The first of the two Hill steamers to ply between Astoria and Frisco is to make a trial spin the last of this month.

The Oregon City paper mills cut their time to five days per week, but shortened shifts to employ sixty more hands.

The F. E. Wray farm near Silverton has just completed a silo 16 ft. in diameter and 34 feet high and it will hold 146 tons of feed.

The voters at the recent election had one purpose—to kill any and all laws which tend to retard the growth and development of business enterprises.

A. K. Detwiler, a banker of Toledo, Ohio, has purchased an entire town for $45,000. The town is Grand Dalles, just across the Columbia from The Dalles, Ore. It comprises 300 acres, a water plant and a few buildings. Detwiler says he intends to build up a manufacturing town with people from Ohio and California who prefer northern climate. Grand Dalles was originally laid off for a manufacturing city and large buildings were put up for shoe factories, tanneries and other industries. Excursion trains were run from the east and many lots sold on the highly colored statements of a Baptist minister and promoter of the early Seventies.

OREGON SHOULD NOW PRODUCE MORE FLAX

Portland, Ore., Nov. 10. (Special)—One of the industries in Oregon which has an opportunity to make a special growth at this time, owing to war conditions in Europe, is the flax industry. Dr. E. A. Pierce, chairman of the Oregon flax committee, has recently written to the promotion department of the Portland Commercial Club inviting its participation in this movement. He calls attention to the fact that the known flax area of the world is comparatively small; that under present conditions it is unlikely that any considerable amount of flax will be raised in Belgium, Ireland or Russia and that it will devolve upon the United States to furnish the greater part of the fiber needed within the next few years. It is well known that the Willamette valley and other parts of Oregon can produce flax fiber equal to the very best European product and he believes that this is Oregon's opportunity to attract the attention of the world by her flax production. In the vicinity of Salem it has been demonstrated that one acre of flax will produce from 500 to 600 pounds of clean fiber which at present prices would make this crop as profitable as anything the farmers can raise.

Within the last few days steps have been taken to build an electric line between Astoria and Seaside. It is believed that the necessary right of way can be secured practically without cost and that work on the line will be commenced within a short time.

Work has been commenced on a canning plant at Houlton. The last few years has seen such a remarkable increase in the out-put of fruits and vegetables in that territory that some means of taking care of the surplus has become imperative.

The First National Bank of Canby opened its doors for the first time last week. The bank is financed by officials of the Canby State Bank and other residents of Clackamas county.

Eugene is to build a new Army and bonds for that purpose to the amount of $25,000, running ten years, were sold last week at par with accrued interest.

J. B. Eaton, a cattle buyer from Texas has been visiting various portions of the Willamette Valley recently buying cattle for shipment to Texas. Shipments of butter to Chicago and cattle to Texas would indicate that Oregon's position as a dairy country is becoming well established.

The milk condensery at Newberg has resumed operations after having been temporarily closed on account of fire. It is taking all the milk from about 1000 cows, sending its wagons into the country for a distance of ten miles. It disburses an average of $5000 per month to the farmers and dairymen.

Museum of Journalism Begun; Want Specimens.

University of Oregon, Eugene, Nov. 10.—Any person of Oregon, newspaperman or otherwise, who has any object of curiosity, human interest, or educational value, that is connected with the business of printing and publishing, is offered a place to preserve it. The department of Journalism of the University of Oregon has started a journalism museum.

Ultimately this museum is to be a printing and publishing exhibit of magnitude; it is to take in newspaper relics and newspaper freaks, as well as items that will show the history of newspaper making—the press and composition and engraving, as well as the editorial and business sides.

Each specimen for this museum is to be fully labeled, its history and its significance, and full credit to the donor being included. The department of journalism hopes to make this museum a place for permanent preservation of the most notable newspaper relics in the state. Persons sending specimens are requested to enclose full details with them for labeling purposes.
