That Creamery Plant.

That creamery plant, my farmer friend, Will never grow by talk. Financial backing, you must lend. By freely buying stock. Of course I fully realize That parting with your gold. You want to know the enterprise Will yield you many fold. Co-operation is the key By which all human kind May gain the wealth of land and sea, To which they have been blind.

It is the one great secret hidden. And always been concealed. O'er which mankind has ever ridden. But now has been revealed.

So lend support to everything. Throughout the land and nation. That tends for good and has the ring Of pure co-operation.

But if the stock you cannot buy, Because you lack the dough, Just help to land that other guy Who seems a little slow.

They say that we must purchase cows.

And grain be quite forsaken. And have a few old faithful sows To furnish us with bacon.

I fancy now that I can see, While holding fast his pail, The Farmer John that is to be A-dodging Bossy's tail.

The moon still shows its gentle smile,

The stars give forth their light, The sun refuses all the while To fade away the night.

But still the farmer milks away, While thinking of the past, Until the dawning of the day Brings forth the light at last.

I see him then when he has fed The herd of faithful kine, Plod to the house and being led By half a dozen swine.

The farmer murmurs to himself, "While life is not complete, There's more to lay upon the shelf, Than raising simply wheat."

O. J. Cox, prominent Rhea creek farmer, was in Heppner on Saturday.

Frank Engleman and Walter Smith attended the ball game at Heppner last Friday.

Ralph Jones and wife have returned to Heppner after spending several months in the Malheur country.

Ralph Bengé was among the many Lexington people who attended to business in this city on Saturday.

All kinds of farm machinery will be sold at auction on April 11, at the Holt ranch south of Heppner. A bargain for you if you are there.

A Finnish girl, scarcely able to speak or understand a word of English, arrived in Heppner Saturday and made known with much difficulty that she had been sent out from a Portland employment agency to take a position as chambermaid in a hotel here. As none of the hotels had sent in for such an employe the case seemed to be one of plain graft on the part of the employment agents, who had taken this poor girl's application fee and sent her out to make the best of it.
