Don't fail to consult them about your eyes and glasses. Lenses do not wear out, but eyes do. Every part of the body changes with advancing years, and the eyes in common with the rest of our physical being show the effect of age. We must therefore meet the changed condition of the eyes. The glasses that you bought two or three years ago are not giving your eyes the proper assistance. As your eyes are wearing out year by year your lenses should be changed to correspond with your changing vision. Come and let us talk it over with you. Don't forget the date.

NEW HOMESTEAD LAW

Department of the Interior, United States Land Office, La Grande, Oregon, May 1st, 1915.

Dear Sir:—For the purpose of explaining the provisions of the recent homestead acts of March 3rd, 1915, and March 4th, 1915, you are advised as follows:

The Act of Congress approved March 3rd, 1915, commonly known throughout Eastern Oregon as the Sinoott Bill, authorizes additional homestead entries under the enlarged homestead act, where final proof has been made or patent has been issued on the original entry.

This act confers the right of entry only upon one who "still owns and occupies the land" first entered; it is not required that the claimant be residing on the original entry. The occupancy thereof may be by an agent or tenant. When application is made for an additional entry, it may be presented on the regular forms now used under the enlarged homestead act, for additional entries, but a statement showing continued ownership and occupancy must be inserted. The land in the original entry, as well as the land applied for in the additional entry, must be designated under the enlarged homestead act, and the land in the additional must be contiguous to the original entry.

Persons making an additional entry will be allowed credit for residence on the original entry. Where the final proof has been accepted as sufficient on the original entry, under the five year law or the three year law, no further residence will be required; but if commutation proof was made on the original entry, claimant must show such further residence, either before or after the date of the additional entry, as will make up the aggregate amount of residence required under the act of June 6th, 1912, commonly known as the three year law.

The land in the additional entry must be cultivated as required by the three-year law. One-sixteenth of the area during the second year and one-eighth during the third year and until the submission of final proof, which must be made within five years from the date of the additional entry.

The act of March 4th, 1915, confers a preference right of entry under the enlarged homestead laws, where the applicant files a "Petition for Designation" giving his name, and post office address. To obtain this preference right, an application to make entry must be filed in this office, under the enlarged homestead act, with the required fees and commissions, accompanied by the "Petition for Designation" executed in duplicate and corroborated by at least two witnesses setting forth the character of the land and describing same by legal subdivisions. If the application is for an additional entry, the land in both the original and additional must be properly described in the "Petition for Designation" and the semi-arid character of the land must be shown. If there are any possibilities of irrigation, or if there are any streams of any kind upon the land, a particular description thereof must be given.

When the homestead application has been received at this office, accompanied by a proper "Petition for Designation" the application will be suspended, pending action by the United States Geological Survey on applicant's petition. If the land should be designated, the homestead application, if otherwise regular, will be allowed, but if the government denies the "Petition for Designation"
