of people in competition, and the man before, but she was ahead of a number choosing the stenographer they wanted (a capable girl able to do his work and keep her mouth shut) had been informed that she was the party to choose—by other friends of ours. One day about five or six weeks after she got there she informed us that a great packing case was being filled up with propaganda documents and with bills of expense in connection with explosions in munition plants and other vital and valuable things, and was to be shipped off the following week right straight to England on a Swedish ship and from there to Germany.

Von Pagen Filtr.
"The only thing we could possibly do was to identify the package. One day when they were about to close the package up this girl, under instructions—and I may say incidentally she is now back at work—brought her a week—sat on this box eating her lunch. Nearly everybody else had gone, but Von Pagen, rather debonair and fond of ladies, wandered in and sat on the packing box and asked if he could share her lunch with her. She said certainly, and while they were sharing the sandwiches he made some sentimental advances and she in a dreamy way took out a large red pencil and drew two big red hearts on this packing case. It was Captain Von Pagen himself who put an arrow through them. And ladies and gentlemen, when the ship Austria reached Falmouth they picked that package out of the hold and from about a hundred and fifty others and identified it by the two big red hearts. And yet they say there are no brilliant people but the Germans."

"Another incident, the loss of a portfolio belonging to Dr. Heinrich Albert, an Austrian official, which contained papers relating to Ambassador Dumba's efforts to incite labor troubles in the United States, created quite a stir among the diplomats. Mr. Rathom told of how a Journal reporter got the papers as the result of which Dumba was sent back to Austria by the President. "One of the Journal reporters had been shadowing Doctor Albert in New York, but for months nothing seemed wrong. One day he went into a leather goods store, where he ordered a portfolio and gave the salesman instructions to put his initials on it. The reporter, as soon as Albert had gone out, walked up to the salesman and ordered another portfolio of the same kind, but with no initials, saying he would rather see how the other gentleman's initials looked. When he came back and saw the initials he said he didn't like them and departed to go to another shop and have the same initials put on his portfolio. His work was becoming less tiresome and less fruitless than it had been."

"A day or two later Albert, carrying the new portfolio, was followed from the front of his apartments by the Journal man. Albert boarded an elevated train. He placed his bag containing papers on the seat beside him. Suddenly he was stirred by a fight in the front end of the car. As he stood up to see what the trouble was, as did nearly everybody else in the car, the portfolios were changed. This happened on Saturday morning. Albert, in a statement later, said that he discovered the trick the same day, but we know for a fact that he did not discover the difference until Monday morning. Needless to say, the men who were fighting on the street car were also in the employ of the Journal."

"It was through the Journal, Mr. Rathom said, that a great quantity of important papers were secured from Wolf von Igel. These papers revealed the Casement plot for the Irish uprising. When the papers were taken, Mr. Rathom said, in illustrating his point that there is a certain amount of stupidity in all German diplomats, Von Bernstorff made application to the state department to have them returned. He was told that any paper he could identify would be returned to him, and then realized that he had committed himself in asking that the papers be returned.

Asked Journal's Suppression.

"Three days after Bernstorff was ordered to return to Germany, Mr. Rathom declared, he demanded that the American government suppress the Providence Journal."

"Every statement that we have made in regard to German plots in the United States has been proven to be positively true," declared Mr. Rathom. "For the first nine or ten months no one believed what we were saying. The dismissal of Doctor Dumba was the first result of our months of effort. "We have not printed one-fiftieth of what we secured, but we were very glad, when events turned, to turn the key in the safe in which it is deposited and forget the balance, because the work we tried to do has been accomplished."

THE OREGON FARMER

Offers Unusual Opportunity To Its Readers

AMONG our large circle of readers there are a great many who are interested directly or indirectly in fruit growing, dairying and other branches of farming. All of these naturally wish to keep in close touch with agricultural activities throughout the state; and to know about any fight which is being waged for the measures Oregon farmers want and against all sorts of schemes that are detrimental to the people and agricultural interests of this state.

