WARTIME NECESSITIES.

If we are to find any profit in Britain's experience in being precipitated into a war for which it was not prepared, the subject must be studied at close range and with a fine consideration for minor details. The world has watched England struggle clumsily toward the goal of helpful co-operation with her French allies in the western front. After two years Britain has succeeded in recruiting, arming and equipping an army of 2,000,000 men. Military critics have contended that had England kept these 2,000,000 citizens in some sort of organized shape for war, the present war could not have occurred. But be that as it may, the fact remains that Britain would have known in advance what was needed for the conduct of war and would have provided such necessities as rapid-fire guns and field glasses.

Through the aid of American manufacturers, Britain has succeeded in getting plenty of ordnance. It may not be superior ordnance, but it will serve in a pinch. The machine guns America manufactures are notorious for fractious capers. French and German machine guns alone are dependable. When American ordnance experts manufacture rapid-fire guns they fail to give satisfaction even in our own military service. As for field glasses, dependence upon Europe is even stronger. Binoculars that are not made in France or Germany are nothing better than makeshifts.

Just now England is hunting high and low for field glasses. The military authorities have exhausted their resources and now patriotic civilians are organizing to meet the situation as best they may. Englishmen who will not donate opera glasses and field glasses are offered fancy prizes for them. A fund of $125,000 has been raised for the purchase of second-hand glasses from mercenary civilians. It is the prismatic glasses that are in demand, and those made in Germany are preferred. Before the war broke a full supply for the army might have been secured from Berlin, but now Berlin will not sell. Without binoculars the English troops are sadly handicapped. In these days of fighting from shelter and concealment, strong binoculars are as valuable as strong guns. They are indispensable to the artillery and cavalry as well as to the aerial observers.

In this connection it might be interesting to note that American Army supplies do not include a sufficient number of binoculars to equip what troops we have. It would be interesting, if not distressing, to know just how far short we fall of being able to equip an Army of half a million men properly.—Oregonian.

An Error Corrected.

Three weeks ago, in reporting on cases in the circuit court this paper was in error in stating that in the case of S. P. Garrigues vs. C. A. Miller, C. D. Huston and Stacy Roberts, Mr. Garrigues received judgment. Only in the first two instances was plaintiff given judgment and Mr. Roberts' demurrer was overruled and he was given twenty days in which to answer.

IONE NEWS BRIEFS OF EGG CITY ACTIVITY

The stockholders of Jordan Warehouse & Storage Co. are promoting the construction of a wheat elevator on their property at Jordan Siding. A meeting was held at Liberty schoolhouse, Eight Mile, Tuesday afternoon to discuss the proposition, and at this time plans and estimates were gone over with W. H. Cronk of Tum-a-Lum Lumber Co. The construction of the elevator appears to be almost a matter of necessity, owing to the prohibitive price of grain bags, and besides, it is far the better way to handle grain.

Gus Wilcox and Alex Lindsay, ranchers at the junction of Rhea and Willow creeks, have been busy as beavers for some time past, cleaning off the rubbish and working down the sediment that was left over their places by the winter floods. Mr. Wilcox reports that he has his work about done, and figures that his damage has been only nominal; in fact, the abundance of new soil deposited over the alfalfa fields will prove beneficial. Mr. Lindsay has much work in store yet to put his fields back to their former excellent condition.

A good sale of lambs was closed by Jack Hynd of Cecil during the past week. He disposed of about 2000 head at $7.75. The sheep had wintered fine and were in prime condition in both flesh and wool and commanded the best price going. Mr. Hynd spared neither labor nor feed to bring his sheep through the winter in good shape, and the price he now receives for this bunch of lambs is proof that he has followed the proper course.

A large audience greeted the pupils of Ione High School at the performance of the operetta, "Windmills of Holland" at Walker's hall on Saturday evening. The young people had been well drilled in their parts, and the quaint costuming and dancing fitted in with the splendid music in a manner to please. There is much fine musical talent in this town and Prof. Davis is bringing it to the front.

James M. Kyle, republican candidate for Public Service Commissioner from Eastern Oregon, with his home at Stanfield, was a business visitor in Ione Wednesday. Mr. Kyle does a general commission business in his home town and was interesting our local merchants in the proposition of buying a car load of potatoes. Incidentally he was pushing his candidacy for Commissioner.

G. S. Butler, of Ashland, Oregon, has been in Ione during the past week. He is owner of the tract of land farmed at present by Chas. Nannerman, and while here let the contract for the immediate construction of a cottage on the place, to replace the house recently destroyed by fire. John Nelson will have charge of the carpentering, being assisted by Ivor Nelson and Larry Londergan.

Mrs. Margaret Miller, of Grass Valley, mother of W. H. Cronk of this place, visited Mr. Cronk and family several days the past week, leaving for her home Thursday last. Mrs. Miller has been on an extended visit with other sons residing in the State of Washington, and has been away from home for more than a year. During her visit here she celebrated her 71st birthday.

Bert Mason this week purchased the stock of the Wm. Burger harness shop from R. L. Sabin, assignee, and the same was removed to his place of business. This stock had been reported sold to Chas. Curtis, a practical harness man of Harrisburg, Oregon, but for some reason Mr. Curtis did not show up and disposition of the stock has been made as here stated.

Mr. D. L. Peterson, who has been attending to affairs here in connection with the farm he owns near Ione, departed this morning for Toledo, Oregon, where he expects to remain for some time. He will return to Morrow county when the harvest is on and assist in caring for the crop that will be produced on his land.

Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Jones and daughter Ina, Mrs. Celsus Keithley and Mrs. W. O. Hill motored down from Heppner yesterday and spent a short time visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Vawter Crawford. On their return they were accompanied by Mrs. Crawford who will spend the weekend in Heppner.

F. L. Christensen, druggist, is having the building formerly occupied by Wm. Burger thoroughly overhauled and renovated and will move his stock into it just as soon as the place is ready. He expects to be more pleasantly situated in the new quarters besides getting additional room that he needs.

F. M. Griffin was in town from the Patview section Tuesday. He states that the farmers of that section have been very busy with Spring work and the most of them now have in all their grain. Much grain is now coming up and promises well.

Dr. Chiek was called to Hoppner Junction on Friday to attend Mrs. Collins who was suffering a broken leg. The lady was doing some house-cleaning, and a board on which she was standing some distance from the floor, broke, the result being a fracture of the leg just above the ankle.
