BLUNDERS OF SPEECH.

Look Out For These Very Common Errors and Avoid Them.

Every intelligent person is always progressing and is ever indifferent in matters of culture. If careless habits of speech have been formed a determined effort to correct them will lead to good results.

Many persons who consider themselves well educated make the mis-Mack Gravbeal will take orders take of using the participle "got" instead of "Have you the key?" "Who has my book?"

It would seem unnecessary to tell heard saying, "He says" instead of "He said."

Other faults are to say "A great ways," "Somewheres," "There's plenty of places."

The contraction "don't" for "do not" should never be used with a singlar noun or pronoun. It is correct to say "He does not," and not "He don't." It is important to remember the objective form of the first person singular when a noun and pronoun or two pronouns follow a verb, and not to say, "Ethel asked Mary and I to go," but "Ethel asked Mary and me to go," If one is confused about the use of pronouns in a sentence of this sort, an easy rule is to separate them and use each one with the verb thus: "Ethel asked Mary" and "Ethel asked me." In this way the grammatical form is seen.

It is correct to say "A summer day," not "A summer's day." "Cut the apple in two" or "in halves," not "Cut the apple in half." "I cut the ribbon off this piece," not "off of this piece." "The child threw it on the floor," not "on to the floor."
"Whether" is a word that indicates a choice of things and should not be placed at the head of each part of a sentence. For instance, it is incorrect to repeat it, thus: "I have not decided whether I shall go to Boston or whether I shall stay at home."-Mrs. Frank Learned in New York American.
