When the Trouble Started.

Slugg had lived all his life in the city. Never had he seen anything in the vegetable line except factory made grass until he decided to spend the summer working on Cousin Hiram's farm. Not knowing much in the way of driving a hoe or a barrow, the new farmhand was put to work whitewashing the outbuildings, while the rest of the staff took to the cornfields.

Drilling Holes in Steel. When holes are drilled and then reamed in soft steel bars the metal materially increases in strength, the average limit of elasticity improving 12.3 per cent and the average tensile strength 9.2 per cent.

Her Contribution. A man, a new acquaintance, once told Dr. Joseph Parker of London that he had put a five pound note in the plate instead of the half sovereign he had intended.

To Transfer Printing. Anything printed on paper with ordinary printer's ink can be transferred to a clean sheet of paper in the following manner: Take three drams of common yellow soap and dissolve it in one quart of hot water.

A Matter of Small Moment. A local British official in India wanted military protection against what he considered to be the danger of an Indian rising and traveled all the way to Simla to lay before Lord Kitchener, the commander in chief, the state of affairs in his district and to urge that troops should be sent to support the civil arm.

Queer Fish. Some curious fish found in South American waters breathe with lungs as well as gills. During the dry season the fish curls up at the bottom of a burrow, with its tail over its face, and remains there until the rise of water dissolves the plug with which it stops the entrance to the burrow.

His Mistake. "I understand you entertained a number of people at dinner last night." "That's what I thought," replied Mr. Cumrox, "but my wife says I bored 'em."—Washington Star.

Doesn't Suffer Much. "Does your wife suffer in silence?" "Yes, and I am sorry. If she did not suffer in silence perhaps she would be silent oftener."—Houston Post.

CASH AS A BIOLOGIC FACTOR QUESTIONED

There is always something to worry about—a condition evidently designed for some beneficent purpose. As Father Gregory once hinted "Peradventure this world here is made troublesome unto us, lest we be deluged by the way and forgot whither we are going."

Of course the wiseacres are ready always to tell us why this is thus. City life, economic stress, equal suffrage, and several other latterday conditions are ascribed as the cause. Incidentally also, by way of confirming our pessimism, we are assured that at the present moment there are in the United States more than seventeen million men and women of marriageable age who are not married.

A century ago the gloom was on the opposite horizon. Mr. Malthus and his disciples had at that time convinced the timorous world that population was increasing so rapidly that within a few generations there would be more children than the earth could support.

To-day the chief business of those who believed themselves commissioned to assist the Almighty in regulating the affairs of creation is to devise some plans for increasing the birth rate. A tax on bachelors appears to be the most popular suggestion, and the most likely. It stands to reason that a man would rather marry and make some woman unhappy than pay ten dollars a year into the state treasury.

Then, there is the premium on motherhood. This has many earnest advocates. Already Colorado, Australia, France, and several other commonwealths are preparing to make actual trial of this often-urged expedient. The theory is that for a money consideration the married women of civilization will be more willing to bear children than they appear at present.

The thought of bringing babies into the world for cash does not, of course, lend itself to poetry or lullabies. And it is not intended to. This is a serious, practical matter. At the same time, however, when it is remembered that the decline in the birth rate is confined almost wholly to the intelligent and the comparatively well-to-do, it may be questioned whether twenty-five or even a hundred dollars will prove sufficiently attractive to overcome the scruples of such families against a numerous progeny.

There is, indeed a growing sentiment that if the State is to meddle in affairs of this kind, it had better confine its energies to the enacting of laws designed to secure the breeding of only healthy, normal, and efficient children. Society is now rapidly reaching the point where human quality is immeasurably to be preferred to human quantity.
