THE BEST FROM JUDGE

An Amazed Chauffeur.
A young woman called at the New York Bar Association the other evening for a friend who is a judge. The next day her chauffeur remarked:
"Who would ever think that a bunch of bartenders would ever build a building as handsome as that Bar Association that we were at last night?"

Mr. Whaley is a very light sleeper, and after a long time getting to sleep.
One night, not long ago, while traveling through New York state he was obliged to stop at a suburban hotel and after much tossing about he finally succeeded in getting into a sound sleep. In answer to loud, repeated knocks on his door, he nervously sat bolt upright in bed.
"Whats wanted?" he grumbled.
"Package down stairs for you, sir."
"Well, let it stay there, it can wait till morning, I suppose.
The boy shuffled down the corridor, and after a long time the guest fell into a sound sleep again. Then another knock came at the door.
"Well, whats up now?" queried
Mr. Whaley.
"Tain't for you, that package!"

"Bet I know where you got that necktie."
"Five bucks says you don't."
"Around your neck, you boob."— Siren.

What She Said.
He—Did you tell Bones I had a head like a tack?
She—No, I said you were a man of great penetration.—Lampoon.

A Funny Dog.
English lit—Chaucer was a funny dog.
He lit—Why?
English lit—He put so many wags
in the Canterbury Tales.—Brunonian.

Dubkins is a great comfort to me.
"I don't see how you can say that.
He's the most tiresome chump I have ever met."
"That's just it. Although I don't amount to much, it's true, every time I look at Dubkins I feel that I could amount to less."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

A Penalty of Courtesy.
"Will you have my seat?" he inquired politely.
"On the ground that I am aged and decrepit?" the woman asked.
"No, indeed, madam."
"That I am young and beautiful and possibly not adverse to flirtation?"
"Certainly not. That is—"

"Then it must be because you are a gentleman, in this respect differing from the fat person on the left and the scrawny specimen at the right.
I am glad to learn your principles, sir, but here is my street. Good-day."—Boston Transcript.

She Ought To.
"Do you know the nature of an oath, madame?"
"Well, I ought to, sir. We've just moved and my husband has been laying the carpets."—Topeka Journal.

Beginning of Slavery.
The dull boy in the class unexpectedly distinguished himself in a recent history examination. The question ran: "How and when was slavery introduced into America?" To this he replied:
"No women had come over to the early Virginia colony. The planters wanted wives to help with the work.
In 1619 the London company sent over a shipload of girls. The planters gladly married them, and slavery was introduced into America."— Youth's Companion.

Cause of the Collapse.
The foreman employed by a big contractor rushed into the office of the boss, wild-eyed and palpitating.
"Boss," he said, in a greatly agitated voice, "one of them new houses of ours fell down in the night!"
"Whats that?" exclaimed the boss.
Jumping right up and beginning to take notice. "What was the matter?
How did it happen?"
"it was the fault of the workmen, boss," answered the foreman. "They made the mistake of taking down the scaffolding before they put on the wall paper."—Philadelphia Telegraph.

Felt Reasonably Safe.
A young man dropped into a state of coma, and it was several days before he fully recovered. Later he spoke of his experience with a party of friends.
"Och, yes," the young man said in response to a question, "I knew all the time what was going on, and I also knew that I wasn't dead, because my feet were cold and I was hungry."

"I see," thoughtfully said one of his friends, "but how did that make you think that you were still alive?"
"Well," answered the young man,
"I knew that if I were in heaven I wouldn't be hungry, and that if I,

Neutral Malice.
Is there something malicious about even the fairest and kindest of neutrals?" said Booth Tarkington in Indianapolis.
"Does a neutral, in the very nature of things, incline to rejoice a little over a warring sister nation's misfortune? I hope not.
"I hope not, and yet in thinking of neutrals, I can't help thinking of two boys who stood the other day and watched an enormous safe being raised up to the twenty-sixth story of the skyscraper.
"The boys watched the safe rise slowly, dangling at the end of its wire rope, and when it reached the twentieth story the older lad turned away in disgust.
"'Come on, Joe,' he said. 'We might as well move on. They ain't a-goin' to let her drop.'"—Washington Star.
