MORROW COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER

Thursday, June 15, 1916.

THE MAN THAT FILLS THE BILL.

Very few people, particularly in the West, realized the masterful quality of the leadership of Charles Evans Hughes. As a matter of fact it is about to be disclosed that a new type of public man has just blazed his way across the national horizon. Mr. Hughes is a man who never sought public office or public employment. At the same time he has never evaded public responsibility. His attitude has been that no man should seek public employment, but if he is called he should respond to the limit of his powers and give to the service the very best and all that is in him. To this rule he has rigidly adhered whether the matter involved was a great insurance investigation, the governorship of New York or the presidency of the United States. It is an amazing compliment to the qualities of the man that he should be sought and taken from the seclusion of the supreme bench of the United States, a man who was neither a candidate nor a seeker for the office, and almost unanimously asked to be the standard bearer of the national Republican party.

The first great test of the man came Saturday, when he was informed of his nomination. He instantly knew his own mind. His first step was to resign as a member of the supreme court; his second was to accept the presidential nomination; his third was to issue a statement in which he looked neither to the right nor the left, seemingly took into consideration no contending forces or factions and yet electrified the country with a pronouncement that stirred the red blood of the nation and brought the Progressives and Republicans in self respecting and willing union under the one banner of Republicanism. If the convention did a good day's work its candidate filled the measure to overflowing.

What the country is soon to realize is that a real man is at the helm, that a real leader is before and we are about to enter upon the supplest campaign prosecuted by the Republicans on high grounds, for principles that are worth fighting for and which will mean something in case of success with such a man as Charles Evans Hughes in the presidential chair.—Portland Evening Telegram.

BANKERS AND THE LIVE STOCK SHOW.

At the annual meeting of the State Bankers' Association, it was agreed that $10,000 be appropriated toward paying the expenses of the annual Live Stock Show to be held at the Portland Union Stockyards next winter. The state appropriation for this show is one-half that amount, and it was made evident last winter that this sum is inadequate. The balance then was made up by private subscription. The action of the bankers will in advance place the coming show on a solid financial basis, and we may look for the best one ever held in the West.

The bankers deserve praise for their action. These astute gentlemen have the foresight to see that there is no other medium extant that can help Oregon more than the upbuilding of the live stock interests. Those interests have made tremendous leaps forward since the establishment of the stockyards in North Portland but a few years ago. The rate of progress during those years has clearly proved that one of the greatest assets of the Northwest lies with the growers of live stock, and that nothing that can be done should be left undone to foster and forward the annual show.

Only a few years ago we were shipping from the Mississippi and Missouri Valleys hogs and cattle by the trainload; now home markets are supplied chiefly by the stockmen of Montana, Idaho, Oregon and Washington. Every day we ship out large quantities of meat products in all directions. If we show as great advances during the next decade as in the last, these products will be largely shipped eastward into the same territory whence we formerly received out principal supplies. What that means the wise bankers understand.

One of the principal causes of the advance in the live stock industries is the increase in the Northwest of the corn industry, which is giving stockgrowers a chance to ship to home yards a finished product. It is a cheering fact that the area of corn and the quality of the products are going forward even more rapidly than the increase of live stock. So the business of the stockgrowers is not upon an ephemeral basis but upon solid ground, which will be rapidly enlarged as the years roll by.—Editorial in the Oregonian.

After all, they were only progressive republicans, and since they can't have their Teddy, the democrats shouldn't deceive themselves into believing that that element of the republican party will be so eager to adopt the teachings of Woodrow.

Now that Mr. Sinnott has a name-sake in the form of a new postoffice in south Morrow county, he may work a little harder for the much-needed mail route between Hardman and Monument.

The vote of the republicans of Oregon at the recent primaries has been well sustained in the Chicago convention. The old state should feel proud that she led the way.

The wool man is getting a broad smile on his face.

Let's show the farmers a good time.

Miss Mable Helzer of Valentine, Nebraska is visiting at the Henry Johnson home in this city and meeting her many old friends whose acquaintance she made while teaching in the high school here in 1910. Miss Helzer also spent several days at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Turner east of this city. She will attend the University of California summer school and visit friends in Eugene before returning to Nebraska.

Why Not Face the Facts About Armor Competition?

To the People:

The policy of the United States Government for many years has made real competition in armor-making ineffective.

The Government might have asked the three armor plants for bids and let the entire tonnage to the lowest bidder. That would have made competition effective.

The result of such a course would have been to drive two of the three manufacturers out of business, and leave the country with facilities of only one plant in time of need.

The Government in fact has always asked for bids from the three manufacturers, but no matter what the price quoted, each year's business was divided among them.

Armor makers serve but one customer—the Government, just as a public utility serves but one customer—a community.

The solution of the public utility problem is regulation of rates.

The solution of the armor problem is for the Government to fix the price.

We voluntarily agree to accept any price fixed by the Federal Trade Commission. Isn't acceptance of that offer better than the destruction of an industry built solely to serve the Government?
