THE MYSTERIOUS MRS. M.

Another contribution to the screen by Lois Weber will be shown at the Star Theatre on Friday and Saturday under the title of "The Mysterious Mrs. M.," a Bluebird photoplay inspired by Thomas Edgewood's magazine story. Devotees of Bluebird will recall with delight the work of Mary MacLaren in previous Lois Weber productions among Bluebirds—"Shoes," "Saving the Family Name" and "Wanted—A Home"—and will be glad to know that the pretty Scotch lassie is to be one of the stars of the forthcoming presentation. Harrison Ford, her leading man, will share honors with Miss MacLaren.

There is no one woman who has done so much for moving pictures as Lois Weber. "Hypocrites," "Jewel," "Where Are My Children?" and "Idle Wives" are among the many productions she has made apart from her contributions to Bluebirds. In this series she presented and acted, with her husband, Phillips Smalley, one of the earliest Bluebirds, "Hop, the Devil's Brew," and later produced "The Eye of God," with Tyrone Power; "John Needham's Double," with the same fine actor; "The Flirt," with Marie Walcamp, and then she discovered Mary MacLaren.

Chicken House Burned.

The fire alarm brought a large number of people flocking to the rear of the county court house last Friday. Someone had been burning weeds and brush on the Wm. Ayers property, and in some manner the chicken house caught on fire. The blaze was put under control before a great deal of damage was done.
