Among the many former Morrow county people who attended the county Fair, was J. W. Becket of Portland. Mr. Becket was a pioneer farmer here having lived in the Eight Mile country for years. At the present time his land is being farmed by his son, Walter Becket, who has a bumper crop.

It is reported that Pearl Shanhart, who farms the Vaughn ranch on Eight Mile, is receiving a forty bushel yield from his wheat crop this year. Crops throughout the Eight Mile country are making a much heavier yield than was forecasted before harvest started.

Frank Wilkin was in the city Monday transacting business. Mr. Wilkin has recently taken up a homestead in the Black Horse country. He believes that he has a good proposition considering the scarcity of homestead land in that county. He expects to work for Joe Rector through a part of the winter.

J. R. "Pap" Simons, a pioneer of Morrow County is visiting with Heppner relatives and old friends. He expects to remain here about two weeks before returning to the Odd Fellows home in Portland. "Pap" was engaged in the blacksmith business in this city for years and built up a reputation for workmanship that lives unto this day. He still owns residence property here.
