ENJOY NEWS FROM MORROW COUNTY

R. P. Hyland Writes Interesting Letter From Lowell, Oregon

Among the many readers of the Gazette-Times every week is Ray P. Hyland, a former resident of Heppner. He is now situated at Lowell, Oregon and is enjoying a good trade in the general merchandise business in that city. A letter from him of September 26 reads in part as follows:

Mr. Vawter Crawford,
Heppner Oregon,
Editor Heppner Gazette,
Esteemed Sir;

We enjoy the weekly arrival of the news from Morrow county, and notice the goings and returning, with the comers who go again, and it pleases us to fancy that the acquaintances whom we once looked upon as friends in their every day life, may have forgotten that there did live such a humble person in their midst. But memories still are cherished of the two years spent in your city, which perhaps would have been our residence had circumstances permitted or opportunity had spoken less distinctly.

We have no objection to you publishing, if you choose, this greeting, which includes some of all the many classes which make Morrow county what it is. We curried the friendship of some good moral people, enjoyed the marly principles of rough element, the square deal to all classes, and above all the sincere brotherly affection as expressed by sturdy Swedes of the northern portion of the county. Ever since living in that section, and knowing only a portion of the good folks, we think a man complimented when accused of being that Nationality. To these very people is Morrow largely dependent.

We notice the passing of those who a short time ago were the controlling power, politically and otherwise; the success of others justly deserving, and can from this distance see the workings upward or the reverse of those unfortunates who were in a class with the writer. The characteristics of each impressed on memory is a pleasing combination of which to think.

The short quick steps of some, the slower more careful walk of some other business men, the greetings as banded on the street, the wedding welcome given Ward, also Bisbee, live as yesterday.

Enough to show you the past is ever at hand when a person receives the weekly news of his past home. The man who advertises in the little home paper is prone to think he is talking to the people of his home town only, or that it does not make much difference what he puts in his advertisement they will only buy so much anyway, and where they choose to at that. You as an editor realize the extent of your circulation. The many magazines, credit men Associations, patent medicine houses and I have even heard of mail order houses subscribing or exchanging merchandise for country subscription and you know how gladly they would pay for space if you sought their patronage.

In fact the Gazette-Times tells me each week who is making good, the advertisement speaks the feeling of the writer and the people know it.

Space don't pay returns, words count for much, but as I have noticed the advertisements in the paper, I will wager on who gets the per cent not the most of the business which counts. One fault with us country or inland merchants is that we advertise when business is good and when it is poor and we need it, we can't afford the expense; foolish and expensive saving. Another thing Friend Crawford, is that some of your advertisers are using patent or stock ads. Maybe you sell those merchants ready made advertisements with plate etc. Now speaking from this distance where I feel free from physical or immediate harm, would suggest that the customer, native or otherwise, who takes the time to read an advertisement, wants to know what the man whose name is signed to the ad has to say, they don't care what some "Gink" in Chicago has figured out to get them to the store that buys patent ads. The average, in fact all would sooner have you speak of a certain object in a definite manner, price considered, and your name whether it be big with an Inc. or a Co or plain Bill or Pete. People like to deal more or less with the man. That is why the Jew gives a glad hand to his prospective customer. The cattle buyer says "Hello John" when he wants to make a deal, "Howdy" Mr. Smith when there is nothing in mind.

Realizing that I have written three times as much as intended when starting, and that you are human as far as we look on editors in that manner,

Money No Object To Tom Lawson.

Evening Telegram.

Tom Lawson doesn't care for expenses; he has plenty of 'em.

For example, he has just shipped from Portland to Boston a beautiful little saddle mare by express, the charge for the journey being $487. The mare was brought out here originally from the Lawson stable of thoroughbreds at "Dreamworld," the Lawson estate just outside of Beantown, so that the round trip for the exquisite little pure blooded animal cost the millionaire a neat little sum of $974.

The mare is the property of Miss Lawson, the magnate's daughter and she had it brought out here for her own personal use and for the pleasure of her chum, Miss Jean Morrison, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. A. A. Morrison, of this city.

This express bill is by far the largest charge of that kind ever paid for a single animal in the history of Oregon and is nearly seven times the cost of a first-class passenger ticket from Portland to the "Hub," the fare to Boston being $77.15.

The Lawson party, which has been in Portland and Oregon for several weeks, broke up this morning when Mrs. Henry McCall and Miss Lawson, the magnate's daughters started for Boston at 10 o'clock. Mr. Lawson and his son-in-law, Henry McCall took the same train but dropped off at Deschutes Junction and went in to Peineville where McCall owns a large ranch. It is understood that Mr. Lawson will remain in the interior for a short time before returning to New England. He is working on a new hobby of his, intensified agricultural development, which he has promised to "spring" on Oregon in the near future.

A Perfect Baby Out of 7000 Examined.

Baby Jane Kanzler, the one thousand and point daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Kanzler of 1335 East thirty first street, Portland was the winner of the state eugenics contest.

Out of seven thousand babies that entered into the eugenics contest at the Oregon State Fair at Salem last week, little 42 months old Jane Kanzler was judged perfect by the experts. She is the winner of the $100 prize offered by the Woman's Home Companion, the $50 cup for the highest score the three year old class, the $25 cup for first prize honors in girl baby class and the grand sweepstakes prize a $20 gold medal for scoring the highest of any baby in the show. Aside from being a perfect child, baby Jane is said to be very beautiful.

The county commissioners of Walla Walla county Wash., have awarded the contract for the finishing the first five miles of the Inland Empire highway between Walla Walla and Waitsburg, to the Atlas Construction Company of North Yakima. The bid was $25,000. Crushed rock from Dixie state quarry will be used, and the road will be waterbound macadam.
