

Holstein cows are favorites of many farmers and dairymen, and for good reason. The milk check that comes in every month is a very nice thing to take to the bank. W. W. Robin-son, who owns a big farm of 2,600 acres near Ellensburg, expects soon to have 300 registered Holsteins on his farm. He figures that he will have a milk check coming in of $3,000 a month, or $10 a cow. If he does, that will be very good returns. It is estimated that $20,000,000 to $30,000,000 a year is sent from the State of Washington and $10,000,000 to $15,000,000 from the State of Oregon for meat, dairy and poultry products. Here is a drain that should be stopped. Here is a chance for the bankers and farmers to get together. If the farmers will take care of all the cattle, the hogs and the poultry that they can handle on their farms, the bankers will furnish them the money to have the poultry and binetook. Because the bankers bankers will furnish them the money to buy the poultry and livestock. Because the banker knows the loans would be safe.
