SOCIALISTS WOULD NOT ABOLISH INITIATIVE AND REFERENDUM

Mr. Editor of The Gazette-Times:

Permit me to correct an error appearing in your issue of two weeks ago. In a clipping from the Brownsville Times, was said among other things that the socialists had started a move to repeal the initiative and referendum. Will someone be so kind as to show in what way there can be any truth in this statement? The article says the trend is to make a one man's government. The fourth plank in the national socialist platform declares for the initiative and referendum. Don't get scared about the socialists trying to tear down that valuable measure; the one through which their untiring agitation is greatly responsible for Oregon to be able to boast of the eradication of the old time "one man's government."

While many republicans and democrats are loud in their denunciation of the initiative and referendum, it is impossible to find a socialist who is hostile toward it. While the initiative and referendum is abused to some extent, we cannot think of eliminating it. The increasing length of the ballot seems to be the only objectionable feature, and the socialists have a remedy for that. The proportional representation measure which you will get a chance to vote on this fall, and which also the socialists declare for in their national platform, is the only means by which the ballot may be shortened. Through the workings of this law, because of the fact that all parties will be represented in the legislature according to the strength of their party, many measures which otherwise would be initiated and referred to the people, will be fought out in the legislature. It is possible now for a party representing one third of the voting strength of the state to elect all of its representatives, because the other two thirds are divided between four or five other parties.

Consequently laws are often framed in the legislature that conflict with the sentiments of the majority of the people and a measure is initiated to kill it; whereas if the legislature had been thoroughly representative; or in other words if every party had been represented according to its strength, the sentiment of the legislature could be more accurately relied upon as being the dominant sentiment of all the voters, and many measures which would otherwise be referred to the people, would be killed in its embryo state. This proportional representation measure allows any voter to vote for any legislative candidate in the state and the sixty receiving the highest number of votes are thereby elected. It will give the weaker parties a chance to concentrate their strength on fewer candidates, thereby insuring their election. Those who believe in a "square deal" should support this measure.

Motto: Equal Justice to poor and rich. Four justices to be nominated.

Salem, Oregon, April 15, 1914.

To the Republican Voters of Oregon:

Ladies and Gentlemen: I wish to state that I am a candidate for the Republican nomination to the office of Justice of the Supreme Court of the State of Oregon. I began the practice of law at Pendleton, Oregon, in 1881. Having served as District Attorney two terms, and as Circuit Judge in the Sixth Judicial District, comprised of Umatilla and Morrow Counties, and having been elected in 1910 to the position I now hold as a member of the Supreme Court, I feel that my record is an "open book." I appreciate the favors shown me by the people of this state and hope that I have in no way failed in the exception of the trust committed to my care, and that I may have the continued confidence of the electors of the state, and especially of those of my home district. I respectfully ask your support for the nomination for a second term at the Republican Primary Election, May 15, 1914. I have been a Republican all my life and believe that, if nominated, I shall be re-elected. I should be glad to do the work.

I firmly believe in the Direct Primary law, and in the right of the people to enact their own laws, in the interest of the morals, education and welfare of the citizens of the state, and for the uplift of humanity, and that when such laws are adopted they should be strictly enforced. This constitutional privilege of the electors of Oregon should be sacredly guarded by the Courts. I am

Very respectfully,
Yours for Good Government,
