COUNTY SCHOOL NOTES

By Supt. S. E. Notson.

The writer visited the Lexington school last week. The new building is almost complete. The Board of Directors are planning to put the school in the class of standard high schools. They are also making arrangements to introduce a full course of domestic science next year. The manual training work, which has been installed this year is proving very popular. The auditorium is ample and is well arranged. This will make possible many advantageous features.

Only a few teachers have enrolled with the Extension Department of the State University for the reading circle work. This should not be put off until vacation. Do not delay. According to a recent court decision a teacher's contract is not valid unless his certificate has been registered, and no certificate can be registered unless the reading circle work has been done. The State Superintendent is insisting that the county superintendents adhere rigidly to the requirements. Teachers who expect to qualify for the professional certificates to be issued for professional interest should read at least two of the reading circle books. Many rural teachers are taking up the National Rural Teachers' reading circle work. If you have not received a bulletin in regard to this work, write U. S. Commissioner of Education Claxton, Bureau of Education, Washington, D. C. and ask for one. If you are a rural teacher, you will find it to your advantage to know about this work. It is endorsed by nearly every State Superintendent and by a large number of county superintendents.

It is reported that some of the eighth grade pupils over the state think that they do not need to give such close study to history and civ government since the plan of the examinations has been changed. If they think it will be easier to make the proper showing and neglect to do the work properly, they will undoubtedly be disappointed in the results. The really good student is the one who will obtain the best standings.

The fair board will soon outline a plan for judging teams from the different high schools of the county. Each high school may have a team in stock judging, one in judging grains and other farm products, one in judging the work in domestic science and art. So, boys and girls of the high schools, begin to get ready to join a judging team from your school. The prizes will be awarded to the team, not to the individual members of the team. They will be something which will be of benefit to the school.
