Following the Crowd.

Uncle Billy walked into the village store about the middle of the afternoon, and the storekeeper, waking from his nap, said, "Thought you'd gone to the state fair."

"I did," was the brief reply, as Uncle Billy helped himself to a chair.

"Didn't you like it?"
Uncle Billy looked round cautiously. The other village loafers were having a game of "horseshoe" in front of the blacksmith shop; so lowering his voice he said, confidentially, "I'll tell you how it happened. I hadn't been to the state fair for twenty year, so I wasn't on to it very well. I decided I'd keep an eye on the crowds, and foller where they seemed the thickest. Well, it worked pretty well. I went around to a good many fine displays and shows and things. About noon, I saw a lot of fine-dressed folks goin' all in one direction, so I took after 'em. They all pushed and jammed to get through an archway, and I pushed too. Well, what'd you guess it was?"

"Give it up," the storekeeper said, eager for the climax.

"Well, they were all city folks, goin' home to dinner, and there I stood on the outside. I wasn't goin' to pay no fifty cents to get back in, so I lit out for home. I thought I'd stop in here for a spell, to keep the fam'ly from askin' questions about my gettin' home so early."—The Youth's Companion.
