Mr. Melton, veteran of the Civil War, gave the boys a few words and ended up by telling them it was 57 years since he left his home to fight for his country.

Will Locate at Pendleton.

W. J. Wattenburger, having disposed of his Heppner property, has decided that he will move to Pendleton with his family and locate in that city. Mr. Wattenburger has established a business of shearing plants along the main line of the railroad from Echo to points in Eastern Oregon and Idaho and it is necessary that he be located where he can get to them promptly and easily. He states, however, that he may return to Heppner some time in the future as he likes living here better than anywhere else he has ever been. Mr. Wattenburger and family will leave here the first of the coming month.

Half of Wheat Sold.

It is estimated that half the wheat in Umatilla county now is sold and the remainder is coming in steadily, states the Pendleton Tribune. Most of the big lots have been turned over to the buyers on the basis of the arrangement announced recently. The grain is being shipped to terminals as fast as it can be loaded and, so far, there has been no car shortage.

Ray Slocum lost a valuable horse at the Stewart barn in Heppner on Sunday morning. Just what caused the animal's death seems to be a mystery as it was sick but just a very short time.

W. L. Twichell writes this paper that he is now located in Portland, where he is engaged with C. Guy Wakefield in the wholesale piano business.

Heppner Boy in Navy Enjoys the Life

Goat Island, Calif., Oct. 4, 1917. To the Editor: Dear Sir:

Today, Oct. 4, has been set aside as newspaper day down here and we are asked to write to our home newspaper, telling something of our life in the U. S. Navy, and how we are treated by the Army and Navy Y. M. C. A. I will begin with a short sketch of my first six months in the Navy.

I arrived on Goat Island, the naval training station near San Francisco, early on the morning of April 8. There I went through the usual examination and received my clothes. After this we had dinner, and when that was over with we took our clothes and went up to the detention camp where every one has to go to keep from spreading any disease that may be brought in.

We spent the first week there in getting used to our surroundings and learned a little about how to drill. At the end of the week we moved down to the main barracks and prepared to get down to actual work. The work we had to do was guarding the island. I didn't get much of this work, though, for I was sent to the hospital with measles a few days after I came down to the main barracks.

Everything was fine at the hospital and after being there some time I was lucky enough to get leave and went home. There is no use to say that I had a good time while on leave for that is the only kind of time one can have when one gets to go home.

After my leave had expired I settled down to work once more. We had to drill quite a little in order to be ready to go on a ship at short notice. The drilling consisted of boat drill and infantry drill and we had "Sweedish" exercise once in a while. We also had other work to do such as helping to put a ship in the dry dock.

I have been telling about the days we work, so I will try and tell a little about the days when we don't work. We get liberty twice and some times three times a week. Most everyone goes ashore and has a good time. This is one time when the Y. M. C. A. helps. We go there to write letters, read and play games. They have rooms there if we stay over night and also many other things for the enlisted men. The Y. M. C. A. gives a course of entertainments at the training camps and has started classes in almost any subject that one would wish to take. I think that is about all that might be of interest during my life down here, but tomorrow I start for the Orient and expect to have many new experiences before I am in the service six months longer.

What Osteopathy Does For The Welfare of Women

The real cause of many of the ailments peculiar to women was never properly understood until osteopathy was discovered. That this is a fact is proven by the wonderful results which have been accomplished by osteopathy in the treatment of diseases of women. Among those who know about it a great deal of fame of osteopathy is attributed to its success in women's cases but unfortunately a great many women have a wrong impression about the practice and consequently are prejudiced against it or are afraid of it.

How Mrs. J. Investigated Twentieth Medical Advancement and Found Out What Every Woman Should Know About Osteopathy

In the October issue of Osteopathic Health—the popular magazine about osteopathy—there is an interesting story of a lady who did some investigating of osteopathy for herself. It tells how she visited a free clinic at an osteopathic hospital and some of the things she learned by conversation and observation and how she later proved the merits of osteopathy by personal experience in her own case.

Get a copy of this October issue of Osteopathic Health. Any osteopathic physician will be glad to present you with a copy complimentary. It is an explanation of osteopathy in a woman's own terms and will certainly prove interesting reading whatever may be your own health conditions or your personal views about osteopathy.

Another instructive article in the October issue of this magazine tells about the benefit of having osteopathic attention during pregnancy. There is no more important time in family life than when a little new comer is expected in the home. Every married woman and every husband should be informed concerning the protection and satisfaction in having osteopathic assistance on such occasions.

Osteopathic Health is published to give the public information about osteopathy and you can get a copy from any osteopath on request.—Adv
