LEXINGTON ITEMS.

Will Furzer was in from the Hynd Bros. ranch Friday after a load of coal.

Miss Ethel Picketts was a Heppner visitor Saturday. She returned home Sunday morning.

Still the improvements continue. We see Marsh White down on his knees putting in a new sidewalk in front of his residence.

Mrs. Leta Calloway returned to her home in Portland Monday morning after enjoying Thanksgiving with her mother, Mrs. T. L. Dorman.

Born to Chas. Pointer and wife at the home of Mrs. John Carmichael Monday Nov. 24, a son. Both mother and little son are doing nicely. Chas. is also slowly recovering.

You who cannot be pleased with this splendid Oregon climate are surely difficult to please. Finer weather this near Christmas when we all expected snow could not be desired.

Tuesday is city election, a mayor, four aldermen and a recorder are to be elected. Why don't the women come to the polls and show the men that they are at least appreciative of their newly given rights.

The Home Mission Society wish to thank the people who so kindly attended the box party and program on last Tuesday night. About $35 was realized besides the splendid program and good time enjoyed by all.

An interesting football game was played on Thanksgiving afternoon at the Lexington grounds, by Heppner versus our home team. We won by a score of 14 to 0. During the game, Rude, one of the local players was rendered unconscious for a few minutes but from the way one of the Heppner players was crippled we surmise that the score in that respect was evened up.

Say! all you who are foolishly planning and worrying over what you are going to give this friend and that relative for Christmas, don't you know that you can buy all those pretty gifts desired, at the Ladies Aid Bazaar on next Friday night. Besides think of all those delicious eats and the fine program. We know you forgot, that is the reason we reminded you again.

EIGHT MILE.

Glen Brenner spent Sunday with Everett Jones.

Oscar Keithly and wife spent Sunday at the home of T. H. Williams.

L. J. Burnside and family of near Hardman were Eight Mile visitors Sunday.

Miss Ethel Jones spent Sunday at the home of her grandmother, Mrs. N. L. Jones.

W. B. Ward who recently moved his family to Lexington returned to the ranch Sunday to look after his stock.

John Tash and family of Buhl, Idaho, are spending a few days on Eight Mile visiting with relatives and friends.

Emerson Keithly departed Monday morning for La Grande. He goes as a delegate to the state convention of the Farmer's Union.

Mrs. T. H. Williams is reported on the sick list at this writing. Dr. Gaunt is in attendance. We have not learned the nature of her illness.

L. E. Knighten, W. W. Brannon and Mose Ashbaugh were Heppner visitors last Friday. The two latter were witnesses for the former in making final proof on his homestead.

Supt. S. E. Notson was seen on our streets the latter part of the week in a benzine buggy driven by Olen

Hayes. They had the misfortune of breaking down just as they were starting home and were compelled to spend the night in this vicinity.

Some very substantial improvements are to be made in the near future in our school district. The directors have planned to dig and cement a cistern and build a barn and wood house. These improvements have been needed for some time.

We are pleased to note that Heppner will have macadamized streets. It is good to know that there are some wide awake people in Morrow county. We hope to see some macadamized roads in Morrow county before many years. Now that the county is out of debt, we suggest that some permanent roads be built each year until we have completed the job. Other counties do, why not Morrow.

Many farmers in this section are stocking up on hogs. We believe we are safe in saying there will be 20 carloads of hogs shipped from here during 1914. In our mind, shipping the grain to market by the hog route is quite an improvement over sacking the grain and hauling it 20 miles to market. Besides, the first mentioned method has been proven more profitable.

Another thing we consider would go nicely with the hog business is a packing house built and operated by the farmers of this section. In this way you can bacon your own hogs and market your own bacon and lard at home. As it is you pay freight on your hogs to Portland. They are banded there and shipped back here and sold on your local market. What is the use of paying freight both ways when it could not only be saved but a nice profit made as well. Think it over.

Cull Out Poor Layers To Increase Egg Yield

Oregon Agricultural College, Corvallis, Ore., Nov. 25.—One of the steps which must be taken in the process of securing higher egg yield, is a careful culling out of the lightest layers. Expert poultrymen state that the average hen in the United States lays about six dozen eggs per year. The records of a flock of forty hens, secured by use of the trap-nest, kept by the poultry department of the Oregon Agricultural College, show an average yield of 210 eggs per year. If it be a fact that the 72 egg hen pays her way and returns some profit to her owner, the hen that lays three times as many eggs must be a very profitable fowl.

While several things are required to raise the general average of a flock to so high a standard of production, a very material increase may be secured by giving careful attention to a few of the most important. One of these is culling out the most unproductive hens. And the only way to be positive that the poorest and not the best layers are disposed of is to keep individual records, which is done most satisfactorily by use of the trap-nest.

If the right choice is made of the hens to be eliminated, the process is both rapid and inexpensive. A certain number of fowls is required for table use in the home and for the poultry market. But very little is gained by a haphazard selection of the hen for these purposes. Individual records, as revealed by the trap-nest have been found by the Poultry department to be the only unfailing method of revealing the unproductive hen. And this method is earnestly recommended to the poultrymen of Oregon that purpose to increase the average egg yield by culling out the poor layers from the flock.
