 Matinee 2:30 NOVEMBER 3 Evening 7:30 & 9

The picture is a direct answer to the pacifist group and the anti-American foreigners in this country. It is the reply which the American woman makes to those who would betray or despoil her flag. It portrays the three great loves of a woman's life, the love of a maid for a man, the love of a mother for her child, the love of a woman for her country.

NERVOUS EXHAUSTION AND AND ITS TRAIN OF EVIL INFLUENCES

Constant Over-Exertion and Anxiety Cause Lowered Physical and Nervous Vitality and Make Easy Victims of the Army of Nervous Diseases.

Our nation is facing a period of great physical activity and mental anxiety and it is well to direct attention to the army of nervous diseases which may assail us under such circumstances and, as well, to tell how to avoid and overcome them. It is a fact—although not understood by many—that osteopathy has wonderful efficiency in preventing and overcoming nervous complaints. The reasons for this become quite clear and logical when principles and methods of the science and practice are comprehended.

The "Why" of Nervous Diseases, and How Osteopathy Rescues and Restores Those Afflicted With Such Complaints is Briefly but Clearly Explained.

To guard one's self against nervous collapse it is first necessary to understand the why of such a catastrophe. Such an explanation in simple language that you will understand appears in Osteopathic Health for July, a copy of which can be obtained from any osteopathic physician free of charge.

This July issue of the magazine also tells about many of the diseases which result from nerve depletion among them being Neurasthenia—the disease to which so many people in the United States fall victims—Hemiplegia, a form of Paralysis affecting one-half of the body; Facial and Occupational Paralysis; Nervous Indigestion, St. Vitus' Dance, Sciatica, Neuritis, Gout and Epilepsy. Osteopathy does wonders in these widely differing cases. If you want to know the truth about it, investigate! Don't follow blind prejudice; get the facts for yourself. Secure a copy of Osteopathic Health regularly. It is issued monthly for your information and benefit. Ask any osteopathic physician for a copy. He will be glad to supply you. Ask him to tell you about cases he has experienced in his practice. Health is a great blessing; a great asset; it is what makes life worth living. If you have the will to be well, health may be within your reach. Do not let prejudice cheat you of your birthright. Get a copy of Osteopathic Health and learn about this new system of healing.

Supt. Shurte is busy this week visiting the schools of the county. She is accompanied by Mr. Shurte who acts in the capacity of chauffeur and helps to get the car along over some of the bum roads they have to travel. Public Sale of Mules is Called Off.
 The public sale of mules and mares which was advertised in these columns to take place on Saturday, Nov. 3, at my place in Clark's Canyon, has been called off. I have made a private sale of the mules, and do not care at this time to dispose of the work mares advertised.

Alva Jones was transferred from American Lake Monday, and with two other Morrow county boys was sent to New York. It was not learned just what the boys will do but it is supposed they will be placed on police duty, taking the places of those who have been moved to the front in France.

EXPLOSIONS JAR NEW YORK DURING BATTLES

Not since the munitions explosions on Black Tom Island in New York Bay had the countryside along the north shore of Staten Island reverberated with such terrific concussions as when Greater Vitagraph staked its military scenes of "Womanhood, the Glory of a Nation," featuring Alice Joyce and Harry Morey which is at the Star theatre on Saturday, Nov. 3. The islanders turned out en masse to watch the sway and surge of battle. They are the first Americans, treated as a community, who have any semblance of modern war tactics as conducted before Verdun and on the Somme. Hers was a great departure from the old-fashioned type of battle scene done for show purposes.

Staten Island, a stone's throw from Manhattan, rocked under the roar of great guns to make Vitagraph's great spectacle for American military preparedness convincing. Staten Island saw the sky ablaze at night with illuminating bombs. It beheld trench mortars hurling their explosives into the opposing burrows a few yards away. It gaped at troops, sheltered by curtain fire, hacking their way through barbed wire entanglements to rush the snug, sandbagged trench forts. It marveled at huge howitzers and 42-centimeter cannon. It shuddered and retreated in a panic at the gas attacks with their sinister, saffrom clouds stealing before the breeze upon the doomed defenders of otherwise impregnable positions.

Commodore J. Stuart Blacton, who personally produced this picture had the co-operation of the 13th Coast Defense Command, N. G. N. Y., and a company of regulars from the United States Army. The 550 men of this command went into camp and lived there for two weeks under strict camp conditions.

The ordinarily mild aspect of the rolling terrain was changed with pick and spade until it seemed like the wrinkled face of Mars with trenches and bomb shelters. Then commanding positions and ambushes alike were altered with the long blue-black muzzles of heavy guns as monuments of destruction. Queer engines lurked in the trenches. Pipe colls and gas masks and steel headgear and hand grenades and parachutes were behind the lines. Observation balloons, aeroplanes and armored cars were close at hand. All these things had been assembled for the big scenes.

And although days and days were spent in filming these scenes and hundreds of thousands of dollars in securing them, they only compose vivid flashes in the finished production, lending atmosphere and color to the soul-stirring production as a whole.
