Heppner Commercial Club Will Open Up the New Year's Work With An Enthusiastic Meet.—Phil Bates Will Speak.

The new year will start off right so far as the Heppner Commercial Club is concerned, and tomorrow evening will find a good sized enthusiastic crowd of club members and friends gathered around the banquet table in the I. O. O. F. Hall to partake of the big clam feed which a committee has been busy arranging for. After the feed, a business session will take place and the Club's program for the year 1915 will be outlined.

The feature of the evening will be an address by Phil S. Bates, publisher of the Pacific Northwest, secretary of the Oregon State Editorial Association, and live wire of Portland. Mr. Bates is a speaker of rare ability, and the local club is very fortunate in securing him for the events of tomorrow evening.

C. W. B. M. Meets With Mrs. Handsaker.

The regular monthly meeting of the Christian Women's Board of Missions of the Christian church was held Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. T. S. Handsaker. The topic for the meeting was "Some Modern Revelations." After the devotional service, led by Mrs. Handsaker, Mrs. O. G. Crawford gave an interesting story of how Raghwar Dayal, a priest in a heathen temple became a Christian, and a great leader among his men by study of the scripture he obtained from a missionary. Miss Leta Humphreys told how an Almanac helped to lead a man to Christ, which was enjoyed by all. Miss Virginia Crawford read a paper, "By the Way of the Throne." After the business session refreshments, consisting of pineapple sherbet and cake, were served, and all said "the best meeting of the season."

Party for Younger Set.

On Saturday afternoon, January 2, Heppner's youngest social set made it's debut. Mrs. L. N. Christensen was hostess at a very interesting, as well as unique diversion from the usual run of parties. She had as her guests nine babies, all under one year of age, chaperoned by the respective mothers. The hour of arrival was early, due to the tender age of the little people, and at two-fifteen the front yard began to take on the appearance of a garage and a very young one at that.

Little Margery Clark opened the door and Mrs. Christensen directed the way to the bedroom where wraps were disposed of. No entertainment was necessary as each young guest was entertainment sufficient unto himself.

A vote was taken and prize awarded to the most popular baby present. This naturally fell to the lot of Baby McMurdo, in whose honor the party was given. This fortunate young gentleman received a silver mug as his reward.

The dining room was a delight to every mother's heart. Not the smallest detail had been overlooked to make the table complete in attractive appointments. A color scheme of pink and white was in evidence here. A bouquet of pink carnations was on the table, and a single flower at each plate. Quantities of greenery were trailed over the table cloth and at various places over the festal board cunning little china kewpies were stationed. The centerpiece consisted of a miniature cradle from which protruded mysterious pink ribbons. A small nurse stood at the head of the cradle ready to tuck her diminutive charge into the downy bed, over which at the foot presided a wise looking old stork. The places were found with the assistance of attractive little cards. A tiny babycarriage filled with salted nuts was also before each plate.

The first course was wrapped and tied in pink paper and ribbon and upon examination proved to be the ever present nursing bottle, only greatly reduced in size, filled with the purest and best from the Alfalfa Lawn Dairy. Next course consisted of fruit salad, pimento cheese sandwiches, olives, salted nuts, coffee, and lastly, pink ice cream and two kinds of cake. Just before the guests arose from the table each was requested to pull one of the ribbons from the cradle and was rewarded with another little pink package, which upon being opened, was found to be that ever faithful, tho small, hot water bottle.

The hostess was assisted in serving by Mesdames M. D. Clark and B. R. Patterson. Informality was the keynote of the entire afternoon, and the kiddies themselves helped Mrs. Christensen in no small degree in making the party a complete success.

Those enjoying Mrs. Christensen's hospitality were Mesdames J. L. Wilkins, H. A. Emerson, Chas. Thomson, A. D. McMurdo, H. C. Ashbaugh, Geo. Thomson, W. R. Irwin, Jesse Beardsley, and O. G. Crawford. The small guests were Frances Margaret Wilkins, Alice Averill Emerson, Earl William Thomson, Charles Edward McMurdo, Elizabeth Ashbaugh, Theodore Edward Thomson, Elizabeth Ann Irwin, Loren Ernest Beardsley, and Dorothy Jean Crawford.

Watch Party at Robt. Allstott's.

One of the most enjoyable parties ever held on Eight Mile took place at the home of Robert Allstott on last Friday evening. The affair was given in the form of a watch-party, those present sitting up to watch the old year out and the new year in. Mr. Allstott invited his guests to come early and the fore part of the evening was spent in partaking of a bounteous dinner, which had been prepared especially for the occasion, and the table was loaded down with good things to eat. Later in the evening the time was passed in playing games of one kind or another and one party expressed himself as having the best time of his life, and he said that every one else enjoyed themselves equally as much as he. The families present were, Mr. Teague, Mr. Orr, D. S. Barlow, Elmer McMillan and Robert Allstott, and Ben Anderson and Cecil Ludkins. About fifty people were present to enjoy the evening's entertainment.

NEW YEAR GREETINGS.

To our many customers and friends, we wish to express our hearty thanks and appreciation for your liberal patronage and friendship during the past year. With goods as represented and an effort to please, we hope to see you often one and all. May a prosperous and happy new year be your lot.

Pendleton Defeats Ione.

Last Wednesday night Pendleton high school won from Ione by the score of 26 to 13, in one of the most interesting basketball games of the season. Captain Peters of the local team, proved the star basket shooter of the game, throwing five field baskets and four fouls. Gordon made three field baskets, Siebert two and Russel one. Ned Fowler was the fifth player and West Mimms was present as sub. Ione has beaten everything in her district and her defeat by Pendleton was rather bitter. Clarence Tubbs accompanied the team as coach.—Pendleton E. O.

He had been nominated by the republicans last spring and his action in shooting the leader of the bandits and preventing a further plundering of the passengers of the held-up train proved a big political asset for him, although his efficiency as an officer has been proved many times before. COMMISSION WILL HAVE HEARING HERE

President Smead of the Commercial Club has received notice from the Oregon Railroad Commission at Salem that they have set Wednesday, the 13th day of January, as the date for the hearing of the case of the Heppner Commercial Club versus the Oregon-Washington Railroad and Navigation Co., and the Club rooms in Heppner as the place of said hearing. MRS. MARIE JOHNSON.

Mrs. Marie Johnson, mother of A. W. Johnson, passed away at the Johnson home three miles south of Heppner last Monday morning at 4 o'clock from the infirmities of old age. The body was shipped to Portland for interment.
