Leander Pavid the two boys of the class were absent.

A delightful time is reported and delicious refreshments were served at each home. Songs and conversation whiled the time away in the evening and in the afternoon fancy work and picture taking in which Mr. Slocum's Jersey cow played a prominent part, were the main features.

All persons wishing concessions from the Fair Board please call and list their names and name of concession with the Secretary as soon as possible. Same will then be turned over to the proper Committee and action taken.
W. W. Smead, Secty.

All Cattle Will Have to Pass Examination.

According to the state law all cattle to be exhibited at any fair will have to pass an examination by the State Veterinarian. This is important, and all those who contemplate the exhibition of cattle at the coming Morrow county fair should report the same to the Secretary at once. By doing this it can be arranged to have the cattle examined by a veterinary and expense saved. No doubt our residents are beginning to select their stock for the exhibits by this time, and if so it will not inconvenience you to report it to the secretary who is doing all he can to save expense to the exhibitors in this matter of examination. Keep boosting the Fair, and get in your reports.

I have for sale at my place choice buck lambs from the famous Potter band. Prices reasonable.

NUMBERING HOUSES.

A French Architect's Idea That Took a Long Time to Mature.

It was in the year 1512 that a French architect made the suggestion that houses in a certain section of Paris be numbered. The idea, however, was a long time taking root, and it was not until 1789 that the system became general, writes a London correspondent.

In Berlin about a decade later an eccentric method of numbering the houses was adopted. They numbered them without reference to the streets. Thus a tenant's address would be described merely as, say, "1000 Berlin."

The numbering of houses in London, as above shown, is of comparatively recent date. In the later Stuart times, says Macaulay, the houses were not numbered, and "there would indeed have been little advantage in numbering them, for of the coachmen, charmen, porters and errand boys of London a very small proportion could read. It was necessary to use marks which the most ignorant could understand. The shops were therefore distinguished by painted or sculptured signs, which gave a very gay and grotesque aspect to the streets."

Similar methods were adopted for identification of private houses. In Lincoln's Inn Fields, for example, it seems to have been usual for the houses to be distinguished by ornamentation on the gate posts.

The first instance known of a London street in which the houses were numbered is Prescott street, Goodman's Fields, but the practice did not spread far before the year 1764, when it received a great impetus, and it soon after became well established in London.—Baltimore American.

An Adaptable Prodigal.

A man who lived in Raleigh, N. C., fell heir to about $15,000 and immediately spent it in high living. A second and a third good sized sum of money came to him, and each time he played prodigal until he was without funds.

One day Josephus Daniels met this man on the street in Raleigh. The prodigal was in rags, looked hungry and was evidently in very hard case.

"It seems to me that you must have a tough time," said Daniels. "How do you stand it after the good living, luxuries and fine clothes you have been accustomed to?"

"Mr. Daniels," the man replied, "I'll tell you how I do it: I have made arrangements to get along without what I can't get."—Saturday Evening Post.

His Narrow Escape.

A jolly old steamboat captain with more girth than height was asked if he had ever had any very narrow escapes.

"Yes," he replied, his eyes twinkling; "once I fell off my boat at the mouth of Bear creek, and, although I'm an expert swimmer, I guess I'd be there now if it hadn't been for my crew. You see, the water was just deep enough so to be over my head when I tried to wade out and just shallow enough"—he gave his body an explanatory pat—"so that whenever I tried to swim out I dragged bottom."—Everybody's.

The Reason.

All sorts and conditions of men have excellent reasons for their position in life. Illustrated Bits tells of a tramp who had no illusions about the cause of his own condition.

Mrs. Finehealth (at hotel entrance)—No; I have no money to spare for you. I do not see why an ablebodied man like you should go about begging.

Lazy Tramp—I s'pose, mum, it's fer about the same reason that a healthy woman like you boards at a hotel instead of keeping house.

Why He Felt Happy.

"Vernon told me this morning," related the lady with the cold blue eye, "that he passed the tree where two years ago he carved your initials and his own and encircled them with a heart. He says he felt so glad he almost danced for joy!"

"Ah," said the tall brunette anxiously, "then he must still love me, after all! Did he tell you why he felt so happy?"

"Yes, dear. He said some men were cutting the tree down!"

Cities Are Transients.

What cities as great as London have once triumphed in existence, had their victories as great, joy as just and as unbounded, and with short sighted presumption promised themselves immortality? Posterity can hardly trace the situation of some. The sorrowful traveler wanders over the awful ruin of others, and, as he beholds, he learns wisdom and feels the transience of every sub-lunary possession.—Oliver Goldsmith.