We have, therefore, made a special clubbing arrangement with THE OREGON FARMER whereby any farmer or fruit-grower, who is one of our regular subscribers and who is not now a subscriber of THE OREGON FARMER, will be entitled to receive THE OREGON FARMER in combination with this paper at the same rate as for this paper alone.

This offer applies to all those who renew or extend their subscriptions as well as to all new subscribers. If you are interested directly or indirectly in Oregon agriculture, do not miss this unusual opportunity but send your order in now.

THE OREGON FARMER is the one farm paper which is devoting itself exclusively to the farming activities and interests of Oregon. It has a big organization gathering the news of importance to farmers, dairymen, fruitgrowers, stockraisers and poultrymen; and it has the backbone to attack wrongful methods and combinations and bad legislation, and support honest leaders and beneficial measures. We are confident that our readers will congratulate us on our being able to make this splendid and attractive clubbing offer.

SELLING THE NORTHWEST.

Plans Fully Developed By the Pacific Northwest Tourist Association for Getting Tourist Travel for the Northwest.

Last winter the legislatures of Oregon and Washington and the Parliament of British Columbia appropriated $112,000 as an advertising fund to attract tourist travel to the Northwest.

The Pacific Northwest Tourist Association is the organization for spending the funds, and the board of directors has just concluded a meeting at Seattle where plans were made for beginning the big drive to attract the vacationists of the world to the Northwest in 1918.

It should be understood that the only paid representative of the organization is the secretary, Herbert Cuthbert, of Seattle, who draws $300 per month. All other officers work for nothing, the directors even paying their own railroad fare and hotel bills when attending the frequent meetings.

During the past Summer it was thought that the war would make it impossible to secure tourist travel to the Northwest. But, notwithstanding that influence, the advertising the tourist association placed in automobile and newspapers west of the Rocky Mountains had the effect of bringing more visitors than Oregon has ever had in any previous year.

Consequently the directors took steps for vigorous advertising during the coming winter and have established connections which give the Northwest direct representation in 35 cities of the United States.

One hundred thousand booklets showing the scenic resources of Oregon, Washington and British Columbia are being printed, as are booklets on fishing, hunting, golfing, motoring and mountaineering. These are to be distributed direct to interested people through the agency of "Ask Mr. Foster" service, the largest and most efficient tourist bureau of the world. Special exhibits are to be maintained at Atlantic City, New York and in three tourist centers in the South.

Northwest literature will be kept fresh in the leading hotels and railway offices in New York, Washington, Detroit, Chicago, Philadelphia, Buffalo, Indianapolis, Omaha, Atlantic City, Cleveland, St. Louis and Minneapolis.

Forty thousand dollars are to be expended this winter in printing a series of advertisements in the leading newspapers and magazines that are circulated in the centers of population where the most tourist travel is originated. These newspapers and magazines are being carefully selected, and the advertising will be placed by a Pacific Coast Agency.

Ten thousand display cards are to be printed in four colors and hung up in the garages and leading hotels of the country.

A specially prepared invitation is being printed to be sent to all governors, mayors, presidents of auto clubs, and other organizations, asking them and their members to spend a vacation in the Northwest.

When the sections of America where snow is heavy are this Winter digging snow, they will suddenly be confronted with an advertisement calling attention to the mild winters of the Northwest. When they swelter next Summer, the ads will again remind them of the delightfully cool season out here.

The headquarters of the association are now in the Smith building, Seattle, where any citizen of the Northwest will be welcomed and given full information about what is being done.

The Oregon men who are giving their time to this work are Phil Mettschan, Jr., J. P. Jaeger, W. J. Hofman, Emery Olmstead, J. C. Alsworth, Ben W. Olcott, Robert W. Sawyer, H. A. Latta, J. H. Koke, J. W. Selmons, R. E. Scott and Leslie Butler.

Edith Young, a twelve year old girl of Salem, won first prize on cake and biscuit in the Domestic Science department of the State Fair. The articles were made from Heppner flour.

The Supreme Court of the state has handed down a decision which permanently locates the county seat of Jefferson county at Madras. This marks the end of fight that has been going on between Madras and Culver for the county seat since 1914.
