AMERICANS WASTE BILLIONS OF DOLLARS OF CROPS.

Europe's war teaches lessons of thrift to America, and their value is not lessened through the fact that the thrift now practiced there is an enforced thrift. European conservation of resources and energies should spur Americans anew to war upon waste.

Wastage of crops is one of our weaknesses. Government forecasts indicate an American harvest this year worth $12,000,000,000. But while Germany defies starvation and nine opposing nations through saving the last crumbs in its granaries and cupboards America will burn thousands of tons of grain straw in the fields that should feed cattle or make bedding.

American waste of products from maize exceeds even that of the straw of wheat. One student of the value of byproducts calculates that our wastage of corn products amounts to $200,000,000 annually, which comes to half of the gross cost of the Panama canal. His estimate confines itself to wastage in the field through letting the stalk of the maize oxidize and decay. During the last 20 years the monetary loss from waste of the byproducts of corn, it is calculated, has exceeded $2,000,000,000—the amount that this year's yield of corn is expected to be worth. Statisticians reckon that scientific conservation of the byproducts from maize would add not less than $500,000,000 annually to its value.

The national department of agriculture estimates that spoiled eggs annually lose Americans $40,000,000, and maintains that this loss might be avoided merely through banishing the rooster from the flock when he is not needed for breeding. Fertilized eggs without cold storage stay good only half as long as infertile eggs.

The potato offers another occasion for the waste of millions, both in the product and in values. The Maine crop of 25,000,000 bushels annually loses 700,000 bushels in shipment, and wastes $280,000. As Maine potatoes form only a twentieth of the nation's yearly yield of potatoes the total loss the country through must be enormous. Two years ago, in addition millions of bushels rotted in the ground at the San Joaquin district of California and the Walla Walla district of Oregon.

Wastage of fruit is an old, old story to the Pacific northwest. It is enough to remark now that government experts declare that domestic canning of fruits would save $100,000,000 every year to the people of the United States. Housewives, when they use scientific management in the kitchen, can enrich the nation with $200,000,000 more every twelve-month. American wastage of food products costs the country enough to support an army of 1,000,000 soldiers, run the government for years or build Panama canals galore.—Spokesman-Review.

DECADENCE OF SHEEP INDUSTRY.

That the number of sheep in this country is rapidly being decreased is apparent. An exchange says that May usually attracts a considerable number of native lambs and their mothers to the Chicago market. This year the usual run did not show up and it is only logical that they are not in the country. Wool buyers that have been scouring Iowa, Illinois and Indiana say that flocks that formerly existed in those states have disappeared. Every report indicates a material decline in the wool clip of those sections and this necessarily means also, a shortage in native lambs.—Pendleton Tribune.

PORTLAND NEWS LETTER

Portland, Ore., June 29, 1915.—In view of the recent decision of the United States Supreme Court in the Oregon & California land grant case, the matter has become one for action by the citizens of this state. Some decision must be arrived at by Congress within six months from the date of the Supreme Court decision, and five months of that time will elapse before the beginning of the next session of Congress, leaving only one month in which to have the question acted upon by both houses. In order to expedite matters and to secure all necessary data, Oregon's congressional delegation, consisting of two senators and three representatives, will cooperate with the Portland Chamber of Commerce and a series of conferences will be held to determine the standing of settlers and other interested parties in each county in which the disputed land is located. It is believed that by taking vigorous action during the Summer and Fall all facts and figures can be collected and tabulated in such form that Congress will be able to reach a decision without delay. As on this decision depends the winning or losing by Oregon of several million dollars, it is of the utmost importance that no time be lost in starting this investigation.

No time has been lost by the road authorities of Multnomah county in taking advantage of the permission granted by the people of this part of the state at the recent election, to spend $1,250,000 in paving county roads. On Monday, June 21, the Warren Construction Co. signed a contract in the office of Roadmaster Yeon, and three hours later work had been started on the first unit of the Sandy Road, just outside the city limits. Two days later the finishing coat had been applied to this section and preliminary work on the next unit was well under way. Contracts for paving the Columbia Highway and other county roads were signed the same day and work started with almost equal promptness.

For the purpose of handling poultry products to the best advantage, a "Poultry and Egg Circle" has been organized at Corvallis under the direction of experts of the Agricultural College. The new association has already made arrangements to handle the products of flocks aggregating more than 3,000 fowls. The eggs will be graded, candled and marked with the association stamp. A market has already been established which will represent a marked increase in returns from this source. If found to work satisfactorily, it is proposed to organize similar circles all over the state.

That Oregon dairies rank among the very best in the United States is indicated by the action of the Judges at the Panama-Pacific Exposition at San Francisco in awarding the grand prize, consisting of a gold medal and $100 in gold, for the highest average scored by ten samples of Oregon milk exhibited. Medals were also awarded for the extremely low bacteria count in samples of Oregon milk and cream no other samples having made anywhere near as good a showing.
