KRYPTOK LENSES
When you need two-vision lenses—be sure to get KRYPTOK LENSES
(Worn by over 250,000 people)
For all other two-vision lenses there is a line or seam between the near and far vision portions that makes the wearer look less than his best, and unmistakably brands him or her with a sign of age.
Kryptoks are double-vision lenses that look exactly like regular one-vision lenses because there are no lines or seams in them.

Dr. Winnard can supply these lenses

DAN CUPID TAKES BIG SLUMP IN 1915

However Leap Year May Give the Dart Shooter an Incentive in Business.

Dan Cupid, that sly shooter of darts, fell down considerably in his marksmanship during the past year and left a record of 37 newly married couples as against 97 in the preceding year. Whether this slump can be attributed to the war in Europe or not leaves room for a debatable question, for it is true that in Europe the war has acted as a great incentive to marriage. However, bashfulness on the part of our young men may have been responsible and we may look forward to 1916, said new year being leap year, as one which will bring a rushing business to the license clerk at the court house. Following is a list of Morrow county people who were married during the year 1915:

JANUARY.
13—G. C. Macey and Wilhelmina Friedrich.
11—J. T. Morgan and Effie Culick.
17—William Edgar Davison and Harriet Edwards.

Forest Notes.

Improvement on the National Forests during 1915 are represented by 108 miles of road, 1,719 miles of trail, 2,287 miles of telephone lines, 106 miles of fire line, 102 lookout structures, 35 bridges, 267 miles of fence, 696 dwellings, barns and other structures, 23 corrals and 202 water improvements.
To date approximately 25,000 miles of roads, trails and fire lines, and 20,000 miles of telephone line have been built within the National Forests of the United States.
The net area actually owned by the public within the National Forests of the United States is 162,773,280 acres. The number of National Forests is now reduced to 155 as against 163 a year ago.
Members of the Forest Service delivered, during 1915, 149 public addresses, mainly in response to requests from educational institutions, associations of lumbermen, technical societies, and National Forest users.
Twenty-seven new publications were issued last year by the Forest Service, and 380,000 copies of Forest Service publications were distributed.

APPEAL IS MADE TO SAVE BIRDS DURING SEVERE WEATHER

People Should Take Steps to Keep Feathered Tribes From Starving.

Urging that steps be taken by the people to keep the birds from starving during the exceptionally heavy snow State Biologist Finley has wired to Deputy Game Warden Young asking him to make such an appeal here.

Governor Withycombe has issued instructions to wardens throughout the state to do what they can to interest the people in their communit-

The state game and fish commission has purchased food in greater quantities than ever to assist in the work.

In Portland the Oregon Audobon society has bought a quantity of old bread, rolled oats and wheat which is being distributed by W. A. Elliott, room 9 Chamber of Commerce building.

People who desire to cooperate in feeding the birds should scrape back the snow under fir trees, if possible, and place food there for the birds to eat.

According to State Biologist Finley the condition is serious in all parts of the state and many birds imported by the state game commission at large expense are in danger of extermination unless the people act promptly.

640-ACRE STOCKRAIS-ING HOMESTEADS

The stockraising homestead bill, which has been approved by the Department of the Interior officials, will probably pass Congress this spring, there seemingly being little or no opposition to the measure.

The bill applies only to lands that cannot or will not be entered under the 320-acre homestead law, that is, to rough mountain sides and to lands so arid that they can be used only for grazing purposes.

Under this bill, no lands will be subject to 640-acre homestead filings until they have been specially designated by the Interior Department, just as was the case when the 320-acre enlarged homestead took effect.

"I believe," says the Secretary, in recommending the early passage of the bill, "that with lands to which such a law would apply, a 640-acre homestead would enable bona fide homeseekers to establish and maintain homes for the purpose of stock-raising, and for such farming operations as will enable them to raise their own supply of rough feed for stock pastured on the remaining lands entered."

The bill makes no requirements as to cultivation, but requires the entryman to make permanent improvements upon the lands entered tending to increase their value for stock-raising purposes, of not less than $1-25 per acre.

Where a settler is occupying lands within an area designated for entry under the 640-acre bill it is provided that he may enter such additional lands as will bring his entire holding up to a full section, provided he can get enough adjacent land for this purpose. If he can not get the requisite area of adjacent land he may relinquish his holding and make a new entry covering 640 acres.

No commutation will be allowed. The Secretary of the Interior disapproves that provision of the bill which permits a settler within a district designated for 640-acre homesteading, making an additional entry of lands not adjoining his holdings. He thinks all entries should be compact and in one body.

"That a demand for this proposed legislation exists," says the Secretary, "is undoubted not only because existing laws are not adapted to large areas of remaining public lands, but because there is a widespread demand for such legislation in order that additional homes may be made upon the public domain. This measure covers a class of lands extensive in area, to which existing laws are not suitable, and will, in my opinion, secure the settlement upon and development of a very large area of our public land states, adding materially to the wealth and well being of the country."

"It would provide homes for thousands of citizens who would otherwise be unable to take advantage of the homestead features of our public land laws. It will wisely supplement existing laws, open a new field, and unquestionably add to the well-being not only of the states wherein the lands are located but of the entire country."

The Papers.

Villain—Where are those papers? First assistant villain—In the blacksmith shop.

Villain—Where are those papers? forged. First assistant—No, being filed!—Gargoyle.

His Testimonial. Ananias—Is the Junction House a good hotel? Job—Why, I wouldn't even lodge a complaint there.—Jack 'o Lantern.

Fashion's Slave. Fair patient—What would you advise me to do, doctor? Famly physician—Either go south for the winter, or else put on more clothes.
