EVERYBODY WANTS A GOOD TOWN.

Towns and communities have personalities and individual characters just the same as do the citizens of which they are made up. In fact the character of a community is precisely determined by the character of its citizens. Hence when a citizen finds something wrong with his community and wishes to complain about it he may criticize himself. The community has no existence independently of the citizens of which it is composed. Every defect in it if pursued to its ultimate source will lead right up to the front doors of its citizens.

Talk about "kicking oneself," that is exactly what a citizen does when he "kicks" his town and community. The pity is that the "kicking" and "knocking" are not actual instead of metaphorical.

There is nobody so stupid as not to prefer a good town to a bad town or no town at all. But there are many people who do not know, or at any rate they do not seem to care, what they must do to make their town a good town; and they do not seem to realize that by a little knocking of one kind or another a town's citizens can kill it almost beyond resuscitation.

Let any man ask himself what makes a town and he is bound to answer, "Trade—business!" Take away the trade of a town and you take away the life of the town itself—the air it breathes, the food it consumes. The avenues of trade are to the town and community exactly what the blood vessels are to the human body. On every hand are examples to illustrate the importance of trade in the life of communities and the life of the nation itself.

The retail store as a way station in the channels of trade is an indispensable factor in perpetrating the commercial life of a community. With the destruction of the commercial life of the central town or city of a community all other forms of social life must cease to exist because they all depend upon commerce and trade. For this reason the citizen needs the town fully as much as the town needs the citizen. Let him not suppose that in the few packages he carries home from the local store are contained all the things he receives for the money he passes over the counters of the local merchants. Substantially all the comforts and conveniences of modern civilized society are passed out to him in return for his patronizing his home merchants. The surest way to deprive himself of those facilities and environments that make life worth living is to withdraw his patronage from the local town.

You young men, or middle aged men, or old men had best take note of the signs of the times, and make up your minds to the fact that in this day and generation it is your drink or your job. You may compromise with your conscience, or laugh at the oracular temperance orator, but you cannot fool the man with your job in his hand. Nor can you sign a truce with the growing ostracism that separates success from the man who habitually crooks his elbow.—Atlanta Constitution.

According to Ray Stanaard Baker in an article just published, the United States government spends 63 cents of every dollar it collects for war. Of the 37 cents left from each dollar after taking out the cost of war 5 cents, the next largest single sum goes for improving rivers and harbors. Four cents goes for the encouragement of agriculture and forestry, 3 cents for building the Panama Canal, 1 1/2 cents for care of the Indians, 1 cent for maintaining the United States Congress, half a cent for assisting the laboring classes, and the rest for miscellaneous expenses.

FARM FACTS.

By Peter Radford.

Those who till the soil are the chosen people of God.

Farming is as old as the human race and is yet in its infancy.

Success is bound to come to the farmer who plans while he plows.

No civilization has ever advanced beyond its agricultural development.

No farmer is successful who thinks more of his barn than he does of his home.

The development of the farmer himself must precede the full development of the ground he tills.

The most beautiful fact in the farmer's work is that everything he plants is a lesson in faith.

The best farmer does not bother about getting ahead of his neighbor; his great business is to get ahead of himself.

We must give to the people who live on the farm the same educational advantages for their children as those of the cities enjoy.

The country clergy is an agency of much potentiality because the rural life movement is religious as well as industrial and social.

There should be a social and an industrial survey of every community. The pastor, the teacher and the school and the church officials are they who should take such a survey.

In a recent survey of a community in New England, the average annual income of 154 farmers who had a common school education was $229, while the average net income of 122 farmers of the same locality with a high school education was $482 annually. This was worth to each farmer who possessed it $253 each year.

Not to Blame.

"What shall we do, John," said the farmer's wife, who had retained much of her sentiment through 25 years of married life, "what shall we do to celebrate our silver wedding."

"Reckon up where all the silver's gone to in bringing up our family," grumbled he.

"Oh, no, John, it must be something real good and out of the ordinary. I tell you what. Let us kill the fattest pig and give a banquet."

"Maria," said the husband solemnly, "I don't see how the unfortunate animal is to be blamed for what happened 25 years ago."—Atlanta Journal.

George Sperry, Jr., and Miss Roxa Hayes were married at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Sperry in Heppner on Monday morning last, Judge C. C. Patterson, officiating. They took the train immediately after the ceremony and will spend a short honeymoon and then return to Heppner to make their home. Mr. Sperry is the grandson of George Sperry and has made his home with his grandparents the most of his life. Miss Hayes is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Hayes. We extend to them our congratulations and wish them a prosperous and happy journey through life.

A Grave Injustice

Do those who advocate the absolute prohibition of the manufacture and sale of all alcoholic liquors realize the seriousness of the social and economic crisis that would be precipitated by such legislation? Are they aware of the fact that the heads of families aggregating probably not less than three million people would suddenly be deprived of their sole means of livelihood, and that properties valued in the aggregate at perhaps two billion dollars would as suddenly become worthless?

It is doubtful if they do fully realize this, yet these are figures given by no less a writer than Dr. Henry Smith Williams in an article in the "Ladies Home Journal," reviewing the prohibition movement. And he adds: "Personally I am at a loss to understand how anyone who has the slightest grasp of economic questions can contemplate with equanimity the anarchistic possibilities—nay, certainties—which reveal themselves through the slightest use of the imagination in connection with these figures. To me, at least, it seems obvious that the only thing which has kept the prohibition movement before the people of the United States is the simple fact that prohibition does not prohibit."

Thinking men and women who seek the truth and are unswayed by prejudice, and who give the foregoing facts the consideration they deserve cannot escape a like conclusion. —Paid Advertisement.
